NEW HOPE PERVADES BRITAIN

HOOVER POINTS PATH OF SERVICE TO LEGION HOST

Some Vets Shout: "We Want Beer!"

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 21.—[Special.] At the American Legion today received its President of the United States and applied his well.

It is true that as Mr. Hoover was leaving the platform of the Legion convention hall after he had closed a fifteen minute speech, a hoarse voice shouted:

"We want beer."

And soon a chorus of other throats had at the call, and as the President took on the edge of the platform shook hands with other distinguished guests and members of the Legion, the chant grew stronger:

"We want beer. We want beer."

Hoover Gives No Sign.

The President gave no notice of the demonstration. It had been the only manifestation of what some might have thought was untoward, but to him it was only the good nature of ex-Servicemen making their wants widely known.

To the end, the Legion greeted Mr. Hoover warmly. He was cheered at times by the standing multitude of 5,000 who filled the Olympia stadium and for three minutes the air was rent with applause, hurrahs, explosion of blank cartridges, whistling, and other noises.

The greeting was taken by the more than observers as patriotic, not political. Soldiers of American wars were greeting the nation's chief executive, and in this relationship they did his homage.

President's Appeal Brief.

Mr. Hoover made his message brief, and to deal with no other subject than that which brought him here after the eleventh hour decision to carry the problem directly before the men of the Legion.

In effect, the President made a request that the Legionnaires should not press for additional loans under the veterans' adjusted compensation act. There has been a concerted movement within the Legion to have this convention pass a resolution demanding veterans be permitted to borrow a small amount of their adjusted compensation certificates, instead of only one, as at present.

But the President shrewdly avoided making a direct plea. He said it was not fitting that the President of the United States should plead with them as a test of patriotism.

He was "pointing out the path of service to this nation," Mr. Hoover said, and he left the choice with the Legion.

Appeals to Patriotism.

The President outlined the financial plight of the country, and said he was confident that the Legion would seek to add no further burden.

Indeed, Mr. Hoover assumed the attitude that the men of the Legion were strongly opposed to seeking additional loans. Although he came to Detroit after having first decided not to appear at the convention, and because he wished to exert all influence toward promoting the making of such a demand by the veterans, the President earnestly praised the veterans in his utterances.

He spoke of the work of the Legion in assisting in meeting the unemployment problem, and in providing for relief of the needy in the coming winter, and he accepted the Legion's offer of aid, and then he said:

"But there is today an even greater service to our country. That is the determined opposition by you to political demands upon the nation which will have won this war against economic depression."

Wins Appeal, Is Indication.

The statement brought a heavy burst of applause from the Legionnaires, and it now appears fairly certain that the Legion will not press its demand this year.

The President spoke of the national debt, and said the only solution before the government is the strictest economy. Every additional expenditure, Mr. Hoover said, must eventually be paid, whether by increased taxation or by loans.

"Either loans or taxes beyond the absolute minimum necessities of government will drain the resources of industry and commerce and in turn will increase unemployment."

Mr. Hoover arrived in the city at 9 o'clock this morning and was driven directly to the Olympia. A chorus of women's voices was singing a new Legion anthem, and when the first eye in the audience spotted

Wolf's Own Story of Stolen Millions

CONFESSES HIS SOLE GUILT FOR LOOTING BANK

Loss of $1,000,000 Is New Phase.

Walter E. Wolf, the embezzler of $3,666,929, personally negotiated one brokerage account amounting to $1,000,000. Also it was Wolf himself who bared his embezzlements. He confessed on his own initiative. This was the first public disclosure by Wolf that he had dealt directly in the huge stock transactions which today stamp him as the largest individual embezzler in banking history.

His revelation came after he had been turned over formally to the state's attorney's office, ending nearly a month of voluntary captivity in the hands of agents of the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company. He was manager of the coupon department of the bank during his period of peculations.

Embezzler's Own Story.

Wolf's story is a self-portrait which depicts him in a new setting. Previous accounts intimated that he was largely a victim of shrewd agents who influenced his plunges in the market. According to his own statements yesterday, Wolf did not transact business entirely through second and third persons. He also played his own hand. He played it, it seems, for $1,000,000.

"Some years ago," Wolf said, "I transferred an account to Jackson Bros., Boesel & Co. It was under the name of Henry Wolf and was made through a customer's man.

"I kept this account going myself. The statements were sent to my River Forest home. Everything I bought went wrong; that is, all the big trading. Sometimes I made a gain, but it was never large enough for me to close out the account with a profit sufficient to enable me to make good to the bank what I had taken out."

Million Dollar Account.

Bank investigators inquired into this account, registered in the name of Henry Wolf. They learned, it was reported, that it had reached a million dollars. Incidentally, Henry Wolf, a brother of the embezzler, was ignorant of the use of his name in the account.

Wolf's narrative yesterday revealed that it was he who first broke the news of his peculations. It also disclosed that at one time one of his accounts, also under the name of his brother, with Stein, Alstrin & Co. showed a loss of a quarter of a million dollars.

No Profit from Deals.

Wolf maintained that he had never realized one cent in profit from his transactions. Investigations substantiate this assertion. In fact, they show that he lived within his income of $75 weekly, and even stinted himself to the utmost frugality some time ago in meeting medical bills for injuries suffered by his wife and daughter in a motor mishap. All the while, though, he continued his embezzling operations of thousands of dollars.

"I was first employed by the old Illinois Trust and Savings bank in 1905," said Wolf. "I continued with that bank in various clerical jobs until in 1924 I was promoted to the managership of the coupon division. When the bank mergers came, I kept my job. My superiors said they were pleased with my work. As manager of the coupon department I had general supervision of the short term securities and coupons deposited for collections.

Explains Taking of Bonds.

"When securities were deposited with the bank by big corporations or smaller banks they were placed in the vaults and a record made of the date of deposits and the due date of the securities.

"Whenever I wanted securities I would go to the girl who kept the records and tell her the securities were wanted for immediate collection and credit. I kept the record of my withdrawals locked in my desk at the bank. Whenever my own records showed that the stolen securities had come due I would withdraw them from the brokerage house in which I had put them as collateral and substitute other securities not yet due."

Wolf retraced his story momentarily to explain that it was over 10 years ago that he first played the stock market. He used his own money. But the market sagged, he said, and the

CUSTOMS SEIZES 2,500 BOTTLES OFF LEGION MEN

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 21.—(AP)—United States customs inspectors tonight said they had confiscated more than 2,500 bottles of beer, whisky, champagne and other liquors from American Legion men returning from Windsor, Ont., to Detroit during the evening.

The inspectors said they believed word had been passed among the war veterans here for the national convention that United States customs inspectors would not molest American Legion visitors bringing liquor from Canada into the United States.

So widely had the erroneous word of leniency been spread, they said, that Legion visitors were attempting to bring liquor through Detroit river ports in case lots, making no attempt at concealment.

Missing Ocean Flyers Saved; Float 148 Hrs.

HALIFAX, N. S., Sept. 21.—(AP)—Picked up after floating 148 hours on the wave-buffeted wreckage of their Lisbon to New York plane, three foreign flyers were safe today aboard the small Norwegian motorship Belmoira.

The rescue of the daring pair of German airmen and a Portuguese sportsman who had been given up for dead was reported to the outside world by wireless just one week after they were due in New York.

First came a terse message from the Belmoira saying the wreckage of a plane had been sighted off Cape Pine and about 80 miles southeast of Cape Race, a treacherous section of the Newfoundland coast. Later advices told of the finding of Willy Rody and Christian Johanssen, the German flyers, and their Portuguese companion, Fernando da Costa Viega.

Plane is Abandoned.

Still later Johanssen informed the Junkers Airplane works in Dessau, Germany, of the abandonment of their plane and subsequent rescue.

Hours after reporting the rescue, the Belmoira gave a few scant details. The flyers all were in good health, the motorship wirelessed, but Da Costa Viega was suffering from an injured leg.

The airmen were picked up not fifty miles from the position in which they were sighted at 1:40 p. m. [Chicago time] last Monday by the steamer Pennland, about eighty miles off Cape Race, Newfoundland.

From this meager information, it was believed here the trio had struck aviation's "blind spot," where the metallic deposits of Bell island are believed to influence the instruments of trans-Atlantic airmen. This, it was said, probably caused them to fly in circles until their fuel was exhausted.

Kept Afloat 148 Hours.

One reason for this view was the fact that Rody and Johannsen, in their brief messages to relatives in Germany, reported they had kept the wrecked plane afloat about 148 hours. This was between ten and fifteen hours less than the total time that had elapsed from the time the plane was sighted by the Pennland and the time the flyers were picked up by the Belmoira.

Their plane, "The Esa," was believed to have had about twelve hours fuel left when sighted by the Pennland.

Sighted Twice at Sea.

The trio set out Sunday, Sept. 13, from Juncal do Sol, about 30 miles from Lisbon, Portugal, with New York as their destination. They were sighted twice, once at the Azores and later last Monday afternoon by the steamer Pennland.

They had completed about 2,600 miles of their 3,700 mile trans-Atlantic journey. But the plane had no radio and as they approached the Atlantic seaboard overcast skies and electrical storms confronted them.

When the time limit of 48 hours set by their gasoline supply expired early last Tuesday without further word, they were believed to have been lost at sea or made an intermediate landing.

Their plane carried two gallons of mineral water, a dozen bananas, two dozen apples and three loaves of bread.

Rody, 23 year old aviation enthusiast, purchased the plane used by the trio with the proceeds of an inheritance which had come to him recently. Johanssen, a native of Denmark, was a pilot during the world war and made a flight to China in 1929.

CUT CONGRESSMEN'S SALARIES, SAY TWO CONGRESS MEMBERS

Washington, D. C., Sept. 21.—[Special.]—Reductions of the salaries of members of congress as part of the economy program were urged today by Representative Will R. Wood [Rep., Ind.], chairman of the appropriations committee of the house and Representative Allen T. Treadway [Rep., Mass.], member of the ways and means committee.

The latter suggested that the salaries should be reduced from $10,000 to $8,000 a year, which he said would save the country $1,062,000 a year while Representative Wood thought that a ten per cent reduction not only on the salaries of members of congress but all federal employés receiving over $3,000 a year was justified.

"I believe it would be a just thing to reduce federal salaries," Representative Wood said. "They were increased because of the high cost of living. Living costs have fallen 30 per cent and it would be fair and logical to reduce salaries to keep them on a level with living costs. I believe that salaries over $3,000 a year might be reduced ten per cent, and this would mean that the salaries of congressmen would be $9,000 a year."

Get $100,000 Loot in 122 Deposit Boxes

James Henry Davis, 35 years old, and his son, William, 19, were arrested last night for questioning in connection with the looting during the week-end of 122 safe deposit boxes in the Wicker Park Safe Deposit and Vault company, 1564 Milwaukee avenue. The loot is estimated at $100,000. The theft was committed by a crew of expert cracksmen, who entered through the basement and battered and burned an entrance into the deposit vaults.

Davis, also known as Thompson, lives with his wife and three children on the second floor directly above the vault company. Both he and his son, William, have possessed keys to the basement under the vault. The two were seized on orders of Chief of Detectives Norton on their return last night with Mrs. Davis and the other children from Stevens Point, Wis. Davis told Norton that he had lost his key to one lock of the basement door five months ago but had changed the lock. The son said he believed his key was at home.

Third Held for Questioning.

Both prisoners denied any knowledge of the looting. Davis asserted that for more than a month he had noticed two men in a car park frequently in front of the deposit company, and once had chased them away.

While Norton was questioning the Davises, Percy Brown, 4155 Broadway, called at the bureau to see them. He was ordered held for questioning.

The vault robbers probably spent more than 10 hours on the job. They carried lunch and considerable safe cracking equipment. They used a card index to select individual deposit boxes, and picked the 122 out of some 1,500 boxes within the vault.

Take Cash and Liberty Bonds.

The robbers took only cash, jewelry, and such readily negotiable securities as unregistered Liberty bonds, a preliminary examination disclosed. That their loot might be in excess of the $100,000 estimate made by the Pinkerton Detective agency was indicated by a statement by H. C. Vognild, president of the safe deposit company.

"Since the failure of a number of small banks in this neighborhood," Mr. Vognild said, "our vault business has increased 100 per cent. Many of our clients withdrew cash and placed it in their boxes, along with government bonds."

Mr. Vognild's personal loss included two diamond rings, valued at $1,000. The safe deposit business is the outgrowth of a jewelry store established by Mr. Vognild's family in 1889. He still conducts the jewelry store at the same address.

The robbers entered the basement of the building through a rear door. That work and other operations of the gang marked them as experienced cracksmen, according to police. After entering the basement they used an oxy-acetylene torch to cut the combination out of an old steel vault door, through which they gained admission to a chamber immediately beneath the deposit vault.

Cut Through Steel Plates.

They set to work on the concrete floor of the deposit vault, which is six inches thick. After battering their way through the concrete they called the torches into play again and cut a gap 12 by 20 inches in the three inch tempered steel plates which form the floor of the vault.

By entering through the floor the gang avoided setting off the burglar alarm system guarding the large door to the vault proper. Once inside, they consulted the card index and smashed open the boxes. All papers not readily negotiable were thrown in the basement.

The members of the gang posted a lookout at the rear door and strung wires for a buzzer system by which he was prepared to warn them to cease work at the approach of any one in the alley outside. They left the buzzer behind them.

27 DAYS OF HEAT MAKES SUMMER 60 YEAR RECORD

Chicago's maximum temperature yesterday was 90 degrees at 3 p. m. The day was the twenty-seventh this year on which the maximum was 90 or more, breaking all records for the sixty years the weather bureau has been functioning here. The nearest to this heat mark was in 1921, when the number of 90 degree days was twenty-two.

Hope for relief today was held out. The forecast is for partly clouded skies and lower temperatures, possibly with thundershowers. Tomorrow is to be cloudy and considerably cooler. Heavy rains fell yesterday to the west, Dodge City, Ia., having an unprecedented 7.25 inches of precipitation in twenty-four hours.

LAW PASSED BY PARLIAMENT TO END GOLD BASIS

Nation Calm; Looks for Trade Gains.

Some U. S. Stocks Up

Many of the highest grade issues on the New York exchange registered gains yesterday as banking houses united to support the U. S. markets.

The governors of the New York exchange helped avert a wide open break by practically prohibiting short sales during the emergency.

Yesterday's closing quotations, New York, on the pound sterling was $4.20, a decline of 64⅞ cents from Saturday's close. In London the pound fell from Saturday's close of $4.85⅝ to $4.22½.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 21.—Great Britain is definitely off of the gold standard "for the time being."

Royal assent was given to the emergency national government's bill suspending the gold standard at 10:11 o'clock tonight after the measure had been rushed through the house of commons and then sent to the house of lords for consideration.

The average Briton accepted the suspension of the gold standard calmly—perhaps stoically. There was no panic in London. The British, naturally, were stunned, but they took a hitch in their trousers and went about their work—if they had any—as usual.

Worry About Fate of Pound.

The man on the street was more concerned by the fact that the price of beer went up a penny a pint today as a consequence of the government's higher taxation program to balance the budget than over the suspension of the gold standard.

But the bankers, financiers, political leaders, stock brokers, and industrial chiefs are worried. They are wondering about that sturdy old pound sterling and how low it will fall on foreign exchanges. It began its downward movement today. After an early fall to below $4 it rose and closed at $4.22½, compared to $4.85⅝ on Saturday. The rate in Paris, the second most active quarter, closed at 108 francs [after being 100], compared to 123.86 on Saturday.

But even the bankers and politicians had some degree of satisfaction. They knew that by the suspension of the gold standard the flight of gold from the vaults of the Bank of England had been stopped. With only 650 million dollars in gold left they knew that the gold standard had to be dropped to save England from a complete crash.

Snowden's Talk Cheers.

Their fears were allayed considerably when Chancellor of the Exchequer Snowden spoke to the British nation over the radio tonight and appealed to one and all to stand by the pound.

"The pound will not go the way of the mark or the franc," he said. "Let me assure you at once that there is not the least danger of that."

Mr. Snowden appealed to the nation to remain calm, pointing out that though the value of the pound may fall in terms of foreign currency, Britons could feel assured that the extent of the decline was limited. He told them that money deposited in British banks is perfectly safe.

Regrets Flight of Americans.

"British nationals, who are abroad, will render their nation a service by returning home and spending their money here," he exclaimed.

The chancellor expressed his regret at the plight of some Americans.

"Some foreigners still have money deposited here and will be able to take it back—if they wish to take it back—in depreciated pounds, and will therefore suffer a loss in terms of their own currencies," he explained. "We deplore that loss and have done all we can to avert it. We did not hesitate to impose upon our own people heavy burdens and drastic sacrifices so as to remove any ground or reproach that our budgetary position had contributed to the fall of the pound."

Day's Story Dramatic.

The day's story of the passage of the gold suspension law was dramatic. It originated in the house of commons, where it received the necessary legislation in "jig time" and was passed on third reading. The bill then was hustled to the house of lords.

Only about a dozen members were present in the upper house to receive and pass upon the "gold standard act of 1931." It required the upper house only a few minutes to pass the bill through all its stages, and was then automatically approved without a division.

At once the royal commission, consisting of Lord Sankey, the lord chancellor, wearing the robes of office which he customarily dons for his duties as member of the royal commission, the earl of Onslow, and Lord Denman, assembled, and the bill was presented for the royal assent.

"Le roi le veult," announced the clerk of the house—and the bill became a law.

Galleries Are Crowded.

Members of the house of commons crowded the galleries of the upper house to witness the historic event. A few minutes earlier they had been summoned from commons to hear the royal commission give its assent.

The bill, which technically suspends a subsection of the gold standard act which since 1925 has required the Bank of England to sell gold at a fixed price, was passed on second reading in commons at 10 o'clock by a vote of 275 to 112, and on third reading about an hour later.

The house was crowded. The prince of Wales sat in the peers' gallery and listened closely as Chancellor Snowden moved the second reading and explained the details of the present situation, together with the circumstances which led the government to introduce the measure.

Cites Reasons for Action.

He cited the chief reasons for the action as follows:

The tying up of British funds in Germany, with its immediate effect on the London market.

Criticism abroad concerning the British government's expenditure in keeping the unemployed on the dole.

And the adverse balance of trade, which he said "has been seized upon and exaggerated."

The new government's inability to command a united front in the house of commons.

The naval unrest "exploited in foreign newspapers, causing general nervousness abroad."

Traces Crisis to Australia.

Mr. Snowden explained that as a result of all this people began to take their possessions away from England, but added that the actual crisis started last May with the collapse of the chief banks in Australia.

The chancellor detailed the action of the Bank of England in obtaining $250,000,000 American and French credits in August, but explained that within a few weeks those resources were practically exhausted and it was at that stage that the emergency national government came into being.

He referred to the additional American and Paris credits of $400,000,000 by saying that they, too, had proved insufficient.

"In the last few days withdrawals accelerated sharply," he said. "On Wednesday it was $25,000,000, Thursday, $50,000,000; Friday, nearly $90,000,000, and in the half day of Saturday over $50,000,000. Altogether during the last two months we have lost in gold and foreign exchanges more than $1,000,000,000, apart from the $250,000,000 of our assets locked up in Germany."

America and France Advised.

Mr. Snowden revealed that the British government informed both the United States and French governments confidentially of Britain's position last Friday.

"We asked their views of the possibility of obtaining further credits," he continued. "In both cases the reply was friendly, but they said they could offer no prospect of further credits. Saturday the situation became more serious, making it quite evident that it could no longer be dealt with except by suspension of the gold standard.

"The Bank of England forwarded a letter to Prime Minister MacDonald and myself, stating that American and French credits were practically exhausted, that heavy demands for exchange in New York and Paris were still continuing, and that in addition there was a drain of gold on the bank to meet demands from Holland. Under these circumstances the Bank of England urged that it was necessary to be relieved of its obligations under the gold standard act.

Crisis Breaks Suddenly.

"Thus, with appalling suddenness the crisis we had striven to avert broke over our heads, and we had no alternative but to suspend the gold convertibility of currency."

The chancellor pointed out that selling of the pound sterling was predominantly in foreign accounts, with no evidence of any substantial export of capital by British nationals. He explained that the unequal distribution of the world's gold supply has long been considered by the British government, which "has taken every possible opportunity to promote cooperation between central banks, with a view to finding a remedy."

Mr. Snowden stated that England would willingly have called a conference, but it was clear that any such proposal would be doomed to failure.

"When the financial history of our post-war period comes to be reviewed, I do not think this country will have anything of which to be ashamed," said the chancellor. "If we have failed, it is because the burdan was too heavy for us. The United States and France together have now acquired three-fourths of the entire gold in the world and are holding it in their vaults, where it lies largely sterile and useless for purposes of promoting international trade. To state this historically does not in any way overlook the help we have recently received from America and France."

Optimistic of Future.

The chancellor stated that he saw no reason why the value of the pound should seriously depreciate "provided our finances continue to be administered with care."

The government's earlier financial measures, including the economy and higher tax program, removed some of the danger attendant with the departure from the gold standard, Mr. Snowden said, again emphasizing that there is no risk of inflation by means of printing presses. He urged every one to face the situation with calmness.

"If you do this, our inherent strength will pull us through these temporary difficulties," he concluded.

Arthur Henderson, former foreign secretary, now leader of the opposition Labor party, arose and announced that he agreed with Mr. Snowden that there is no need for panic and pledged the support of his side of the house.

The house then sped through the necessary legislation and the bill suspending the gold standard passed the third reading without a division about 11 o'clock.

Britain Awakes in Daze.

Britons were stunned when they woke up today to read that their country had gone off the gold standard over night and that the pound sterling was no longer able to look the dollar and the franc in the face. The blow was rendered heavier by recollection of diatribes by Prime Minister MacDonald and Mr. Snowden last week on the absolute necessity of maintaining the pound on a gold parity basis and predictions of dire events if it were allowed to slip.

Now they must readjust all notions so carefully instilled into them and accept the statement that abandonment of the gold standard will really strengthen British trade and finance and enable them to win back again a dominant position in the world's markets which they have lost.

The history of the government's decision is now available.

The statement announcing the abandonment of the gold standard which was issued last night to the British people was drafted and cabled last Wednesday to America and France for observations and agreement. Some slight changes were made and on Friday it was complete and ready for issue.

Reasons for Wait.

It was decided to wait until Sunday for two reasons. One was that it was the first time in 14 years the London Stock exchange opened on Saturday morning, and it was decided to use this short session to test the market. The result was much worse than anticipated. Signs of a panic developed at Berne and Amsterdam, which are always regarded as the sanest and safest bourses in the world, and the losses were much greater than expected.

The other reason was that it was desired to spring the change on the public with the shortest possible notice in order to control banks and exchanges. This was made possible by waiting until late Sunday night and by ordering the closing of the London Stock exchange today.

This afternoon it was announced the closing will be continued tomorrow.

The secret was extraordinarily well kept. There was some slight leak at Berlin, but elsewhere not a word was breathed as to what was coming.

The government is determined to be hard boiled in enforcing the measures, not only against panicky selling of the pound sterling but also against price profiteering.

The new law gives the government power to use any measures necessary to deal with the situation. Already British banks have been ordered to refuse to sell the pound sterling for export except for the financing of legitimate business. Machinery is also being set up to watch retail prices and "scotch" any attempt at profiteering.

No Sign of Disorder.

Outside the London Stock exchange today a great crowd of brokers and clerks, some trying to complete deals, gathered. There wasn't even a sign of disorder and the crowd was in good humor. Only 100 persons gathered at 10 Downing street this morning to watch the cabinet assemble.

One of the first effects of the government's move to end depression is to kill the demand for an election on a tariff issue. The devaluation of the pound sterling has the same effect as a new tariff and with a minimum of trouble. If the value of the pound declines in a short time to $4 there will come into effect a 20 per cent tariff upon American imports, and the same applies to goods from France and other countries on the gold standard. It also means a painless cut in the wage factor in manufactured goods for export, without a corresponding immediate increase in the cost of living at home.

Need to Reverse Flow.

A leading British economist said today that the gold standard system was a siphon which made it inevitable for gold to flow in one direction, and what was needed was some method of reversing the flow.

American banks in London have been asked through Ambassador Charles G. Dawes, who was summoned to the treasury late Sunday night, to observe the same rules about the export of sterling which were imposed on British banks, and all agreed to do so.

At the moment it is impossible to predict just what course the pound will take. Unofficial predictions in London were it would go to $4. Economists and financiers expect to stabilize the pound eventually at about $4.40.

One economist advised that it would be of no use to stabilize it at a higher rate because it is unknown just what the government's plans are about a return to the gold standard. The Times today stated, but gave no authority for the statement, that the gold standard would be suspended only for six months. Government officials declared that whether Britain is to remain permanently off the gold standard or is to return to it depends solely on the trend of events.

See Financial War.

One leading financier said that the period might be much shorter or much longer than six months. The situation is likely to resolve itself into a struggle between industrialists and financiers.

For years the financiers have been on top, and now they have suffered a crushing defeat. Under the gold standard they made profits of millions yearly by banking operations in the city of London, while industrialists were unable to compete in the world markets because of high costs of labor.

Now the industrialists are looking forward to cheaper production, because of the reduction in real wages through the devaluation of the pound, and they will fight to continue this state of affairs. If the devaluation does not go so far as to hurt the working class acutely and does improve employment the industrialists will have to support the working class and the bankers may then meet their Waterloo.

Bankers Receive Blame.

Bankers here are not any too popular at the present time. They are blamed for not hanging out the danger light sooner.

Although the law suspending the gold standard was not passed until late tonight, the Bank of England and all other banks were operating today as if it already were in effect. They will be indemnified by the government for any claims against them.

Some amusing scenes were enacted among Americans in London today who tried to change pounds for dollars. Banks lacking a quotation refused to do so. One home going American who wanted to get rid of his pounds offered them to the Savoy hotel at $4.50 and was requested "to tell another funny story." He will be forced to take his pounds home or spend them aboard ship.

Tourists in Europe Rush to Exchange British Pound for Some Other Currency

BY HENRY WALES.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, Sept. 21.—Great Britain's suspension of the gold standard dominated today's session of the league of nations and caused considerable excitement in the city. Banks and tourist agencies, after telephonic advices from Paris and Berlin that the pound sterling was slipping, refused to exchange pounds, cash English checks or letters of credit, and some even declined American dollars.

London's action effectually paralyzes the league's economic and financial committees' work, and the French minister of finance, Pierre Flandin, abandoned a discussion to race back to Paris to confer with Bank of France officials on possibilities of new credits to the Bank of England.

Sir Arthur Salter, British economic expert, announced that Great Britain intends to stand by her foreign commitments so far as possible and will continue its financial activities abroad "within its means."

Consternation on the Riviera.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

NICE, France, Sept. 21.—A drop in the value of the pound sterling caused consternation all along the Riviera this afternoon with hundreds of English tourists and residents waiting in line before the banks to change their sterling into francs.

A few minutes before 4 p. m. most of the French banks were paying 85 francs [$3.33] for a pound and were not changing more than 10 pounds at a time. Large hotels accommodated their guests by offering 90 francs [$3.53] to the pound. The pound has been quoted under the Paris exchange rate on the Riviera for the last three days.

Paris Forbids Quotations.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Sept. 21.—Following a consultation at the ministry of finance this morning between Minister of Finance Flandin, Gov. Moret of the Bank of France, bourse officials, and private bankers, it was decided that keeping the bourse closed like the stock exchanges of other European capitals would only increase Britain's difficulties, and the bourse was allowed to open shortly after noon.

The government forbids quotations on the pound sterling, but unofficial quotations toward the close of the bourse were around 112 francs [$4.39]. Bourse officials also agreed, before the opening, not to quote any issue which dropped more than 10 per cent. The fact that nearly all issues were quoted indicates the general decline on the Paris bourse was less than expected.

French Fears Calmed.

Gov. Moret issued a quieting statement concerning the French franc.

"France has no reason to be frightened," he said. "Her money is solid. The franc is absolutely impervious to attack."

Speculation was held in check to a great extent by a severe application of rules regarding long term operations established early this year, but which have been allowed to go by the board until now. This set of rules essentially requires refusal of an order for sale on margin which has any other object than to liquidate the position of the buyer and which is not accompanied by 40 per cent coverage. This rule was applied without exception, even in the case of forgign securities.

Minister of Finance Flandin also insisted that orders for cash sales be refused unless accompanied by the stocks concerned, or by proof that the stocks were possessed by the seller. In American circles there was a heavy rush to steamship offices to get the quickest possible passage back to the New York Stock exchange, and brokerage offices were crowded with anxious Americans watching the New York reports. Paris branches of American banks bought pound sterling from clients, as a matter of accommodation, early in the morning, the quotation being 121 francs [$4.74]—the normal is 124 [$4.86]—and the closing slightly above 100 francs [$3.92].

Value Declines in Berlin.

BERLIN, Sept. 21.—(AP)—The British pound dropped to 19.25 [about $4.53] marks here today, against 20.47 marks at which it was quoted Saturday.

Amsterdam Exchange Opens.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

AMSTERDAM, Netherlands, Sept. 21.—The stock exchange, regarded as one of the strongest in Europe, decided not to close today. It was decided this afternoon to reverse a previous decision to close as a result of messages from abroad. The Dutch ministry of finance advised the move.

Sir Henry Deterding today published a statement in reply to rumors about the position of Royal Dutch Shell that the company and its subsidiaries had ample gold and ready cash.

Austrian Cabinet Meets.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, Sept. 21.—The closing of the London and Berlin stock exchanges today plunged all central Europe into disarray.

Foreign Minister Schober was awakened at 2 a. m. by a call from the British ambassador informing him that the London stock exchange would not open. All members of the government were aroused and at 6 o'clock the cabinet met and remained in session throughout the day.

The Vienna bourse was closed, it being Jewish holiday, but early in the afternoon the directors of the exchange decided that the bourse would remain closed until further notice.

The Bucharest and Prague bourses remained open, but strict measures will be taken to prevent speculation. The Belgrade government forbade exportation of foreign currency and the valuta.

Danzig Adopts Gold Basis.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DANZIG, Sept. 21.—The Danzig Free State is heavily hit by the gold crisis in England, since the gulden has hitherto been based on the English pound. The Danzig senate hastily convened, immediately severed this relationship, and placed the gulden on a gold basis.

Brussels and Antwerp Agitated.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Sept. 21.—The Brussels and Antwerp stock exchanges closed for today to prevent disastrous bear speculation. Street brokers arriving at the stock exchange at 12:30 p. m. found the doors closed with the following announcement:

"The stock exchange commission, in agreement with the minister of finance, has decided to close down for one day following a similar measure in London, Berlin, and Copenhagen."

This afternoon leading Belgian bankers conferred with the Belgian prime minister, Jules Renken, regarding the situation brought about by the English financial crisis.

Pound Drops in Montreal.

MONTREAL, Que., Sept. 21.—(AP)—As anticipated, when Great Britain temporarily renounced the gold standard quotations of sterling exchange declined sharply here today. The closing figures on the Montreal market were; Demand, $4.56⅝ to $4.56 15-16; cables, $4.57 15-16 to $4.58.

Holiday in India Today.

BOMBAY, India, Sept. 21.—(AP)—All local governments have declared tomorrow a public holiday in view of possible adverse reactions to the British financial situation. The action was requested by the Indian government.

MORGAN CALLS ENGLAND'S MOVE 'HOPEFUL EVENT'

Financier Optimistic Over Nation's Future.

(Copyright: 1931: By the Associated Press.)

LONDON, Sept. 21.—J. P. Morgan broke his almost ironclad rule against talking for publication today to say that England's latest move to solve her financial difficulties seemed to him to be not a discouraging but a hopeful event.

J. P. MORGAN.

While most of the world became excited upon learning that Great Britain had decided to temporarily suspend her gold standard, the financier received a correspondent in his private office here and expressed his optimism.

Sees Restoration of Trade.

"This step seems to me," he said, "to be the second necessary stage in the work of the national government, the first being the balancing of the budget.

"The completion of the government's work will be the restoration of trade in this country.

"This being the case, it seems to me to be a hopeful and not a discouraging event, and one which brings the great work of the government much nearer to accomplishment."

The statement was solicited from the banker and was not volunteered by him. He discussed the financial situation for upward of an hour and the correspondent left with an impression that while Mr. Morgan did not discount the seriousness of Great Britain's predicament, he was convinced that she would win her way through.

Interviewed in Private Office.

The interview took place in the financier's private office in the London headquarters of Morgan, Grenfell & Co., which nestles at the end of the tiny cul-de-sac called Great Winchester street, near the Bank of England.

Mr. Morgan's room was cozy with its blazing open fire, but wholly unostentatious. A fine walnut wainscoting and furniture of the same wood gave a touch of richness to the room, but the only item which spoke of opulence was a box of his famous special cigars.

It was with considerable trepidation that the correspondent ventured into Mr. Morgan's bank after making an appointment by telephone, but the banker cast aside an almost inviolable rule, which his father had before him, against seeing newspaper men, and received his visitor graciously.

Laughs Out Welcome.

He came out to the reception room and stuck out his large, warm hand as he laughed a welcome. Then he hospitably pulled his guest into the private office and installed him in a chair beside the walnut desk.

In appearance Mr. Morgan seemed more than a financier, rather a wholehearted country gentleman type, the sort that rides to hounds and graces the head of the board of his baronial hall like Cedric, the Saxon of old.

Throughout the interview Mr. Morgan kept flashing a friendly smile. There is nothing pompous about Morgan. On the contrary he gave the impression of being a rather retiring individual who is afraid he may bore his guests by talking too much.

Twice he apologized for what he was pleased to describe as hopping about from one subject to another. He hoped he had not confused his guest. And there was not any doubt that he meant what he said, although he had drawn a clear picture of what was going forward.

Although it is not permitted to quote all he said, he did not express any pessimism and he added a word of tribute for the character and stability of the English people.

FRENCH PREMIER ACCEPTS HOOVER BID TO VISIT U. S.

Will Seek Means to Ease World Plight.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Sept. 21.—Premier Laval will shortly visit President Hoover to discuss with him ways and means whereby France and the United States may cooperate with a view to easing the world financial crisis. In addition to the general financial situation of the world an extension of the Hoover moratorium and perhaps disarmament will be discussed.

PIERRE LAVAL.

President Hoover's invitation to Premier Laval arrived this morning. Laval received it from Ambassador Edge with the utmost cordiality, and, while he declared he could not give any immediate reply, he intimated he would present it at the cabinet meeting Friday.

Expect Visit to Be in October.

However, the unanimous opinion among political observers and the press of Paris is that he will accept and will journey to Washington between the local elections at the end of September and the reconvening of parliament, which is tentatively set for Nov. 12.

Laval tonight issued the following communique:

"I received Mr. Edge, who presented an invitation from President Hoover to visit Washington. I begged Mr. Edge to express my thanks at the cordial invitation. I am agreed with the President of the United States that an interview of this nature is desirable for an examination of all the grave problems of the present.

Aftermath of Stimson Visit.

"Although I do not at this time feel at liberty to give a final reply, I take the occasion to stress the satisfaction with which French opinion will learn of Mr. Hoover's invitation."

President Hoover's desire to meet Laval is considered to be a direct repercussion of Secretary of State Stimson's recent visit to Europe. Laval's energetic frankness is said to have made a strong impression on Mr. Stimson, whose glowing accounts of the French governmental chief—the premier being the real head of the government and the president only a figurehead—inspired the President to desire to confer with him directly.

GANG CHASE ENDS AS TWO GUNS ARE JOLTED FROM CAR

What was apparently a gangland automobile chase came to an unsuccessful end last night, so far as the pursuers were concerned, when they lost their weapons of death — a .45 caliber automatic pistol and a sawed off shotgun, both loaded.

The pursuit originated in Ashland avenue, south of Fry street. Pedestrians and motorists noticed two cars speeding up the avenue. Machines veered from their path and pedestrians jumped to the curb.

At Fry street the pursuing machine apparently hit a rough stretch of pavement. In any event the pistol and shotgun tumbled from the car and clanked to the sidewalk. The automobile slacked speed for a moment, the car ahead gaining, and then turned into a side street. A pedestrian picked up the weapons and turned them over to Sergt. Daniel Karkowski of the North Racine avenue station.

Gold Basis for U. S. Money Not in Slightest Danger

Washington, D. C., Sept. 21.—(AP)—The gold standard, brought to the fore today by Great Britain's temporary suspension of payment of gold for currency, is the basis of the monetary system of the United States, adopted in 1900, after the hectic free silver campaigns.

In effect it means that the government guarantees that goods, products, and services may be exchanged for gold or gold equivalent. In this country the unit of value is fixed at a gold dollar, which the law defines as 25.8 grains of gold of .900 fine, equal to 23.2 grains of pure gold. The government has dollar for dollar in gold or eligible paper for all currency in circulation.

Adoption of the standard followed various systems since 1786. That year congress adopted a silver standard and defined the unit as a silver dollar of 375.64 grains of pure silver. In 1792 two units were adopted—one of gold containing 24.75 grains of pure gold and a silver dollar containing 371.25 grains of pure silver. The ratio of gold to silver was 1 to 15 and both were legal tender.

Silver Displaced by Gold.

Various changes were made in the ratios until the gold standard was abandoned during the civil war. Congress in 1873 adopted a gold standard making the gold dollar the unit of value with 25.8 grains of gold .900 fine.

In 1878 congress provided silver dollars should be legal tender. The act of 1900 establishing the gold standard also provided that nothing in the act should affect the legal tender quality of the silver dollar or other federal money.

The law now guarantees that all currency or checks issued by the government or currency issued by any bank will be paid in gold upon demand of the person holding the currency or checks, except silver certificates which are redeemable in silver. Gold, because of its weight, is not much in demand in everyday business transactions.

Gold certificates issued by the treasury are passed out only for their equivalent in gold—that is, when a gold certificate for $10 is paid out by the treasury $10 in gold must be received for it so that back of the outstanding gold certificates amounting to $1,700,000,000 the treasury holds gold dollar for dollar.

National bank notes must be secured by their equivalent in government bonds deposited with the treasury, so that back of the $498,[illegible] in such currency the government holds in its treasury that amount of its own bonds deposited by the banks.

United States notes, known as "greenbacks," are secured with gold dollar for dollar, held by the treasury.

Since adoption of the federal reserve act, the far most important currency is federal reserve notes. The law requires that when federal reserve banks issue currency they must have a reserve of 40 per cent of the amount in gold and 60 per cent in eligible securities or gold so that these notes are secured dollar for dollar before they reach the public.

Reserve Banks over Requirements.

The reserve banks, however, have nearly twice as much gold deposited with the treasury to guarantee their currency as required by law. For $2,400,000,000 in currency the treasury holds $1,890,000,000 in gold for the federal reserve banks.

With a currency system backed dollar for dollar by gold or its equivalent, the treasury holds $2,797,000,000 in the precious metal. On its own account, beside that held against currency, the treasury has $54,603,000 in what is known as "free gold"—that is, gold in its general fund which could be spent if necessity arose. Another $50,000,000 is owned by the government.

EXCHANGE BARS SHORT SALES TO RALLY MARKET

The governors of the exchange backed them up with an edict that was tantamount to an order prohibiting short selling operations for the period of the so-called emergency.

The combined effort was to peg leading stocks around their closing prices of Saturday and restrict losses on the general run to $1 to $5 a share—an amazing show of strength considering the burden the market had to bear.

Many of the highest grade issues of the list managed to register substantial gains in face of the threatened disaster. United States Steel common was bought in tremendous blocks by banking interests and the close of trading found it selling $4.75 a share above Saturday's closing level, or at 58.

Other Leaders Advance.

American Can advanced ¾ of a point, Allied Chemical ¼, Atchison Railway 4 points, American Telephone ¾, Eastman Kodak 4½, Westinghouse Manufacturing 2⅛, and Union Pacific Railroad 5½ points, or $10 a share.

A short squeeze in Reading Railway caused that issue up nearly 26 points in a whirl of frenzied trading, but it later gave up about 10 points of its gain.

Trading assumed the heaviest proportions of the year at times. The tempo in the first half hour amounted to 1,200,000 shares. Around about noon, however, liquidation began to let up and the last hour found the usual amount of operations on the floor with business at a normal pace. The total turnover amounted to about 4,800,000 shares.

Short covering by professionals in the belief that the American exchanges might be forced to close by the flood of selling orders from abroad contributed materially to the efforts of the bankers and the governing board of the exchange to hold enemies of the point at bay.

The order against short sales came in the form of a statement read by Richard Whitney, president of the exchange, at the opening of the session. Earlier in the day the board of governors had met and for a time it looked as though the exchange might not be opened. The matter was in doubt as late as 9:45 o'clock, fifteen minutes before opening time.

Mr. Whitney's statement read from the rostrum was as follows:

"I am authorized by the governing committee to state that in view of the unusual and serious emergency created by the suspension of gold payments in England the governing committee, at a meeting held this morning, resolved that in its opinion short selling during the present emergency would tend to bring about a condition of demoralization in which prices would not fairly reflect market values and, therefore, would violate the provisions of section 4 of article 17 of the constitution of the exchange.

"On previous times of emergency in the past the governing committee has always had the loyal support and hearty cooperation of its members and it is confident that a similar attitude will be maintained at this time.

"The committee on business conduct will require all members to report in detail daily, beginning today, all short positions carried and for what account."

Scene Is World-Wide.

The exchange's final decision to stay open was reached, it was learned, in the face of tremendous pressure not only from abroad but also from exchanges in other cities of this country which felt that it would be preferable to close. Of the foreign exchanges only one was open, that at Paris, and the decision of the governing board of that institution to keep open was largely, it was learned, at the urging of bank and stock exchange leaders here.

Announcing its decision to keep the New York exchange open, the board of governors voted to put teeth in its short selling order by reverting to its demand for reports from members on their short position at the close of business each day until further notice. The exchange adopted this measure late in May when the market was in the culminating stages of the abrupt spring decline. Daily reports were in force for a fortnight, then the board revised its order so that statements of short position were thereafter made once a week. This has been the policy up to today.

Thanks to the board's precaution, opening sales of prominent stocks were no worse than 1 to 5 points off. United States Steel was strongly supported from the very outset and started forward with a rally of 4 points in the first hour. In spite of the banking support the list gradually receded until new low prices for the year were recorded in virtually every department of trading.

As the liquidation began to dry up in the afternoon, however, enough buying appeared to raise prices anywhere from 2 to 5 points above their lows of the day. Railroad stocks came in for particularly good support and good gains were numerous in this group.

Operations on the curb market followed those on the big board. The president of the Curb exchange read from the rostrum a statement concerning short selling similar to the announcement made by President Whitney and the committee of business conduct of this exchange followed the lead of that of the Stock exchange with an order requiring curb members to report on short positions. Price movements, in the main, followed those on the big board.

Bond Market Saga.

The bond market suffered with other security trading marts of the world.

United States government issues all were lower, and in some informed circles it was said that they were being sold to finance artificial support for the British bonds. Rumors of artificial pegging of the market, with refusal to accept or quote bids considered unduly low, circulated freely, but were denied in all official quarters.

POUND STERLING SINKS TO A LOW OF $3.71, THEN RALLIES TO $4.20

New York, Sept. 21.—[Special.]—Removal of the pound sterling from a gold basis in England today precipitated the most severe collapse in the foreign exchange market since the post-war days. Sterling itself plunged to $3.71, an extreme loss of $1.13⅜ from Saturday's closing price of $4.84⅜, later rallying to close at $4.20, a net drop of 64⅜ cents. Other foreign exchanges broke badly with quotations in many currencies purely nominal for a good part of the day.

The far eastern exchanges showed a mixed reaction to the decline in sterling. The Japanese yen and the Indian rupee, which are on a gold basis, declined; but the silver currencies rose with the advancing price of silver, stimulated by this latest blow to the gold standard.

Silver in New York rose 1⅛ cents an ounce to 29¼ cents.

Losses of the continental exchanges were less striking than that of sterling. The French franc, after dropping to 3.85⅛ cents, closed the day unchanged at 3.92 cents. Italian lire broke to a new low for the year at 5.10 cents, off 12-16 points; German marks lost 10 points to close at 23.60 cents; Dutch guilders were down 6½ points to 40.32½ cents; Spanish pesetas fell 20 points to 8.95 cents, and the Scandinavian exchanges dropped from 40 to 47 points.

LONDON CRISIS KEEPS ATLANTIC TELEPHONE BUSY

Washington, D. C., Sept. 21.—(AP)—A great increase in trans-Atlantic radiotelephone service, due to the financial situation in England, caused the radio commission today to permit the American Telephone and Telegraph company to use several additional frequencies.

The A. T. & T. said it could not otherwise accommodate its clients. The commission authorized the company to use for ten days in trans-Atlantic service the frequencies now used in its South American service.

Sues Morgan Bank Over Check for Card Losses

New York, Sept. 21.—[Special.]—A card game on the liner Bremen last May 17 in which Charles R. Dundore lost $32,166 which he paid with a check which he later ordered stopped has resulted in a suit for that amount against Dundore and J. P. Morgan & Co., of Paris, it was revealed today. Henry Dawson, the plaintiff, who Dundore in his answer says was described to him later as a card sharp, as were two other players, named the Morgan firm in his action because the check was drawn on their Paris branch.

Britain Lightens Pay Cuts in Schools, Police and Army

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 21.—After backing down before the seamen of the Atlantic fleet in the matter of pay cuts, the British government has now yielded to teachers, police, and the defense services. Prime Minister MacDonald announced in the house of commons this afternoon it has been decided to reduce the pay of these classes 10 per cent instead of 15 per cent. The 15 per cent cut will still apply, however, to the higher commissioned ranks in the defense services.

MARKET ACTION REASSURING TO U. S. OFFICIALS

American Situation Held Satisfactory.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 21.—[Special.]—Hoover administration officials drew a breath of relief tonight when they learned that the first day of the British financial storm had been successfully weathered on this side of the Atlantic.

The satisfactory behavior of the American stock market was generally regarded as an assurance that the force of the financial upheaval abroad had spent itself before reaching these shores.

With President Hoover and Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon both away from the capital, Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson, Secretary of Commerce Robert P. Lamont, Eugene Meyer, governor of the federal reserve board, and Ogden L. Mills, undersecretary of the treasury, kept in close touch with developments at home and abroad throughout the day. Shortly before 1 o'clock Mr. Stimson at his meeting with the newspaper correspondents recounted the course of the stock market up to that hour and pronounced the situation entirely satisfactory.

Cabinet Meets Today.

The cabinet will meet with Mr. Hoover upon his return from Detroit tomorrow and will discuss at some length various aspects of the action of the British government in abandoning the gold standard on domestic transactions. No action by the administration, however, is looked for at this time, one cabinet member remarking that there is none called for by this government. In his opinion there might be various repercussions of the British action for about a week, by which time the excitement will die away and complete calm in American financial centers, at least, will be restored.

It transpired during the day that the administration had known for almost a week that the suspension of the gold redemption act was impending in London. When the London press was speculating on the significance of the mysterious visit the directors of the Bank of England paid to Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald early last week the true inwardness of their mission was communicated to the state department by Ambassador Charles G. Dawes. In that conference the abandonment of the gold standard was broached by the British bankers as a step that might become necessary within a few days.

MacDonald Sends Message.

On Friday the President received a long dispatch from Mr. MacDonald stating that the Bank of England had used up all of the 250 million credit advanced jointly by France and the Federal Reserve Bank of New York and also had used a large part of the 400 millions credit furnished by J. P. Morgan and other international bankers. The prime minister did not ask for further assistance by America, but he did state that it probably would be necessary for Britain to modify her gold standard policy.

Late Friday afternoon a dispatch from Ambassador Dawes indicated that the crisis was at hand and that the step contemplated probably would be taken within 48 hours. It was as a result of this information that Mr. Hoover summoned Mr. Mellon, Mr. Lamont, and Mr. Stimson to the White House for a conference that did not break up till nearly midnight.

The British crisis and its possible effect on economic conditions in this country were the sole subjects considered at this conference.

The upshot of the discussion in the President's study was the conviction that Britain's abandonment of the gold standard might be awaited with equanimity in this country, that little if any harm and possibly some benefit might be expected to flow from it.

Incidentally it also appears that the American executive and cabinet are counting for about as much in this crisis as their counterparts in London. The house of Morgan, the Bank of England, and the other great groups of international financiers who rule the empire of money are in control of the situation and are telling statesmen what to do and what not to do. Their fiat for the time being was that the British government should do certain things which are being done and that it was necessary for the American government to do anything.

Past Experience Cited.

Treasury officials expressed the opinion that the temporary abandonment of the gold standard by Britain should not be regarded too seriously, pointing out that during only six of the last 17 years has Britain adhered to the gold standard. During the other eleven years a trade of vast proportions was carried on between the United States and the British isles with great profit to this country.

The result of the step, it was pointed out, will be to depress the value of the pound sterling and to raise price levels in Great Britain, which will have the effect of increasing business activity. It is just such reviving business activity abroad which President Hoover is relying on to turn the tide of hard times back to prosperity in this country.

The immediate advance in the price of copper and other raw materials on the London market today was hailed by administration officials as a harbinger of increased manufacturing activity in England which will boost the demand for American cotton, metals, and other products.

May Halt Flow of Gold.

That the suspension of the gold redemption act will have the effect of halting the export of gold from Great Britain is clear to American officials who doubt, however, that the boosting of the British discount rate to 6 per cent will result in any appreciable flow of gold to London. The flow of gold from London has been the result of a loss of confidence by investors in the stability of the British financial structure. So long as this lack of confidence prevails it is unlikely, it is pointed out, that a 6 per cent or even a 16 per cent interest rate would tempt investors back into that market.

One of the proposed reforms in the British currency system which was discussed widely at the time of the return to the gold standard about six and one-half years ago was abandonment of the pound as a unit of exchange.

HIGH COURT GRANTS A WRIT; DOG TRACK WILL OPEN TONIGHT

Chief Justice Clyde E. Stone of the Illinois Supreme court yesterday issued a writ of supersedeas at Springfield permitting dog racing at the Thornton Coursing club.

The track will be opened tonight, President J. H. Ellis announced last night, on confirmation of the Supreme court action. The order was mailed by plane to Chicago last night and will be served today on State's Attorney John A. Swanson by the law firm of Altheimer & Mayer.

Justice Stone's decree vacates temporarily the judgment last week of Judge Michael Feinberg, dissolving an injunction under which the dogs had been running. The injunction had been granted by Judge Brothers. The writ of supersedeas will remain in effect until final determination by the appeal court. The hearing in Springfield yesterday was brought about by Attorneys Harry Olson and Leo L. Weil.

U. S. BUDGET FOR 1933 SETS MARK SINCE WAR DAYS

But Hoover Ponders How to Slash It.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 21.—[Special.]—President Hoover is faced with the alternative of slashing the budget estimates which have just been submitted for the 1933 fiscal year or approving governmental expenditures which would break all records for national spendings since world war days.

Members of the cabinet and heads of bureaus, commissions and other independent establishments have submitted estimates covering their expected needs during the year beginning July 1, next, which far surpass the four billion 119 million dollars it is estimated will be spent in running the government this fiscal year. Although definite figures are not available it was stated in an authoritative quarter that the 1933 estimates top the 1932 estimated expenditures by close to a quarter of a billion dollars.

Prospective Economies Vanish.

The prospective economies announced by White House spokesmen during the series of conferences last June and July have vanished. At that time spokesmen for the President gave out statements indicating savings upward of 150 millions would be effected between that date and the end of the 1933 fiscal year. Just why the new budget estimates should have boosted in the face of the announced savings has not been explained.

No information was available showing just which departments ignored the President's request of last June that the 1933 budget be modeled on the 1932 appropriations. Neither was information available as to what President Hoover plans to do to hold down the 1933 budget to a figure comparable with expenditures this year. Officials close to the President were of the opinion that Mr. Hoover shortly will direct a drastic paring of expenditures which will bring the estimate into line with current spendings.

Administration officials see little hope that next year's spendings can be reduced below expenditures for this year. President Hoover has had parts of the budget before him for several days and is represented as having a hard time deciding how to use the pruning knife with best effect. Though his speech before the Legion at Detroit today in which he asserted that federal expenditures must not be allowed to increase, it is apparent that President Hoover has placed himself in a position where he must find a way to hold down the cost of government in 1933.

1921 Budget Passed 5 Billions.

Unless steps are taken to cut the estimates, the budget submitted to congress this winter will exceed last year's expenditures of four billion 220 millions as well as all other budgets since 1921, when the ordinary expenditures of the government were five billion 538 millions.

As one move to hold down expenditures, President Hoover appeared before the Legion today to stave off passage of additional bonus legislation. The administration also has acted to ward off passage of legislation providing pay increases for certain classes of civilian and commissioned personnel.

The war department announced today that as part of its economy move it would refrain from asking raises for its commissioned personnel until business conditions become normal. Similar action is expected to be taken by the other services. The war department also stated that it stands ready to cooperate fully with the President in his efforts to balance the budget. Its estimates this year, it was said, reflect certain economies that have been put into effect.

Navy Estimates Are Higher.

Navy estimates are higher than last year due to previous neglect of its warship building needs. The best information available today was that something like $20,000,000 will be shaved from the navy estimates, destroyers being hit the hardest. It is probable funds will be provided for but six of the eleven destroyers appropriated for last winter, but for which construction contracts have not been let. In event of a building holiday being effected by the powers the administration hopes to be able to reduce navy estimates by $30,000,000 or $40,000,000.

While some of the funds included in the 1933 estimates represent sums for unemployment relief construction and building most of the items are understood to be for normal operation of the government. Undersecretary of the Treasury Mills is quoted as stating recently that "the normal trend of government expenditure is upward" and that "it is hardly likely, even after eliminating temporary and extraordinary items, that any substantial reduction under the average of the last few years is to be anticipated."

The last three budgets as well as the one for this year averaged above 4 billion dollars. Until last year receipts exceeded even these large amounts. Last year the deficit was $903,000,000; this year it will run a billion and a half, according to current estimates.

WOLF TELLS HIS OWN STORY OF STOLEN MILLIONS

Is Turned Over to State for Prosecution.

broker with whom he kept the account sold him out. His small savings of years disappeared and, he added, he dreaded to tell his wife that he had lost all their savings. Then occurred to him the idea of taking securities from the bank vaults, hoping to win back his losses, and return the securities.

First Theft in 1922.

"I made my first theft in 1922," continued Wolf. "It wasn't large, probably a few thousand dollars.

"I had met Maurice Davis, a customers' man for a loop broker, when I was using my own funds for speculation. A year later he notified me that he was then with Stein, Alstrin & Co. and asked me to open an account with him there. Later on, after I had begun to withdraw securities from the bank, I went to Davis and opened an account under the name of my brother, Henry. He is secretary-treasurer of A. Bishop & Co.

"Although I gave my brother's name I used my River Forest address, and any communications from Davis went to my home. My brother was ignorant of my use of his name.

Continues to Lose Money.

"I continued to keep the Henry Wolf account with Stein, Alstrin & Co. until 1929, always dealing with Maurice Davis.

"The account continually lost money and Davis suggested that I open another account with Stein, Alstrin & Co. under the name of E. Gregory. [Davis has explained that a girl friend authorized the use of her name.] I did this in the desperate desire to win money in some way. I was then involved deeply at the bank. Instead of winning I lost more. At least, I was told that I lost."

Wolf said that in the fall of 1929 Davis communicated with him, either at the bank or at a luncheon conference, that Stein, Alstrin & Co. wished to get rid of his Henry Wolf account because it showed continual loss.

Accounts Are Transferred.

"By that time the loss in that one account was around a quarter of a million dollars," resumed Wolf. "Davis himself saw to the transfer of the E. Gregory account to Frazier, Jelke & Co., and I arranged through David E. Weiss for the transfer of the Henry Wolf account."

Weiss is the tailor who, it is said, handled about $1,000,000 in transactions for Wolf. They had met for the first time some twenty years ago, and later, after a lapse, had renewed their acquaintance while Weiss was operating his tailor shop in the Postal Telegraph building. Weiss later moved to 309 South Clark street, and Wolf frequently dropped in there. Often while he was there, Wolf said, he overheard Board of Trade men discuss deals, and as a result he got the idea, he said, that "Weiss was a smart trader himself."

Tells of Loan of $5,000.

"In 1927 Weiss told me that he was sure he could make a lot of money if he had credit at a brokerage house," said Wolf. "I loaned him $5,000 to open a joint account for us under his name. The $5,000 of course, was stolen security from the bank."

Wolf contends that he was given to understand by Weiss that the account was prospering. The bull market was under way at this period. Attorneys for the bank investigating this phase indicated that the Weiss account did make a large amount of money. Wolf, however, did not profit by this upswing of the market. This fact has puzzled investigators, and yet they have found no record of his realizing a cent of cash in his dealings.

"I kept giving Weiss securities, getting back from him securities that were due, and 'substituting' others," continued Wolf. "Weiss told me not to worry, that if the market kept on going up I would be rich some day. In June, 1929, Weiss gave my wife an automobile, a five passenger Cadillac. He really gave the car to me but it was my wife's birthday, and he thought it fitting to give it as a birthday present. At least, that's what he said.

"Now getting back to Davis' notification in 1929 that Stein Alstrin & Co. wanted me to move or close out my accounts. I realized I couldn't afford to have the account closed because that would mean the selling of the securities. I went to Weiss and asked him to arrange for the transfer of the account and he did so with a customer's man for J. S. Bache & Co.

"The new account was opened in Weiss' name. When the transfer was made I did not get the actual figures, but believe that I owed Stein Alstrin & Co. approximately a quarter of a million dollars in the Henry Wolf account alone."

New Accounts Opened.

About this time, inquiry shows, Weiss opened several accounts, one with Jackson Bros., Boesel & Co., another with Farell Brothers, and others with various concerns. They were in Weiss' name. Weiss completed the transfer of the Henry Wolf account to Bache & Co., Wolf emphasized.

Reviewing the whole period of eight years, Wolf said he simply drifted into embezzlement. The securities seemed just so much paper to him.

"I didn't steal because I wanted money," protested Wolf. "My family never profited by a penny of my crime. It seems a nightmare to me now. Year after year I struggled to keep the records at the bank in such shape that auditors could not detect the extraction of securities. Year by year the work became more difficult. I was constantly in fear of exposure. My wife thought that my health was failing. I was worried every waking moment and got no rest from sleep."

Reveals Theft to Bank.

The denouement came during his vacation in the last two weeks of August, Wolf recalled.

"I felt something was wrong. I telephoned a fellow employé in the coupon department of the bank and asked: 'What's new?' He mentioned that the auditors were going over the accounts in my department, but that everything was O. K. That afternoon the torment of my conscience became more than I could stand. That night I called Abner Stilwell, one of the bank's vice presidents, and my brother, Henry, and asked them to come to my house in River Forest. Then I told them."

Wolf, reiterating that he never profited as much as a penny, also insisted that he alone was to blame. No one else in the bank was involved, he said, and he pointed out that in his dealings with Davis he represented himself as acting for a syndicate. He said he felt better since his expose. "I now am ready to take my punishment," he concluded.

In Prosecutor's Office.

At the state's attorney's office yesterday Wolf maintained a stoical attitude. He refused to talk to a group of newspapermen at that time, but posed willingly for photographers. He was taken to the courthouse after arrangements for his surrender had been completed earlier by Attorney Fred Burnham of Mayer, Meyer, Austrian and Platt, counsel for the bank.

State's Attorney Swanson, after talking to Wolf, announced that the prisoner would not be taken to jail immediately. He will be questioned by Assistant Henry E. Ayers, and later taken before the grand jury. He will be available any any time, Mr. Swanson said. The prosecutor added that Wolf would be indicted for embezzlement, but could not say on how many specific charges. No leniency will be recommended, he remarked.

Meanwhile efforts to avoid losses on Wolf's peculations are in progress in the Continental Illinois bank. The bank was insured with Lloyd's of London under a blanket policy for $2,000,000. The remainder of the loss has been written off out of the bank's excess reserve. However, the bank has filed a claim with Toplis & Harding, Chicago representatives of Lloyd's, for $3,393,154.

This claim does not include $273,744 which has been recovered from brokers. The policy calls for payment in dollars. Thus the suspension of the gold basis in England will not affect the claim.

HOME ROBBED OF $10,000 IN GEMS, POLICE REVEAL

Rogers Park police last night were investigating the robbery of between $8,000 and $10,000 in jewelry from the home of Jacob Alexander of 1420 Sherwin avenue, a woolens merchant. The holdup was committed Sunday when two men, both armed, entered the home and threatened Alice Hicks, the maid. While one man guarded her, the other ransacked the house.

Among the articles of jewelry taken were a pin set with 188 diamonds, valued at $2,500, and a ring which cost $1,700. Sergt. William Miekle is in charge of the investigation.

Another home, that of George Colvin, 7652 Kingston avenue, was looted of $4,000 in jewelry and clothing yesterday. He is head of the Brunswick Tablet company, 8671 Vincennes avenue. The home was entered through a transom. A mink coat, costing $2,400, was part of the loot.

TWO APARTMENT HOUSES COLLAPSE; SCORE TRAPPED

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 22 [Tuesday].—(AP)—More than a score of persons, trapped as they slept, were buried beneath tons of debris early today when two old fashioned apartment buildings crashed into ruins at 4309-11 Walnut street. Two men were killed.

Rescuers, summoned by the roar of the crumbling structures, aided firemen in dragging the injured from all parts of the wreckage. One of the men killed gave his life in trying to save the other. Their bodies were found five hours after the crash.

Virtually every person in the structures was hurt, although early reports indicated only four had been taken to nearby hospitals. The condition of one of the injured, George Jamison, 25, was said to be critical.

SPECIAL AGENT IS WITNESS AT FOSHAY'S TRIAL

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 21.—(AP)—Testimony that for more than two years prior to receivership one of W. B. Foshay's main enterprises called on funds other than earnings to keep up its record of paying regular dividends was presented today in the trial of Foshay and six associates on mail fraud charges.

Charles M. Coble, Omaha, an accountant, a special agent for the United States department of justice, analyzed earnings reports of the concern, Public Utilities Consolidated corporation, chartered in Arizona.

He said that Foshay reports to stockholders showing earnings available for dividends failed regularly to take into account payments to meet interest, depreciation, and amortization. At the same time the company in its own books recognized these charges, he said.

STORE PATRONIZED BY NONUNION MINE WORKERS IS BOMBED

Oakland City, Ind., Sept. 21.—(Special.)—Unidentified men early this morning dynamited Harry Kemper's store and the homes of James [illegible] and William Hard at Somerville, [illegible] miles south of here.

Authorities blame the bombing to labor trouble between miners and operators. The store caught fire and was destroyed with heavy loss. Nonunion miners employed at Somerville [illegible] mine, being operated on a cooperative ownership basis under federal court order, had been trading on credit at the store.

Windows in the business district, the Big Four depot, and [illegible] homes were broken by three [illegible] blasts. One bomb was found unexploded. Although no one was injured, property damage was heavy. The mine was idle today as authorities were investigating. No. 1 mine was blown up several weeks ago.

REJECT IOWAN'S PLAN TO STEADY PRICE OF CORN

Washington, D. C., Sept. 21.—(AP)—The plan of Gov. Dan Turner of Iowa for stabilizing corn prices was rejected today by the farm board.

Emerging from a three hour conference with the full board, Gov. Turner said a substitute proposal was suggested, which the board promised to submit later to himself and the other members of the Turner committee.

It was intimated the substitute involved utilizing some of the existing coöperatives and their elevators.

Two Small Boys Held in Train Derailment

Council Bluffs, Ia., Sept. 21.—(AP)—Two grade school boys faced arrest today in connection with the derailment of a Great Western freight train here last night. Special Agent Lon A. Bigley said today that while a wrecking crew was putting the engine of the freight train back on the track and repairing a track break of 100 feet, the two boys attempted to place some heavy iron bolts on another track nearby. He said the boys would be turned over to juvenile authorities. No one was injured in the wreck.

DISORDERS GROW IN MANCHURIA

Map shows principal centers of disorders in Chinese-Japanese crisis in Manchuria.

Fear is expressed for safety of Japanese in Harbin, far north of original "war zone," where Japanese consulate, banks and other buildings were bombed yesterday.

Japanese troops occupied Kirin, a vital strategical point. The Japanese also completed occupation of Fushun, near Mukden, the Manchurian capital. They also were in complete control of Kowpangtze, controlling railway traffic from Mukden into China proper.

Fighting was reported to have broken out again last night in Peitaying, Mukden suburb. Chinese are also reported to have bombed and burned Japanese properties at Lungchingtsun.

barrassing results for the United States.

Whether the United States will move at once, if convinced a real emergency exists, or await action by one of the other eight powers was not disclosed today, although there were indications that Mr. Stimson is preparing to take steps of some kind. There were reports that the United States already was sounding out the six powers, other than Japan and China, as to a possible course of action, but this could not be confirmed.

Dispatches reaching the state department today disclosed that the Japanese military movement in Manchuria is of a wider character than appeared to be the case Saturday. The Japanese army apparently has seized a number of widely separated points of strategic value. Offsetting to some extent these more serious developments was word received through diplomatic channels to the effect that the Japanese cabinet had acted to halt any further aggressive movement in Manchuria.

Thus far the state department has been following a cautious policy, due to its desire not to take any premature action which would embarrass the Japanese cabinet in its discussions of developments in Manchuria. Apparently it is felt also that should the Kellogg pact be invoked, the Japanese might construe this action as an attempt on the part of this country to place the blame upon the Japanese government for aggression in Manchuria.

The nine power treaty of Feb. 6, 1922, provides for consultation among the signatory powers when the integrity of China is threatened. The parties to the nine power treaty are the United States, Belgium, the British empire, China, France, Italy, Japan, the Netherlands, and Portugal.

CHINA DEMANDS LEAGUE TAKE UP ROW WITH JAPAN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, Sept. 21.—Alfred Sze, Chinese delegate to the league of nations, formally demanded tonight that the league council immediately call a meeting to hear the Nanking government's protest over the Japanese-Chinese crisis in Manchuria. The league tonight called a special meeting of the council for tomorrow.

The Chinese delegate in his appeal to the league charged that Japanese troops, without provocation, on Sept 18 opened rifle and artillery fire upon Chinese soldiers at Mukden, bombarded the arsenal and barracks, set fire to the ammunition depot and disarmed Chinese troops in other cities. He asked that the league act to prevent further development of the situation and determine the amounts and character of reparations due China.

The Japanese delegates tonight said that if Tokio permitted an examination of the question by the league, it will be merely a matter of courtesy Geneva, they said, is entirely incompetent to intrude in the affair, which concerns only China and Japan directly. It is understood that Japan will not permit an investigation by a league committee and has already instructed her delegates on the council accordingly.

JAPAN'S CABINET QUARRELS OVER MANCHURIAN WAR

Mikado Asked to Rule on Policy to Follow.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Sept. 22.—[Tuesday.]—Several events which occurred late last night and this morning resulted in the Japanese-Chinese crisis in Manchuria taking a definite turn for the worse.

The trouble has resulted in a wide open split in the Japanese cabinet, and the entire matter is to be put up to the emperor today for a decision as to the policy Japan is to follow.

Simultaneously with this development, a dispatch from Dairen this morning said the Japanese military authorities had determined to occupy all of north and south Manchuria for several months at least.

Cabinet Ministers Quarrel.

The split in the cabinet developed at an emergency meeting called yesterday to consider the Manchurian situation. War Minister Minami submitted a proposal to send reinforcements of troops from the Corean garrisons. Foreign Minister Shidehara and Finance Minister Inouye vigorously opposed this measure, insisting on a more peaceful course and an attempt to settle the dispute by negotiations with the Chinese government.

A bitter seven hour debate followed at which no decision was reached, and the cabinet adjourned with the intention of renewing the discussions today. Late last night, however, the war minister called on Premier Wakatsuki and informed him that, in view of the gravity of the situation, more troops had been dispatched to Manchuria yesterday afternoon, there being no time to discuss the matter in Tokio. The war minister asked the premier's consent.

Premier Wakatsuki was displeased with the action of the war office in acting without the approval of the cabinet. He will call on the emperor at 9 o'clock this morning and report on the situation.

Japanese Consulate Bombed.

Meanwhile, new disturbances were reported in various parts of Manchuria. The Japanese consulate and branches of the Yokohama Specie bank and the Corea bank at Harbin were bombed last night, allegedly by Chinese, and other Japanese buildings were wrecked. Japanese women and children are reported to be fleeing from the city. Chinese troops from Changchun are advancing on Harbin and anxiety is growing here for the safety of the Japanese residents.

Chinese troops also are advancing on Peitaying, northern suburb of Mukden, where the first trouble between these Chinese and Japanese broke out Friday night following the blowing up of a South Manchurian railway bridge. A force of Chinese was said to have attacked the town last night. Cannon and machine guns were reported to have been employed in the battle.

The city of Kirin was completely occupied by Japanese forces yesterday afternoon, and army units today are moving on the city from two points—Corea and Changchun. Military observers here point out that the occupation of Kirin was a logical military move by the Japanese. With Mukden and Kirin under their jurisdiction, considerable territory adjoining the Corean border is in the hands of the Japanese, and consequently operations by the Chinese on a major scale are held to be impossible.

Japanese Factory Burned.

A part of the 19th Japanese division was dispatched from Corea to Chientao province in Manchuria yesterday following rioting there. The Japanese locomotive factory at Lunchingtsaun was burned and destroyed by bombs. The post office, school buildings, police station and other official buildings were also destroyed. Riots also raged in the town of Chutzchiek.

Chinese troops within the walled city of Fashun, who had stubbornly resisted the Japanese attack, surrendered shortly after Japanese reinforcements from the 9th division arrived from Mukden. Fushun is now completely in the hands of the Japanese.

A dispatch from Mukden said Chinese troops had shot down a Japanese military plane at Hushihtai, about twelve miles north of Mukden.

Information in Tokio today indicated that the quarreling factions of south and north China were planning to end their differences and present a united front to Japan. It was reported that President Chiang-Kai-shek was prepared to grant some of the demands of the southerners in order to secure their support.

Charge Japanese Kill Civilians.

SHANGHAI, Sept. 21.—(AP)—Unconfirmed Chinese press reports today accused Japanese troops in Manchuria of killing many civilians during the Japanese occupation of Mukden and other cities since Saturday.

One report said Japanese airplanes dropped bombs upon Mukden and nearby Sinminfu, while Chinese students who were attempting a demonstration at Mukden were bayonetted. More than 100 Chinese police were killed in Mukden, it was asserted.

Japanese were reported to have set fire to Chinese official buildings at Changchun, where the fires continued throughout Saturday, and some Chinese officials were killed.

Chinese reports said the Japanese were not permitting the Chinese to leave Mukden as they might reveal the destruction wrought there. The Japanese were said to have cut the Peiping-Mukden railway at Kowpangtze, Manchuria.

Six Chinese gunboats on the Sungari river, which runs northward through Manchuria and empties into the Amur river, were said to have been disarmed by Japanese.

Blames Ambitious Militarists.

PEIPING, Sept. 21.—(AP)—The Japanese news agency here had a report today from Mukden that Gen. Honjo, commander of the Japanese forces in South Manchuria, had issued a notification that "violence perpetrated by the Chinese side this time is no spasmodic outburst of feeling, but premeditated action of Chinese authorities who have been accustomed to insult Japan.

"Had this been left unchallenged, Japan's acquired rights and interests in Manchuria most certainly would be overthrown. The people of China are innocent, and ambitious militarists alone are responsible for the incident.

"In view of the heavy responsibility of protecting the South Manchurian railroad, I have adopted determined steps. Since my object is to chastise the authorities and not the people, the populace should engage in their occupations in peace."

RUSSIA ATTACKS U. S. FOR LOOKING ON AS JAPAN INVADES CHINA

MOSCOW, Sept. 21.—(AP)—Pravda, official publication of the Russian communist party, subjected the league of nations and the Kellogg peace pact to a scathing attack today over the invasion of Manchuria by Japan, which it described as "a not unexpected move of Japanese imperialism trying to strengthen its economic and political hegemony."

The paper attacked the Washington government as well, declaring that in the statement of the secretary of state to the effect that the Japanese incident gives no foundation to the charge that the Kellogg pact is violated "the authors of that well known pact trifle with their own work."

[In December, 1929, President Hoover invoked the Kellogg pact in an effort to halt the Chinese-Russian hostilities in Manchuria over the Chinese Eastern railway. Russia replied that she could not permit interference by any other party and considered America's action an "unfriendly act."]

The Japanese invasion was termed by the paper an act of aggression.

"As was expected," it continued, "the league of nations did nothing but listen with satisfaction to the declaration of the Japanese representative. It confirms once more that the league of nations is an instrument of oppression and aggression in the hands of imperialists."

'HEITLER' LETTER NEVER IN OFFICE, SWANSON SAYS

Prosecutor Explains Firing of an Assistant.

Returning from a prosecutors' convention in Atlantic City, State's Attorney Swanson spent his first day in his office yesterday conferring with his assistants and explaining matters that had come up during his absence of a week.

Most important of these were the letter alleged to have been written by Mike de Pike Heitler shortly before his death and the true story of the discharge last March of Assistant State's Attorney Theodore Miller.

Late in the afternoon Judge John P. McGoorty of the Superior court called Mr. Swanson and Miller before him in his office in the county building and asked Miller to make his charges concerning the state's attorney's forces and the police again, that Mr. Swanson might have an opportunity to answer. Miller refused to say anything at all and the conference was speedily ended.

Never Saw the Letter.

Heitler's alleged letter named eight persons, including Al Capone, whom he "would hold responsible" if anything occurred to him. It had been asserted that this letter, although directed personally to Mr. Swanson, got into the hands of Capone.

"I never saw any such letter," said Mr. Swanson, "and neither has Pat Roche, our investigator. There was a letter purporting to tell something about the killing of Heitler, but it was not the same in form or substance as the one that has been published. We get hundreds of anonymous letters every week here. I don't read them all; if I did that's all I could do.

"We try to follow every possible lead in these matters. If the so-called Heitler letter got into Capone's hands from this office and I can prove it, there will be drastic action. But I don't believe anything like that occurred."

Charges $25,000 Is Missing.

Theodore Miller, who is now practicing law, has made an affidavit, forwarded to the Chicago Crime commission, in which he alleged that $25,000 disappeared from the safe in the Rex hotel at 22d and State streets after a raid had been made there by the state's attorney's detectives.

His implication was that the money had been taken after the raid and while police were on guard to see that the safe was not opened.

Denials that there had been any such sum in the Rex safe were made by Assistant State's Attorney Charles J. Mueller, by Detective Michael Ahern and by Attorney John Johntry, who represented George (Tubby) Miller, ostensible owner of the place.

Mr. Mueller said that there were three safes in the hotel, which was a hangout of Dennis Cooney, wealthy Capone lieutenant; that two were open at the time of the raid, and that the third was finally drilled to get it open. It contained gangland records, he said, and less than $1,800 in money.

Only Records Taken.

"We took charge of the records," said Mr. Mueller, "but none of the money or other personal property was taken. Attorney Johntry was present at the safe opening and everything possible was done to guarantee there was no mysterious disappearance.

"The opening was accomplished a considerable time after the raid. We have learned that a total of thirteen policemen at one time or another stood guard over it. If that safe was opened it must have been by one of the owners or some one familiar with the combination."

Attorney Johntry asserted that he and his client had been satisfied with the handling of the money in the safe.

"There was no complaint," he said, "and if there had been $25,000 there and only $1,780 or so found you would have heard me shouting about it from the tops of the houses."

Charge Women Are Beaten.

According to Mr. Mueller, there had been serious complaints about the way Miller treated some of the women who were arrested in the Rex raid. After they had been taken to the state's attorney's office, it is alleged Miller beat several of them on their bare skins with a paddle and with his belt.

He was not dismissed for this escapade, Mr. Swanson said, although it was considered highly improper and caused Assistant State's Attorney Mueller to request that Miller leave his particular department.

"We fired Miller," said the state's attorney, "because no one could get along with him. After a series of disagreements with other assistants, Miller had a fist fight with Assistant State's Attorney C. Wayland Brooks. He was consistently a trouble maker and investigation showed that he had told Mr. Brooks' neighbors that Brooks' young son was an unfit person for their children to play with.

"The Rex hotel raid occurred in January, and I let Miller go in March, although he asserted I couldn't fire him because he had a sponsor. He simply did not fit into our organization. Everybody else on the staff complained about being unable to work with him."

POWERS WILL STAY IN PRISON UNTIL HIS CASE GOES TO TRIAL

Clarksburg, W. Va., Sept. 21.—[Special.]—Harry F. Powers, mail order Romeo, will remain in the West Virginia penitentiary at Moundsville until Judge C. Southern orders his return for arraignment in Criminal court.

Howard C. Lee, attorney general, ruled today that no question of law was involved over the admission of Powers to the penitentiary without a mittimus. It is not unusual, Lee added, for prisoners to be removed to the penitentiary when their safety in other jails is endangered.

Powers must be present in court when a grand jury indictment for murder is returned, it was stated. There is considerable speculation today on whether Judge Southern will grant a change of venue following attempts Sunday morning to storm the jail and [illegible] Powers."

Mrs. Luella Powers, wife of the confessed slayer of five, was the storm center today. She asked for police protection early this morning when scores of automobiles passed her house, many pausing for a short time while some one pointed out the home of the Bluebeard. Chief C. A. Duckworth detailed a motorcycle policeman to ride past her home at frequent intervals. No threats have been received by the red haired woman recently.

HUNT BOMBING CLEW IN UNION INSURANCE PLAN

Find Electricians' Scheme Has Its Enemies.

Investigation of the early Sunday bombing of the home of William F. Cleary, financial secretary of the electricians' union, appeared to be at a standstill yesterday. Police blamed internal strife in the union for the damage done to the bungalow at 6240 North Campbell avenue, but were unable to offer any evidence.

Michael J. Boyle, business agent of the union, admitted that he was conducting an investigation of his own, but would not say whether he knew of a possible motive. "Your guess is as good as mine," was his only comment.

Cite Insurance Plan.

In addition to the union and police investigation, the racket bureau of the state's attorney's office is conducting a searching scrutiny of the union affairs for motives. Another theory as to the trouble in the union, which has resulted in bombings and the murder of Mortimer Enright, union official and school board employé, was advanced by Edwin Duffey, assistant state's attorney.

"The union has been conducting a plan of unemployment insurance," he said, "and in that is the possible cause. Several members of the union now owe hundreds of dollars which they are obligated to repay in payments of 10 per cent. Some of these men contend that, having paid high union dues over a period of years, the union is obligated to care for them at the present time and insist they will not repay the loans. This attitude has promulgated intense strife and high feeling against the union officers."

Boyle Defends Plan.

Boyle admitted that some members of the union were objecting to the repayment of loans but did not think the motive for the Cleary bombing lay there.

"Cleary had nothing to do with the disbursement of the fund," he said, "and the handling of the fund presented no grounds for legitimate objections. The books are open for examination at any time. If other organizations followed our plan there would be less unemployment trouble."

Other union officials could only suggest "the general unemployment situation resulting in a feeling of unrest and irritation among members who are unemployed." Clearly refused to discuss the bombing. "I have no ideas about it," he said.

Heavy Burden on Members.

Members of the union have stirred up considerable strife over the employment insurance plan. The assessment in addition to their regular dues, they claim, puts a heavy burden on the members. An additional assessment of $5 per week per member, made at a special meeting Thursday, has added to the trouble.

Each member is compelled to pay $5 a week into the union treasury until he has purchased 10 shares, at $50 each, in a building and loan association. Complaints were received that the matter was pushed through by henchmen of the officials without giving the members a chance to vote.

"The plan is perfectly legitimate," Boyle said, "and in accord with what other building and construction organizations have done. Under this plan we can provide profits for our own men. As for rushing it through, the hall was crowded with members and any one could talk."

Chief John Norton of the detective bureau, who rushed to the scene of the bombing, promised a thorough investigation.

LINDBERGHS FLY OVER 500 MILES OF FLOODED CHINA

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

NANKING, Sept. 21.—Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh today made the first of a series of aerial surveys to aid the Nanking government in coping with the flood problem. They surveyed more than 8,000 square miles of flooded area in northern Kiangsu province east of the Grand canal and north of the Yangtse river.

The Lindberghs, with Mrs. Lindbergh piloting most of the time, flew more than 500 miles in four hours and forty minutes. They brought back definite data revealing that the devastated area was one-third larger than it had hitherto been believed. This showed that the sufferers in this area totaled 8,500,000 instead of 4,000,000 people, as had been thought.

Col. Lindbergh reported that with the exception of two small cities, the walls of which have held, the only signs of human life were occasional refugees on knolls and many white sailed junks sailing across what was one of China's richest farming regions.

Lounging at the detective bureau, the captured men gave little information about themselves and none concerning the shooting.

Former Alderman John H. Johntry, an attorney, appeared at the bureau in the evening. He demanded the release of the pair and when this was denied he said that he would get a writ of habeas corpus for them this morning.

On May 29, 1930, Hunt was arrested at Berwyn and Ashland avenues carrying a golf bag which contained a sawedoff shotgun. It was said then that a car full of gangsters were seeking to kill George [Bugs] Moran and his pal, Leo Mongoven.

Forsythe was arrested as a suspect in the murder of Alfred Lingle but witnesses did not identify him.

MANY RAID CASES

Claudia Woods, notorious as a resort keeper in Chicago for thirty years, was one of those seized yesterday in the raids upon disorderly houses staged by police. She was locked up after Policeman George Barnes had visited her place at 3340 South Michigan avenue and she had accepted a $20 bill from him.

As a result of a week-end vice clean-up raids, 252 cases were set for hearing yesterday before Municipal Judge Howard Hayes in the Morals court.

The judge imposed more than 100 fines on keepers and inmates, the fines ranging from $1 to $50. One keeper, Jack Jones, 24 West Goethe street, received the severest sentence, being given six months in the House of Correction. The judge discharged a number of women who said they had been forced into prostitution because of poverty.

Capt. John Stege continued his raids upon policy games on the south side.

A police surgeon yesterday began the examination of 134 policemen who are over 65 years old, the retirement age. Any policeman found physically unfit will be ordered to retire on pension.

CASUAL FOUND DEAD IN CELL.

James Loftus, 41 years old, a casual, arrested Saturday for intoxication, was found dead yesterday in his cell at the Des Plaines street police station.

BOY, 15, KILLS IN HOLDUP AND GOES TO CHURCH

Claims He Sought Funds for School Books.

Perry Swank Jr., 15 years old, of Creston, Ind., moved last week into the sophomore class of the high school at Lowell, a neighboring village.

Family funds were low and his continuance in school was imperiled by lack of money to pay for his books. To get funds he went out Sunday evening and committed a robbery and a murder.

The man he killed was Eugene Duckworth, 69 years old, a former town marshal of Lowell, a town of 1,200 population on the Monon railroad, only a few miles from Crown Point. Duckworth was alone in his gasoline filling station at the north edge of Lowell when young Swank, carrying a pistol, walked in at dusk.

Gets $40 from Pockets.

When he was commanded to turn over his money the ex-marshal resisted the high school youth. Swank fired twice. Once he missed. His second bullet struck Duckworth in the head. After he had fallen the student searched his pockets, took $40 and his keys, and went out, carefully turning out all lights and locking the door.

Swank then walked three miles north to his home at Creston. On the way he tossed the pistol and Duckworth's keys into a creek. Once home, he secreted the money and went to a church service in Lowell. The service gave him a touch of remorse and when he returned home he burned the currency.

"It was tainted with blood," he said last night as he smoked a cigaret in the jail at Crown Point.

"Kick Out of Murder Job."

The body of Duckworth was discovered about three hours after the killing, and a young girl told Sheriff Roy Holley of Lake county that she had seen Swank, whom she knew, leaving the place alone. At about 2 a. m. yesterday the sheriff went to the youth's home and took him a prisoner.

The youth readily confessed the killing, saying with a smile that he had "a little kick out of that murder job." He showed the sheriff where he had hidden Duckworth's wallet in a stove at the church he attended. And he declined to say that he was sorry for what he had done, even after viewing the body of the victim.

Member of Football Team.

Teachers at the high school said that Perry, a well built, rather handsome boy with dark curly hair, was an average student and passed creditably last year. He was a member of the high school football team.

"I ordered this year's books at the drug store," was his explanation, "and I didn't have the money to pay for them. A robbery looked like the only way to get it. He shouldn't have resisted."

Tired of Living, Jobless, He Hangs Self at Home

Seneca Haviland, 51 years old, 14905 Marshfield avenue, Harvey, had been despondent over failure to find work. Yesterday he hanged himself in a garage in the rear of his home. In his purse was found a note, unaddressed. "I am tired of living and here goes nothing" was his last message.

HOOVER POINTS PATH OF SERVICE TO LEGIONNAIRES

Some Veterans Shout "We Want Beer!"

the President entering the hall, a cheer went up and was echoed at once in the thousands of other throats. The singing died unheard.

The President advanced at once to the rostrum, where National Commander Ralph T. O'Neil was standing, and they both waited while the Legionnaires did their homage. When it had quieted, Commander O'Neil stepped to the microphone.

"Comrades of the American Legion," he shouted, "the President of the United States."

Mr. Hoover was smiling broadly; quite evidently the reception had gratified him. There had been rumors that the Legionnaires might receive him coolly and some pains had been taken to see that no affront might be given by some few disgruntled ex-service men. The hall was not filled entirely with Legionnaires. More than 7,000 seats were occupied by the general public.

Interrupted by Applause.

He was frequently interrupted by the applause of his audience. He won his heartiest approbation when he said:

"The first stone in the foundations of stability and recovery, both at home and in the world, is the stability of the government of the United States. It is my purpose to maintain that stability and I invite you to enlist in that fight."

When the President finished and had left the hall with the cries of "We want beer!" ringing behind him, he was driven directly back to his special train. The train left at once for Washington.

Then the convention took up the report of the rules committee, which opened the way for an expected long and violent battle on the convention floor on the subject of prohibition. One rule proposed, No. 19, would have limited debate on any one subject under consideration by the convention to two hours.

Cloture Rule Defeated.

After the report was read, E. L. Lindell of Minnesota, state commander, took the floor and moved that rule 19 be stricken from the report.

"There are issues, perhaps one issue, to come before this convention which are of such vital importance that the Legion, in all sincerity and honesty, should not limit its members in discussion of it," Lindell said.

He did not mention what issue he referred to, but in interviews granted before and after the session he said he meant the prohibition question.

"It is time the Legion expressed itself definitely on what it thinks of prohibition," he said.

A Floridan, member of a delegation which has proposed a resolution condemning the Volstead act, was on his feet seconding Lindell's motion.

The cloture rule was eliminated by an almost unanimous vote.

Mayor Anton J. Cermak of Chicago and several of his followers appeared on the convention platform, and Commander O'Neil deviated from the set program to permit Chicago's mayor to be introduced.

A salvo of gun shots, blank cartridges, greeted Mr. Cermak, and brought a laugh to his lips as well as to the convention. The mayor invited the Legionnaires to stage their 1933 meeting in Chicago during the World's Fair.

Newton D. Baker Speaks.

Earlier in the day Newton D. Baker, secretary of war in the Wilson war cabinet, had spoken before the Legion convention. He, too, was warmly greeted. Mr. Baker has been advanced in some quarters as a likely contender for the Democratic nomination for President.

"Since the world war," said Mr. Baker, "there has been an increasing spirit of somewhat narrow nationalism in the world built around this famished desire for security, and the most difficult problem which statesmanship faces in the modern world is to bring about some form of disarmament, some modification of this tremendous burden laden upon the backs of men constantly to build and enlarge the armaments for war. Before there can be that sort of disarmament, before nations will be willing to beat their swords into pruning hooks, it will be necessary that there be a spiritual disarmament.

"Somebody in the world, some nation in the world must be big enough and brave enough to say to the rest of the world, 'We not only demand peace but we intend to have it.'"

Telegrams Commend Speech.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 21.—[Special.]—The nation's reaction to President Hoover's plea to the American Legion at Detroit to join him in keeping down governmental expenditures was favorable, judged by the tenor of hundreds of telegrams received today at the White House. Commendatory messages from all parts of the country began to come in soon after the President had concluded his address.

TEXT OF PRESIDENT HOOVER'S ADDRESS TO AMERICAN LEGION

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 21.—[Special.]—The text of President Hoover's speech before the national convention of the American Legion here today follows:

"My fellow countrymen of the American Legion:

"It is a pleasure to accept the invitation of your commander to attend your convention. I am led to do so at a time of most pressing public duties because I wish to lay frankly before you important facts which I am sure you will wish to have, and I wish to point to an opportunity of service which you can give not alone to your members but to the country at large.

"I need not recount that the world is passing through a great depression fraught with grueling daily emergencies alike to men and to governments. This depression today flows largely from Europe through the fundamental dislocations of economic and political forces caused by the great war, in which your service brought bloodshed to an end and gave hope of reconstruction to the world.

"Our economic strength is such that we would have recovered long since but for these forces from abroad. Recovery of the world now rests and awaits in no small degree upon our country, the United States of America. Some individuals may have lost their nerve and faith, but the real American people are digging themselves out with industry and courage. We have the self-containment, the resources, the manhood, the intelligence, and by united action we will lead the world in recovery.

"The American Legion, born of world emergency, wields a great influence throughout our country because it speaks for a generation which has proved its citizenship by offering its all to its country. You of the Legion have a peculiarly sacred stake in the future of the country which you fought to preserve. You have proved your devotion in camp and battle. You have built up your organization to serve in peace as well as in war.

Government Faces Deficit.

"You are aware that during the last year our national expenditures have exceeded our income. Today the national government is faced with another large deficit in its budget. There is a decrease in the annual yield of income taxes alone from $2,400,000,000 in the years of prosperity to only $1,200,000,000 today. Simultaneously, we are carrying a high and necessary extra burden of public works in aid to the unemployed, in aids to agriculture and of increased benefits and services to veterans.

"In these circumstances I am directing the most drastic economy in every nonvital branch of government, yet the essential services must be maintained. These obviously include continued provision for our disabled veterans and the continuation of our present programs of work for the unemployed and aids to agriculture.

"Whatever the arguments made, do not be misled by those who say that we need only to tax the rich to secure the funds we need. We must face the absolute fact that the rich can be taxed to the point of diminishing returns, and still the deficit in our ordinary and necessary expenditures would not be covered even upon a basis of the utmost economy. Make no mistake; in these circumstances it is those who work in the fields, at the bench and desk who would be forced to carry an added burden for every added cent to our expenditures.

"Whatever the deficit may be and in whatever manner it may ultimately be met, every additional expenditure placed upon our government in this emergency magnifies itself out of all proportion into intolerable pressures, whether it is by taxation or by loans. Either loans or taxes beyond the very minimum necessities of government will drain the resources of industry and commerce and in turn will increase unemployment.

Reaches Limit of Safety.

"Such action can easily defeat our hopes, our plans, and our best efforts for the recovery of our country and so indefinitely delay the return of prosperity and employment. We can carry our present expenditures without jeopardy to national stability. We can carry no more without grave risks.

"The imperative moment has come when increase in government expenditures must be avoided, whether it be ill considered, hasty, or uninformed legislation of any kind, or whether it be for new services meritorious in themselves. Any alternative will strike down the earnest efforts of the citizenry of our nation to start us back upon the economic paths to which we must return if we and our children are to have the destiny which every one has the right to hope and the heart to give to them.

"During the last week your national commander and the members of the Legion's employment committee came to me and offered to the nation the combined strength of your 1,000,000 men and your 10,000 posts to help in relief over the winter. I here accept that offer with the thanks of the nation in the fine spirit in which it was submitted.

"But there is today an even greater service to our country. That is the determined opposition by you to additional demands upon the nation until we have won this war against world depression. I am not speaking alone of veterans' legislation which has been urged for action at this convention, but I am speaking equally of demands for every other project proposed in the country which would require increased federal expenditure.

"It is an attitude and an action toward the whole field of government expenditures that is before us.

Must Keep Stable Government.

"The first stone in the foundations of stability and recovery, both at home and in the world, is the stability of the government of the United States. It is my purpose to maintain that stability, and I invite you to enlist in that fight.

"The country's need of this service is second only to war. I invite you to study the relation of their governmental finance to the daily welfare and security of every man, woman, and child in the history of Europe during the last six months alone. It is for us to observe these lessons and to be helpful, but our first duty is to the people of the United States. Nothing would give a greater glow of confidence to our country today than your enlistment and the vigorous support you can bring to this effort to prevent additional burdens on the government from any quarter whatsoever.

Appeals to Patriotism.

"You would not have the President of the United States plead with any citizen or any group of citizens for any course of action. I make no plea to you. But you would have your President point out the path of service in this nation. That I am doing now.

"My mind goes back to the days of the war where you and I served in our appointed tasks. At the end of those years of heart sickness over the misery of it all, when the peace came, you and I knew that the wounds of the world were unhealed and that there would be further emergencies still before our country and the world when self-denial and courageous service must be given.

"Your organization was born at that time and dedicated to that service by the very preamble to its constitution. No man can doubt the character and idealism of men who have gone into the trenches in defense of their country. I have that faith.

"This is an emergency and these are the times for service to which we must put full heart and purpose to help and not retard the return of the happy days we know are ahead of your country and mine.

"With the guidance of the almighty God, with the same faith, courage, and self-sacrifice with which you, backed by the nation, won victory fourteen years ago, so shall we win victory today."

ASK any Atlantic traveller what it is that makes the French Line so popular—he (or she) will tell you, "Atmosphere." Ask any steamship bureau what it is that put so many first-class and cabin passengers on French Liners in 1931—they will say, "The French Line atmosphere; everybody loves it. Any line crosses the ocean fairly fast—but people have such a good time on the French ships."

What is this atmosphere?

It's the sort of people you meet aboard, for one thing—people of substance and station, wit, ability, style and character. For another thing, it is the amazing food—prepared by cooks trained in great Paris restaurants. And it's the stunning decorations, at once brilliant and restful. And the diversions on board—sports and games and tournaments and fêtes and parties. And the exquisite comfort of the cabins, and the swift excellence of the service, and the table wine which appears without asking, and the consummate ability of the staff to organize people to enjoy themselves without feeling organized. "French Line passengers," they say themselves, "are treated as guests" of staunch sailors trained in hospitality.

AIR CRASH KILLS BANKER BRADY AND A SPECTATOR

Pilot Hall of Crusader Miraculously Escapes.

New York, Sept. 21.—[Special.]—Col. Peter J. Brady, banker, labor leader, and aviation enthusiast, was killed today when the plane in which he was a passenger crashed through a housetop at West Brighton, Staten Island. Mrs. Mary Tritto, 60, who lived in the house, was burned to death and two small boys and one man sustained slight lacerations from flying debris. The pilot, James Goodwin Hall, the "flying broker" who recently established several cross-country speed records, had a miraculous escape from both death and injury.

Just as the plane struck the house Hall, while trying to get out of his cockpit, was catapulted free. His parachute opened partly and the flyer was buried across two housetops into a church yard to alight easily and unhurt.

A hasty investigation indicated the accident came about through low flying in a dense fog.

Alters Course in Fog.

Hall and Col. Brady had left Floyd Bennett field bound for Detroit, where Brady was to have addressed the American Legion convention as a representative of organized labor. They had not been gone two minutes from the airport when they encountered a layer of fog. The course was altered to the south and Brady turned on his blind flying instruments and started to climb up through the fog.

"I had gained an altitude of approximately 1,600 feet," Hall said, "when I noted that my rate of climb indicator showed descent. My air speed was also increasing. One of my instruments showed level flight. I realized at this point that it had gone out of commission. I cut my switch, closed the throttle, and put all the controls in neutral."

Pilot Is Catapulted.

The pilot knew his plane was out of control and the time had come to jump.

"I unfastened my belt and turned around to signal Mr. Brady that we would have to jump," he went on. "I stood up in the cockpit and then I was catapulted out of the plane."

Col. Brady, Hall told the investigators, had pushed back the slide over the cockpit and seemed to be having trouble opening the hatch.

"I stood up in my seat to reach and to help him open the hatch when the plane struck either a telephone pole or a building. It was catapulted through the air. I do not remember releasing my parachute rip cord. The parachute did not fully open. It caught on the edge of a brick building and I was thrown through some electric wires which must have broken my fall."

Liquid Fire Hits Woman.

The plane, still moving at the rate of three miles a minute or faster, struck the roof of Mrs. Tritto's home. An explosion followed instantly and burning gasoline was sprayed all over the cottage. The liquid fire fell into the garden below enveloping Mrs. Tritto, who died before she could escape from the yard.

Col. Brady's body was picked up after firemen had put out the flames about fifty feet from the spot of the wrecked plane which fell into the yard after striking the roof. The shroud lines of his parachute were charred.

Plane Falls in Lake; 3 Hurt.

Mount Clemens, Mich., Sept. 21.—(AP)—The pilot and two passengers were seriously injured today when a plane fell into Lake St. Clair. They were rescued and removed to a hospital. The pilot was James Singelyn, owner of the Lake Shore airport. The passengers were Geraldine Cadotte, 17, and Walter Hyman, 20, of Detroit. The plane fell about 300 feet and landed in five feet of water.

'PREVAILING RATE OF WAGE LAW' IS RULED ILLEGAL

And New Highway Tieup Is Created.

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 21.—[Special.]—The state prevailing rate of wage law was held unconstitutional here today by Circuit Judge Charles G. Briggle of the Sangamon county Circuit court. The court's views were expressed verbally and the order will be prepared tomorrow.

The opinion was given in an injunction suit to test the new law filed here in the name of Harry Mayhew, Springfield taxpayer.

Judge Briggle also gave a verbal ruling in a quo warranto proceeding brought by the Illinois Association of Highway and Municipal contractors attacking the manner in which the wage appeal board was appointed. A contractor member from the association was not selected for that body. Judge Briggle held that the board was appointed legally.

If the law is held unconstitutional by the Illinois Supreme court, where both cases will go on appeal, the manner in which the board was appointed is deemed of little consequence.

Creates a New Tieup.

Illinois highway department officials will confer with representatives from the attorney general's office to determine what steps to follow in the light of the ruling by Judge Briggle.

Approximately $3,000,000 of road work on which bids were received Sept. 15 has not yet been contracted for and the state will seek guidance on what course to follow.

In addition the state has awarded contracts on a large share of a $4,543,161 letting of Sept. 8, and the status of this work also is expected to bring inquiry from the attorney general. The Sept. 8 letting embraced 96.8 miles of paving, 26 miles of grading, and 20 bridge sections.

It is possible that in cases where the awards already have been made the work can go ahead pending action by the Illinois Supreme court on Judge Briggle's decision, provided the question of legality is not raised in new litigation.

Will Rush Case to Appeal.

Disposition of the Mayhew suit against department officials, which attacked the validity of the entire wage law, was hurried in order that the case might go to the Supreme court at the October term, which will be convened Oct. 6.

The high court will be petitioned for leave to file the case, by reason of its importance, and have it set ahead on the docket.

The basis on which the law is held unconstitutional is that it interferes with the right to contract, that the law is vague and does not prescribe proper procedure for the appeal board, that it deprives persons who desire to labor of that privilege, and that it is class legislation.

More Contracts Cut.

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 21.—(AP)—Contracts for twelve paving, grading, and bridge construction jobs aggregating $735,113.17 were awarded by the state highway department today.

Paving contracts total 29.10 miles, at a cost of $464,324.97. Two grading jobs that total 10.33 miles call for $116,493.32. Bridge work aggregates $154,294.88. Among them were:

Route 71, paving 10.84 miles Shabbona west to route 70, in Lee and De Kalb counties—Arcole Construction company, Niles Center, Ill.: $160,953.89.

Route 89 C, grading 3.57 miles, east of Henry in Marshal county and Putnam county—Jansen & Schaefer of Pekin, Ill.: $56,880.99.

Route 19, paving and widening north and west of Palatine, Cook county—E. A. Meyer Construction company, Highland Park, Ill.: $73,845.35.

BOARD OVERRIDES ITS PRESIDENT IN VILLAGE WARFARE

When President J. F. Mansfield of the village of Brookfield found himself outvoted last night by two-thirds of the members of his village board he declared the meeting adjourned and walked out with two trustees who are his supporters.

The other four trustees, who oppose his rule, declared the motion out of order, voted to continue the meeting and elected Trustee Henry Young to preside. They then ratified E. J. O'Connor, the incumbent, as chief of police and voted that Mansfield had no power to appoint Nicholas Ferdinand as chief to succeed O'Connor.

Such disorder as occurred at the meeting was quelled by the county highway police, who have been acting as peacemakers during the nine days the village, which is southwest of Chicago on the Burlington railroad, has had two separately appointed police forces. Charles Center Case has been appointed village attorney by the anti-Mansfield faction.

At a meeting of the Franklin Park board last night the trustees voted to retain Ralph Gohrsch as chief of police. Trustee George Barry withdrew a motion to displace Gohrsch after S. E. Baker, principal of the Leyden Community High school, made a speech in defense of Gohrsch.

WALKER COMES HOME QUIETLY; FORBIDS OFFICIAL WELCOME

New York, Sept. 21.—[Special.]—There was no fanfare of trumpets, no bonfires, and no parade to welcome Mayor "Jimmie" Walker back to town from his European junket tonight. The receiving tug Macom, which has been the city's official craft for the greeting of distinguished citizens, remained at her mooring and there was no dinner.

MAYOR JAMES WALKER.

Instead Mr. Walker chose to remain aboard the North German liner Bremen until it reached its pier at 58th street in Brooklyn about 8 o'clock, and from there he went directly to his home on St. Luke's place.

The simplicity of the reception was said to be Mr. Walker's own idea. Elaborate plans had been made to welcome him back, but it is understood that he vetoed them in a long distance telephone conversation from London last week.

Secretary Wilbur Inspects Grounds of 1933 Fair

Stopping in Chicago for a few hours yesterday morning en route to Washington, D. C., Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, secretary of the interior, accompanied by Mrs. Wilbur, made a rapid tour of the grounds of Chicago's 1933 World's Fair. Dr. and Mrs. Wilbur were returning from their home in San Francisco, Cal. The secretary had no comment to make on the abandonment of the gold standard by Great Britain, but did say his observation of economic conditions in the west led him to believe that business is improving.

Pugilist Shot Trying to Break Into Restaurant

Herbie Schaeffer, 27 years old, 4509 Oakenwald avenue, who claims to have been a bantamweight prizefighter, lost a decision yesterday during a battle with Ben Cash, 4231 Lake Park avenue, a watchman. Schaeffer and James Donovan, 24 years old, 357 East 21st street, were attempting to break in the closed Cunningham restaurant at 2222 Indiana avenue, when Cash arrived. Schaeffer aimed a blow at Cash but the watchman ducked and punched back. During the tussle Cash pulled out his revolver and shot Schaeffer in the chest. Taken to the Peoples hospital, his wounded was reported as not serious.

So ASTOUNDING . . it's hard to believe

Imagine a refrigerator that automatically makes ice and produces cold without moving parts or sound, and for less cost than any other automatic refrigerator!

THE FIRST TIME you see Electrolux operate, it does seem incredible. But it's really the simplest thing imaginable.

NO MOVING PARTS. Entirely automatic, yet not a single moving part. No alternate stopping and starting. Constant, steady cold, plenty of ice cubes.

NO SOUND. Absolutely silent. Has nothing to make sound, ever.

ABSOLUTELY DEPENDABLE. Has no moving parts to cause trouble. No vibration or wear. Refrigerant hermetically sealed in rigid steel. Operates by a tiny gas flame and a tiny flow of water. Gas flame completely protected by automatic shut-off.

WORLD'S MOST ECONOMICAL REFRIGERATOR. Costs less to use than any other automatic refrigerator—about five cents a day for both gas and water for the average household size!

See Electrolux at your gas company's showrooms. Sizes from 3 cu. ft. to 20 cu. ft. capacity. Prices no higher than those of other makes. Write for complete information or phone Wabash 6000.

The Fire Eater's use of flame is astounding—but no more so than the way Electrolux uses flame—to make constant, automatic cold without moving parts.

GANDHI TO PRESS LIBERTY FIGHT IN FACE OF CRISIS

"Holy Man" Angry Over "Dilatory Tactics."

BY WILLIAM SHIRER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 21.—Not unaware by any means of Great Britain's plight—in its fight to save the pound sterling, to balance its budget, to restore its trade balance and to allay the unrest in its navy—Mahatma Gandhi, India's Nationalist leader, is prepared to push his claims for Indian independence while the time is ripe.

Last week's diplomatic tilt, in which the government skillfully avoided coming to grips with him, left the "holy man" in a perturbed state of mind.

Irked Over Delays.

"I spoke gently last week," the Mahatma said just before he began his weekly 24 hours of silence. "But I do not see how I can bear much longer this hopeless uncertainty for which there is no just reason. Truly the government is like a sphinx. It is so cautious that it is impossible to learn where it stands."

"What are you going to do about it?" he was asked.

"I want to be patient," he replied. "I realize the obvious difficulties the government is in just now. But we cannot make any progress until we know the government's views and how far it is prepared to go. The government cannot sit on the fence forever."

So next week, according to Gandhi's lieutenants, the Nationalists intend to press their fight. They want a showdown. The more radical ones are already urging the propriety of restarting hostilities now while Great Britain is engrossed in its domestic crisis.

Indians Worry About Rupee.

Six Indian delegates tonight were frankly perplexed as they contemplated the rupee tumbling with the pound, with which it is wedded by law.

Gandhi studied reports of the financial situation carefully.

When Sir Samuel Hoare, secretary of state for India, announced at the round table conference today that the government has decided to maintain Indian currency on the sterling basis, regardless of consequences, he was met with chilly silence from the Indian delegates.

Reserve Tied Up in Sterling.

Practically all of India's entire reserve of £55,000,000 [$275,000,000] is tied up in sterling in London and becomes inconvertible to gold. That leaves nothing but silver rupees in reserve to support currency on the world exchanges.

"Gandhi will probably never agree to the rupee being divorced from the gold basis and going down with the pound," one of the mahatma's advisers said tonight. "The nationalists strongly resent being made to pay for British financial follies twice over—once in losing reserves invested in sterling, and again in having met charges at home at a fixed rate."

Crowds Watch "Eagle" Rest on Church Cross

Crowds collected last evening at 71st street and Calumet avenue to watch a large bird which swooped down and settled on the cross at the top of the steeple of St. Columbanus Roman Catholic church. According to D. J. Laughlin, mortician at 318 East 71st street, the bird is a bald eagle and has been using the cross as a roost for several nights. It was first seen there on Thursday and again on Sunday.

U. S. WILL INFORM LEAGUE IT FAVORS HOLIDAY ON ARMS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 21.—[Special.]—Secretary of State Stimson disclosed today that Hugh R. Wilson, American minister to Switzerland, has been instructed to inform the league of nations armaments committee that the United States is favorably inclined toward the idea of a general armaments construction holiday.

HUGH R. WILSON.

This official pronouncement of American naval imitation views was made immediately after the state department had announced that the United States would participate in a consultative capacity in the sessions of the league of nation's committee which is studying the possibility of arranging a building holiday for land, air and naval armaments.

While Mr. Wilson will be in a position to enunciate the American views on a building truce, he will have no vote in the committee. His instructions are to notify the league of our views on disarmament and report back any plan of action advanced during the discussions. The Hoover administration will then give Mr. Wilson additional instruction.

REALTY DEALERS UNITE TO STAMP OUT SWINDLERS

United action to stamp out swindles in the guise of realty investments was pledged yesterday at a meeting of representatives of various real estate boards and other organizations in the Chicago Real Estate board's rooms. The meeting was called by A. A. Crissey, real estate commissioner of the state bureau of registration and education.

One swindle discussed was the "free lot" scheme in which a prospect is given a worthless lot in a lottery and is then persuaded to trade this lot, with a cash payment, for another piece of real estate equally worthless. The prospect is informed that the value of the property to be sold him is guaranteed by a title and trust company.

H. J. Howe, an attorney for the Chicago Title and Trust company, pointed out at the meeting that neither his company nor any other guarantees the value of property but only the title to it.

Flint Grinell of the Better Business bureau said his organization began investigating these practices several months ago.

"There were twenty-nine of these firms operating then," he said, "but now there are only four or five left. We are driving them out and in some cases jailing them with the coöperation of the state's attorney's office."

Youth, Shot by Farmer as a Melon Thief, Dies

Anton Panazzo, 17 years old, of East Hazelcrest, died in the county hospital yesterday from the effects of a bullet wound he received on Aug. 31 when he was shot by a farmer as he was stealing melons. Peter Singer, also of East Hazelcrest, the farmer, was charged with manslaughter by the Homewood county police and released on bonds of $10,000.

3 BEER FLAT INMATES FINED.

Miss Florence Jordan, 26 years old, keeper of a beer flat at 3037 Clybourn avenue, was fined $25 and seven men seized in the place were fined $2 each yesterday by Municipal Judge Trude.

COLLINGS KILLING LAID TO REVENGE BY DETECTIVES

Hunt Father of Wronged Girl in Two States.

BY TOM PETTEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 21.—[Special.]—It became apparent tonight that revenge was the motive for the murder of Benjamin P. Collings, the yachtsman who was beaten and drowned by two "pirates" eleven days ago in Long Island sound. Mrs. Lillian Collings told detectives who questioned her in her Stamford, Conn., home today that she was confident the old man and the boy who boarded the Penguin were known to her husband.

MRS. LILLIAN COLLINGS.

The belief now strongest in the minds of detectives is that the murder was committed by a father and son in revenge for a wrong done a young girl by Collings, or by some man for whom Collings was mistaken.

What She Tells Officers.

Detective Felix Di Martini and Fred J. Munder, an assistant district attorney of Suffolk county, L. I., questioned the widow from a transcript of her earlier stories, Mrs. Collings, the transcript reveals, told officers:

"You ask me why I deserted Barbara on the Penguin? I thought she would be safe. It was a calm night and there was a full moon.

"Why didn't I call for help? I thought they were bootleggers and would have slain me, too.

"They were expert canoeists. Each had a duffle bag. The older man seemed to feel sorry for me.

"The older man waited until the younger man was gone. There had been little or no conversation between them. They acted as if everything had been pre-arranged. When the younger man left he placed both hands on either side of the canoe and vaulted overboard. It was after the younger man had left the canoe that the older man attacked me.

Sees Lights of a Boat.

"I saw the lights of a boat approaching us. I didn't know where we were. You ask me why didn't I hail it and shout for help. I thought it might have been the boat owned by the men who had thrown my husband, Ben, overboard. I was afraid that it was manned by their friends. If they were enemies and I had shouted, I would have been killed.

"After the man in the canoe pulled alongside my husband leaned over as if to talk to them. Apparently he knew them for he told me to go into my cabin. I heard an argument about taking them to Norwalk and the wounded man. Then I heard the motor start."

Two states are being searched for the supposed vengeance slayer—a gray haired man, father of three children. Detectives today visited schools, villages and farms on either side of the sound in search for information about three children families in the hope of finding a clew.

Alexander Blue, district attorney, said the revenge theory included a youth of 17 and a girl of 13 or 14.

WIFE OF YALE TEACHER AGAIN HELD IN RUSSIA

New Haven, Conn., Sept. 21.—(AP)—Prof. Dmitri Krynine of Yale university, who for the last two years has unsuccessfully attempted to persuade Moscow authorities to permit his wife to join him in this country, today said his application to George Bernard Shaw and Lady Astor in July has resulted in another refusal.

MRS. RAISA KRYNINE.

He received a cablegram yesterday, he said, in which Mme. Krynine told of the official refusal of her application for a passport, and added that she would make another application in a month. She was notified of the refusal Sept. 10.

Prof. Krynine in July sent cablegrams to both Lady Astor and George Bernard Shaw, then visiting in Russia, begging them "in the name of humanitarian principles" to aid his wife to gain a passport to leave Moscow.

NEW EARTHQUAKE SHAKES UP JAPAN; 14 DEAD, 60 HURT

TOKIO, Sept. 21.—(AP)—Mid-Japan was shaken today by another severe eathquake which caused 14 deaths and injuries to 60 in Saitama and Gumma prefectures alone. In Saitama prefecture 150 houses collapsed, including the famous temple of Hikawa in Kumagai.

Landslides interrupted rail travel on various lines and 17 telegraph and telephone trunk lines were put out of commission, cutting off communication with Kobe, Dairen, Kumamoto, and Hakodate. Thirty-two other trunk lines gave way in the metropolitan area.

Seismologists said the quake was the most severe this year. In Tokio and Yokohama thousands were frightened by the shocks, rushing into the streets in near panic.

2 HANDS, 9 FEET AND 10 FINGERS FOUND IN WOODS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Sept. 2[illegible]—Ten fingers, tied together with a piece of string, and two other [illegible] were discovered in a well near Helsingfors today. Numerous limbs have been found in a nearby wood [illegible] Baron von Born, minister of the interior, today visited the scene together with numerous medical experts.

Of nine feet found, it has been revealed that only two are pairs. Scientists doubt the theory that the remains were deposited in the well by members of a gypsy tribe who believe that cutting off the extremities of their dead prevent them from reappearing as ghosts.

The limbs found are well preserved, indicating that they had not been placed there earlier than last month. So far the only clew is a gold ring which was found on one of the fingers.

TROOPS CALLED OUT IN IOWA'S CATTLE REVOLT

Farmers Rout Posse of State Testers.

Des Moines, Ia., Sept. 21.—(AP)—Between 1,500 and 2,000 national guard troops were ordered mobilized tonight by Adjutant General Bailey. The men were to be sent into Cedar county to deal with farmers who today routed a body of state officials endeavoring to test cattle for tuberculosis.

GOV. TURNER. [A. P. Photo.]

The orders were issued at the request of Sheriff Foster Maxson of Cedar county. Bailey said the troops would start for Tipton, seat of Cedar county, tomorrow on special trains.

They will carry full field equipment. Officers in command will be Maj. Gen. M. A. Tinley of Council Bluffs, and Brig. Gen. Park Findley of Des Moines.

Gen. Bailey said the orders to mobilize the troops were issued upon the authorization of Gov. Dan W. Turner. Gov. Turner is now in Washington and Bailey got into long distance communication with him.

Rebel Farmers Triumphant.

Tipton, Ia., Sept. 21.—(AP)—Farmers objecting to compulsory tuberculosis testing of cattle today repulsed a posse of 45 officers and forced them to cease attempts to test cattle on the Jacob Lenker farm, 14 miles south of here.

William Dallas, Cedar county attorney, said he did not have a complete list of men who composed the throng of farmers today, but that one was in preparation. He said he was ascertaining against which ones an injunction previously had been issued and that legal action might result.

Learning that the officers, recruited from sheriffs' staffs in surrounding counties, were mobilizing in Tipton, the farmers gathered together a band of 200 and followed the posse to the Lenker farm, where tests were to be attempted.

Lenker has been one of the consistent objectors to the test, provided for under a law by the Iowa general assembly in 1929.

When the posse stopped its automobiles in the Lenker farm yard, the farmers surrounded the cars and dared the officers and veterinarians to emerge.

"Here's mud in your eye," was the comment of one farmer as he tossed a handful of mud at one car. Others followed suit and several windows in the automobiles were broken by rocks thrown instead of mud.

One officer got out of his automobile and was immediately pushed into the mud. Newspaper men who attempted to get pictures of the disturbance were forced from the farmyard.

A horse brought along to round up the Lenker cattle and bring them to the barn for testing was left in the truck in which it had been brought from Tipton, and the posse finally abandoned its plan and returned to this city.

A Smouldering Feud.

The fight of the objectors against the tuberculin test has flared intermittently since the middle of last March.

On Aug. 5 Judge F. O. Ellison issued an injunction restraining the farmers from interfering with the tests. On Aug. 21 the veterinarians were repulsed in attempts to test cattle at the farms of Arthur Fogg, William Butterbrodt, and William R. Hogan.

They were cited for contempt, and Fogg pleaded guilty and was fined $50. The others pleaded not guilty and were released on $500 bonds.

Three Held to Grand Jury on Counterfeiting Charge

Leonard White, 29 years old, 1533 West Harrison street, was held to the grand jury in bonds of $2,500 yesterday by United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker, on a counterfeiting charge. White is alleged to have raised $1 bills to $10 bills. Leon Johnson and Robert A. Kottke, who gave their addresses as Washington Square Park, and who are accused of cashing some of the bills, were held to the grand jury in bonds of $1,500 each, on similar charges.

Kane County Cuts Tax Valuation $4,000,000

The total assessed valuation for 1931 of personal and real property in Kane county is $105,909,907, it was announced in Geneva yesterday by William P. Mettel, chairman of the Kane county board of review. This figure is almost $4,000,000 lower than the 1930 valuation. The assessment placed the value of the county real estate at $81,583,966, and of the personal property at $24,326,000.

SEAWAY BRIDGE WAGE DISPUTES UP TOMORROW

Governor's Board to Hear Protests on Pay.

The appeal board appointed by Gov. Emmerson to settle the labor controversies brought about by the new prevailing rate of wage law—a situation which is halting progress on the Illinois waterway—will meet in Springfield tomorrow. It is hoped that this meeting will result in a quick start on the ten bridges which constitute the unfinished work of the state on the waterway.

Federal engineers are progressing with locks and dams, which are their obligations, and optimism prevails that the waterway may still be opened in 1933, according to Ben H. Miller, superintendent of the project.

The appeal board will meet in the office of Henry H. Kohn, superintendent of purchases and construction, to hear protests on the wage scales for four bridges, three in Joliet and the other on Brandon road, south of that city. If the tangle is solved and a scale agreed upon, Mr. Miller hopes that contracts can be let within thirty days and work started during the winter.

The three Joliet bridges in the current controversy are at Jefferson, Jackson, and Van Buren streets. Three others must be built later in that city—at Ruby, Cass, and McDonough streets—and there also remain the Smith bridge, near Channahan, one in La Salle, and others at Morris and Seneca.

WAITER ROBBED OF $42.

CHENEY'S three new FABRICS

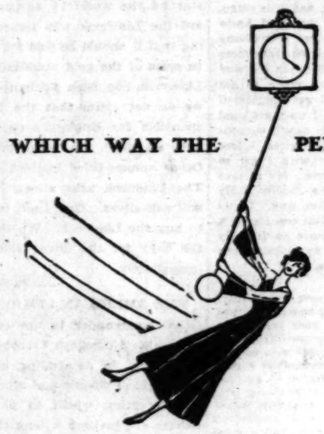
SHOW WHICH WAY THE PENDULUM IS SWINGING



IT'S swinging to quality, but not quality alone—quality plus style. For generations Cheney fabrics have stood for just this important merger—authentic Paris-inspired colors, textures and weaves combined with the faithful quality that holds its beauty throughout a long life. Here they are—these three direction-pointing fabrics:

CREPE MARCANIA* . . a new, all-silk canton faille with a dull, frosty bloom that does grand things to your complexion. Every one of the colors was carefully chosen with an eye to fashion trends and Paris acceptance . . . . . $2.50 yd.

MOSSDELL* SATIN . . . sleek, shining satin with a crepe back that makes it brilliant or dull as your fancy pleases. Colors? Each one is more style important than another . . . . . $2.50 yd.

MEDICI* VELVET . . . a glorious new transparent velvet, with a short, slenderizing pile that does as much for your figure as an 18-day diet. Certainly, it's in black and in other significant colors . . . . . $4.95 yd.

YOU'RE FOOLISH . . . . VERY . . VERY FOOLISH IF you start making a dress without first consulting Cheney's "Fabric-into-Fashion"* posters in the Silk Department. They show you which patterns are best, and which color combinations are smartest for the very silk you have in your hand. And they tell you exactly how much material you'll need, no matter what your size. They're really dress designer and color expert and fashionist rolled into one. And the main reason for their existence is you—and your clothes.

COTTON.

The melodramatic interchange of compliments between the governor of Louisiana and the legislature of Texas seems likely to obscure the fundamental facts of the cotton crisis. Those facts were brought out clearly by Mr. Henning in a recent dispatch from Washington. He showed, conclusively, we think, that the difficulties in which the cotton planters find themselves are only incidentally to be attributed to the prevailing business depression. He traced the present overproduction back to the boll weevil.

When that insect had ruined the cotton farmers in many sections of the old south the government's experts were set to work to find a way to destroy the pests or produce a crop in spite of them. The scientists succeeded in producing a cotton plant which reaches its maturity so quickly that the crop is already baled before the weevil is ready to go to work on it. It looked for a time as if the worst enemy the cotton planters have known in recent times was routed forever.

Unfortunately for the farmers of the southeast, the defeat of the weevil brought new difficulties. The new cotton plant produced a short fiber and therefore an inferior one, bringing a smaller price. In addition, the shorter growing season made it possible to produce cotton in Texas and Oklahoma where formerly the weather had been too severe for cotton culture. The new lands to the west with their enormous cotton acreage, not much less than half of the whole American crop, and their greater use of machinery have all but ruined the old cotton belt.

No doubt this new competition accounts for the bitterness which has been displayed between the spokesmen for the old cotton belt and the Texas government, representing the new. This kind of competition is not a new thing in this country. When the prairie lands were opened up, to the great injury of farm values east of the mountains, a somewhat similar crisis developed. It was met by heavy migrations westward and by the absorption into industry of many of the farmers whose livelihoods had been threatened by the new competition.

Cotton has dropped sharply in price in recent years. The decline in 1929 and 1930 was not less than $55 a bale. In that fact lies the essential corrective of the present confused situation. Cotton acreage will be reduced, regardless of what the state legislatures and governors may do or may not do, and if the reduction does not come in 1932 it will come in 1933. Meanwhile, it is evident that the farm board can do nothing to help the situation. It has already bought cotton with the same free-handedness with which it bought wheat and the result has been no less disappointing.

MORE TROUBLE FOR CHINA.

What China least needs is another war. Unfortunately its conditions are such as make war inevitable. The revolution has produced two results which in combination are incompatible with peace. It has raised leaders and the beginnings of a national feeling that are very sensitive to foreign affront. On the other hand, it has produced a factionalism in domestic politics and a stimulation of private ambition which have prevented the establishment of a government strong enough to defend national interest or control irresponsible actions by individuals or groups.

Thus as Chinese national feeling has grown in intensity and susceptibility to affront, national strength has been distracted and depleted. A foreign war sometimes unifies a people and to some extent this might be expected to occur in case of a protracted war with Japan. But it would take some time to develop and there are means of retarding or even of defeating it of which Japanese statecraft no doubt will know how to avail itself. It is the misfortune of China that attacks upon its people and territory, such as the invasion of Manchuria by the Russians in the Chinese Eastern railway imbroglio, have not resulted in a truce of factionalism and a unification of the national spirit, but have only tempted to futile and costly attempts at reprisal. Chinese feeling has shown itself irresponsible and, to Chinese interest and security, dangerous, but it has failed to produce at the center that unity of purpose which is essential to effective exercise of national strength.

The Russian invasion of North Manchuria and the stinging defeat of Chinese troops did not arrest but rather increased the attacks upon the Nanking government by rival factions. The recent serious disorders in Corea, the increasingly serious complications with Japan in Manchuria did not prevent a serious schism in the leadership of the Nationalist party and the virtual secession of Canton. The dangerous spread of communist military activities in central China and the still pending difficulties with Russia and with Japan have not prevented the new Canton government from entering upon an active military campaign against Nanking. In short, Chinese patriotism, the sense of national unity and of common interest, has not yet become the dominant force in Chinese affairs.

The taking of Mukden, in view of these conditions, is not likely to result in war, and it is to be feared by friends of Chinese nationalism that it will not even result in bringing Chinese political factions to a permanent compromise for the sake of a much needed unity. It will probably strengthen Japan's position in the north, but what its eventual consequences in the politics of the far east, of Japan, Russia, and China will be, no wise man will be tempted to predict. But certainly it is an event which calls the world's attention to a region where momentous history is in the making and where the seeds of great wars are already sprouting.

THE LEGION GOES CANADIAN.

The provincial government of Ontario modified a number of its liquor regulations to make the handling of the beverage traffic easier in Windsor during the American Legion convention session across the river in Detroit. The Ontario control law is not the most intelligent of Canadian liquor laws. Competition in liberal Quebec virtually forced the Ontario people out of their prohibition addiction, but they are sufficiently like their American neighbors to make a bad compromise rather than an honest decision when they deal with their moral complexes. Consequently their liquor system still puts a premium on the least defensible use of alcoholic drinks, especially by visitors, and prevents the most civilized, which is that of wines or beer with meals in public places. The householder is all right in his home, but the visitor if he drinks is compelled to be more or less of a barbarian. That's sound prohibition, not to stop the drinking but to make it a savagery if possible.

All told, the conditions revealed in a Legion meeting show all the seams in the noble experiment and the part taken this year by the Ontario government is an added absurdity, which does not gain any respectability by being much appreciated by the thirsty guests of Detroit. The public venders of Windsor have stacked up their stock and lengthened their sales hours. Domiciliary rules have been relaxed and transportation facilities have been increased.

The Canadian assumption, and it can hardly be assailed, is that the free American wants privileges he can't have in his own country. Ontario invites the Legion to come over and get drunk. The service men are decent fellows. If they are not the cream of the country we'd not know where to find it, but the convention for many of them is time out. It is not a Boy Scout jamboree. American prohibition is not an adult law and it is not remarkable that it does not produce adult behavior. Volstead has convinced Americans that each drink must be regarded as once in a lifetime. It has put a stunt value on every glass of intoxicants and the consequences are seen all over the land.

It is profitable for the Canadians to indulge the Americans and not unpleasant. The scene flatters the Canadian sense of superiority in the democratic scheme. And the dawn comes up like thunder outter Windsor cross the way.

FOOTNOTE ON AMERICAN IMPERIALISM.

Dr. Evans has loaned us the annual report of the medical department of the United Fruit company for the year 1930. Our interest in it, needless to say, is not medical, but the volume has other implications. It is for us a remarkable document which we especially commend to the attention of our humanitarian idealists for whom imperialism, so called, or capitalist enterprise in Latin America and elsewhere suggests nothing but the oppression of weak peoples and the extortion of profits.

The report makes a large volume of 276 pages. At the beginning are ten pages of photographs of the United Fruit company's hospitals at Port Limon, Costa Rica; Almiranto, Panama; Quirigua, Guatemala; Tela, Honduras; Puerta Castilla, Honduras; Puerta Armuelles, Panama; Banes, Cuba; Preston, Cuba; Santa Marta, Colombia, and Sevilla, Colombia. These buildings are designed with fine regard for tropic conditions and for sightliness, for comfort and health. Following is the text in seven sections, with illustrations and charts. Sixty or more physicians and research men contribute the articles which cover a wide range of research in tropical diseases and in therapeutics, discussions of malaria control such as the article by Drs. Nutter and McDaniel, reports on treatment such as Dr. Macphail's article on plasmochin as an aid in malaria prevention, studies of typhoid, amoebic dysentery, the psychology of lower type tropical American patients, spinal anesthesia, machete wounds, etc. A section is devoted to organization and vital statistics.

In the year there were 228,870 persons dependent upon the medical department for treatment. Over 25,000 were treated in the company hospitals, 214,461 in hospital dispensaries, and 137,479 in field dispensaries.

If this work were done by a philanthropic foundation all America would be proud of it. But its results not only in the relief of individual suffering but in the advancement of medical knowledge are the same as if it were. It is the service performed by a private corporation organized for profit, a representative, if a high one, of American capitalist imperialism. Grant that it serves the selfish interest of the United Fruit company. We hope and believe it does. But it is an enlightened self-interest, to which a genuine humanitarianism is no stranger. We suspect it is a more reliable force for human betterment than a good deal of the altruistic urge of specialists in humanitarianism.

At all events, this service of a great American commercial organization is one of the aspects of American economic imperialism that anti-imperialists at home and abroad have not been heard to mention. But it is a reminder that in the present age, as so often in the past, what is labeled and condemned as imperialism has carried civilization with it.

BY WATER TO CHICAGO.

[Philadelphia Public Ledger.]

Laden with 1,800 tons of soup—manufactured in this area—the steamship Chester has sailed for Chicago from this port. She will proceed to New York, thence through the barge canal across New York state to the lakes and so to the Illinois metropolis.

With her sister ship, the Edgewater, which recently completed a round trip over the same route, the Chester was built especially for travel by way of the canal and the lakes. Her pilot house is built over an elevator well and can be lowered when the Chester passes under low bridges over the canal, and all other superstructure is collapsible for the same reason. In one lock of the canal system the Chester will have only two feet clearance at each end and just six inches of water beneath her. She represents, in another form, the determined seeking for lower transportation costs that is creating an immense modern problem for the railroads.

How to Keep Well By Dr. W. A. Evans

A PLAN FOR DOCTORS.

PHYSICIANS will be happy to hear of a plan the carrying out of which will necessitate ten times as many physicians per thousand population as we now have and which, at the same time, promises more and surer income for each. The plan is proposed by Gerald Stanley Lee, in a book entitled "Heathen Rage." However, the increased personnel will include physicians' helpers, nurses, trainers, mental therapists, and many other groups not going under the head of medical men at the present time.

The physicians are to be organized in groups. In each office there is to be a department for the sick, as at present, and a far larger department, to be known as "the well department." Into the well department people are to go periodically for an audit, and for instruction and training. A part of the training has as its purpose keeping well, but that is only one of the minor objectives of the plan.

The principal objective will be to increase comfort, well-being, and happiness and to promote efficiency. Men with unusual personalities go in to train themselves to fit in. An employer who has a well equipped employé who is all right, except that he is grouchy, will send him in for training. The man who worries will learn to break his bad habit. Poor sleepers will seek help in the gentle art of wooing Morpheus.

Men who need more leg muscles than they have will go there to have the needed parts built up. Men poor in coördination will either learn, or will be changed to jobs in which good coördination is not required. Men with poor endurance or short wind will go for training. Eating habits, sleeping habits, and other habits of body and mind will receive attention.

And everything the physician now does he will continue to do until such time as disease is eliminated and the human body, like the deacon's one horse shay, runs equally well in all of its parts, until such time as the grim destroyer wrecks the entire works at one swoop. Under this plan the physician is to be on a salary basis, and the service is to be a part of the family budget.

Lee says the health industry should be at least ten times the sickness industry; the demand for service should be ten times that of service to the sick; and that all kinds of industrial production should be increased when such service is rendered. Therefore, boards of trade will be active in promoting the development of the new industry. In that good day a town will advertise for industries, for trade, and for population by saying that their people are the most efficient, the most capable, the happiest, and the most comfortable. They will claim for them the best habits. They will not say one word about having the most hospitals, nor even the best, and they will make few references to death rates, and none to sickness rates.

TRAINING IS NEEDED.

H. H. writes: At times, and it is often, I get mad and act ugly before I know it. Something made me lose lots of my friends and kept me living separate from the world. Now I am 38 years old and single. I would like very much to get married, but as soon as I get acquainted with a girl whom I like, I may get mad at any time and act with anger without apparent cause. Then, of course, I lose out. After it is all over with I get so sorry for what I have done. My mother tells me it runs in the family. My father and uncle were that way. Could I be cured or helped? I am considered a good business man, but have no friendly life. I would rather sit by myself often than with my best people.

REPLY.

The trouble is with your personality. Probably your mind is good enough, but you have some abnormality of your personality. In addition, you are not properly equipped with self-restraint. This inability to control your emotions may be fundamentally a part of your personality difficulty, or it may be a something built on. What you need is a personality diagnosis and treatment based thereon. The treatment is a matter of training. Taking medicine is not a part of it. There are books available on both the diagnosis and the treatment sides. Some of these books are written in layman's language.

DUPLICATE CITIZENSHIP PAPERS.

Chicago, Sept. 15. — [Friend of the People.]—I lost my naturalization paper. How can I obtain a duplicate? Where, and what is the fee? J. R.

Application may be made at Room 776, Postoffice building, Chicago. The fee is $10 and instructions are printed on the back of the form. FRED J. SCHLOTTFELDT, District Director U. S. Department of Labor.

PARTNERSHIP.

Chicago, Sept. 6.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I have been in business for 15 years. About five years ago I contracted a partnership on a gentleman's agreement [no written agreement] with the understanding that we go on a 50-50 basis on all work brought into the office and executed by both parties, paying expenses together and splitting the profits. Stationery was secured using the two names as the firm name, we are listed in the telephone book under both names, and contracts have been taken in both names and debts contracted. 1. Are we legal partners on this type of an agreement? 2. How can the partnership be dissolved, when either party has no money and debts remain unpaid? 3. Can any one party contract debts, for the business or privately, and make his partner responsible, or is there a limit to that? 4. Would an ad, given three times in your paper under legal notices, dissolve the partnership [if such a method exists]?

F. T. J.

1. Yes.
2. The ordinary course is to employ an attorney to file a bill to dissolve the partnership, assuming that the partners cannot agree upon dissolution. In such proceedings the debts should be collected, the assets sold, and the proceeds divided.
3. Ordinarily either partner has implied authority to bind the partnership to contracts within the scope of the partnership business.
4. If you both can agree on dissolution, such ad would be advisable in order to bring home notice to customers to whom you cannot give personal notice, but the ad would not in itself dissolve the partnership.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

WELL, WELL, THINK OF IT! And when William Jennings Bryan went around demanding the gold standard be given the gate a lot of people would have ridden him out of town on a rail if they could have got hold of him. And now England puts an end to this gold basis thing, and everybody says "hopeful," "most constructive," "it's the way out, by gosh," and a lot more things. And England gave three hoots and a groan when Bill Bryan won his first nomination for the presidency by shouting: "You shall not press down upon the brow of labor this crown of thorns. You shall not crucify humanity upon a cross of gold." The world yelled applesauce and hooey or whatever they said at that time, which meant the same as applesauce and hooey do today. Bill Bryan ran for the presidency opposing the gold standard as long as he lived. He got the habit and he could never break himself of it. But he never got anywhere near the White House. Now thirty-five years after he appealed against the gold standard and got a kick in the pants, what happens? Not that Bill was right or wrong about gold. That isn't the point. The point is that what the world turns down today it may pick up tomorrow. The great trouble seems to be that men of ideas die before the rest of humanity can catch up with them. Everybody ought to resolve to live longer. If you live long enough a stiff necked, hard headed generation will finally see things your way. Live until the world will finally look at you in surprise and wag its head and say: "Well, by golly, that feller is right." But what's the use! It takes most people too long to catch up. Even Methuselah couldn't live long enough for that.

QUANDARY.

Heaven is a peaceful place, filled with hearthside charms
Of shaded lights, good appetites, and clinging baby arms.
It's nice to go to Heaven and hear the softest songs
Of teddy bears, and nursery chairs, and things which will go wrong.

But Paradise is different, quite; it's breathless, deep and free;
Oh Dearest Face, a magic place is Paradise to me.
Oh those endless memories of glorified dim nights,
Of vibrant gloom, of rare perfume, of terrifying heights;
Of frightening forgetfulness; of far new worlds to win;

Oh Heaven, what is Paradise?
What Heaven might have been?

JOUETT SHOUSE, the national chairman, wants the Democrats to put a plank in their platform next year saying that the dry states can be dry and the wet states can be wet. Which sounds reasonable, but listen to the drys' scream. That's where they have fun; making the wet states dry.

AND RIGHT WHILE ENGLAND is declaring fiat money and silver is struggling to climb up to a parity with gold, Jerry Byrnes drops a line to ask if this colyum of calumny is going to get out a Linebook this year. Long before England startled the world by suspending the gold standard the Linebook was issued on the understanding that it should be sold for a dime, silver money. In spite of the gold standard, year after year, the Linebook has been exchanged for silver. While we do not claim that the Linebook is alone responsible for England's decision to abandon the gold standard, we point proudly to the record. Other commodities insisted on gold in exchange. The Linebook asks silver, has asked silver, and will ask silver. One dime, in silver, will continue to buy the Linebook. We shall hasten to prepare the copy for the Silver Edition of the Linebook immediately.

THE AMERICAN LEGION is advised by its national commander to use caution in cash bonus demands. Nowadays everybody's got to use a lot of caution in demanding cash bonuses or cash anything. Colleges and stores and lots of things are accepting wheat in payment of their bills. Others are making a long time loan. But if you demand cash, actual cold cash, for anything, follow the advice of the American Legion commander and use caution. People are awful touchy nowadays if you demand cash. Use caution and be prepared to climb a tree or run like hell.

BETS were being made yesterday on the Board of Trade there would be no frost before Nov. 1. This is a veiled but none the less a bitter attack on the veracity of Hank's cricket. About five weeks ago Hank said his cricket was rubbing its hind legs together and making shrill whoopee; which meant an early frost. Hank says he's known that cricket man and boy for forty years and its never lied to him yet. So this talk about there being no frost until Nov. 1 is saying in other words that Hank's cricket is a low unprincipled prevaricator. We do not believe it. We stand by Hank's cricket. When it says early frost, then early frost it is. Wait and see.

STEMWARE FOR THE BAR NONE RANCH.

My dear, those topaz wines are simply stunning,
And aren't those amber sherbets awfully cute?
And see those footed tumblers—aren't they cunning?
But—heavens—the price mark leaves me almost mute.

Do you see that keen rock crystal on the shelf?
They say, you know, there's nothing quite so smart.
I'd like those etched parfaits in green myself,
But the price, you'll note, is enough to break my heart.

Oh! Those ice teas in the new wisteria tint!
Aren't they gorgeous? But what a ghastly bore!
That price tag is a quite sufficient hint.
We'll hie ourselves, my dear, to the ten cent store.

BITTER MEDICINE, BUT IT COMES WELL RECOMMENDED

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

SEPTEMBER 22, 1915.

BERLIN.—Commanders of German submarines have been given strict orders, it has been learned authoritatively, that in case of doubt as to the intentions of liners they are to take the safe course and permit the ship to escape rather than run the slightest risk of error. The order supplements instructions as communicated to the Washington government by Ambassador von Bernstorff on Sept. 1.

LONDON.—Papers taken from War Correspondent James F. Archibald by the British authorities on which was based the request of the United States government for the recall of Dr. Dumba, the Austrian ambassador at Washington, were made public in part. Dr. Dumba's letters give his candid opinion of President Wilson and of sentiment in America. He called the President "self-willed" and it is his opinion that the President can control congress to do his bidding. A letter from Capt. von Papen, military attaché of the German embassy at Washington, speaks of "these idiotic Yankees."

SEPTEMBER 22, 1901.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Although every development at the naval court of inquiry was not entirely favorable to Rear Admiral Schley, in the main the results of today's session were satisfactory to him and his counsel. Testimony showed that the blockading ships of Commodore Schley's "flying squadron" never were far from Santiago harbor. The extreme distance during the daytime was not greater than seven miles and during the night not more than four miles. Commander Schroeder of the Massachusetts testified that in his judgment the "flying squadron" did not make as much speed as it was possible to obtain from Cienfuegos to Santiago, and said that Commodore Schley had not used sufficient effort to destroy the Spanish ship Colon, which was within plain sight of Schley's ships for more than two days. Other testimony was that the slowness of the trip from Cienfuegos was due to Schley's refusal to leave smaller craft behind.

BUFFALO, N. Y.—The trial of Leon Czolgosz, assassin of President McKinley, will begin here Monday morning. His attorneys have received no aid from him and they are forced to complete arrangements for the trial without his counsel. He refused to talk with them. The defense will be lack of proof of the cause of death and insanity.

SEPTEMBER 22, 1881.

WASHINGTON.—The special train bearing the remains of President James A. Garfield arrived at Washington at 4:35 in the afternoon. All along the route from Elberon to Washington were gathered sympathizing spectators and at the various stopping places great crowds of sorrowing people assembled with heads uncovered. As the train passed the church bells tolled and flags on buildings were at half-mast. In numerous places the railroad tracks were covered for hundreds of yards with ferns and flowers. When the train rolled into the depot here every head was uncovered in the immense crowd which had gathered.

Army and navy officers, to the number of 130, formed a single rank facing the train. Mrs. Garfield, heavily veiled, and assisted by Secretary Blaine and her son, Harry, was the first to descend from the train. Following her came President Arthur, Senator Jones of Nevada, Gen. Grant, Gen. and Mrs. Swain, Col. Rockwell, Col. Corbin, Drs. Bliss, Boynton, Agnew, and Hamilton, and members of the cabinet. The coffin was borne from the depot to the hearse on the shoulders of soldiers of the Second artillery as the marine band played "Nearer, My God, to Thee." The cortége passed through crowds which lined Pennsylvania avenue to the east front of the capitol. The remains were carried into the vast space of the rotunda and deposited on the historic dais which had already borne all that was mortal of Lincoln, Sumner, Chase and Thaddeus Stevens. Immediately vast but orderly crowds began to pass by the casket for a parting look at the body.

RAILROAD CONSOLIDATION.

Boston, Mass., Sept. 8.—The plan of Scrutator for consolidation of the railroads is worthy of such Jovian minds as those of "Coin" Harvey or the interstate commerce commission.

Competition by zones would stifle initiative entirely. Any buyer of railroad service who had to do with the carriers during the régime of McAdoo will testify as to the treatment accorded passengers and shippers during the after-the-war period. One would only have to attempt to do business with the New England rail monopoly or the United States postoffice to become an ardent protagonist of competition.

There are many glaring and amateurish inaccuracies in Scrutator's article. For instance, the Southern does not reach either New York or Chicago by over 200 miles in each case. The nearest point to New York is Washington and to Chicago Princeton, Ind. It holds interests with other lines in a road running into Chicago, but it can no more be called a Southern dominated line than can the C. & A. be termed a child of the Missouri Pacific simply because of through car arrangements.

Under Systems 7 and 8 your author combines the Santa Fé and Southern Pacific while joining the Union Pacific with the Western Pacific. Would he disrupt one of the oldest established and logical traffic routes across the continent? Why route freight and passengers over 925 miles of a second rate railroad from Ogden to San Francisco when but 775 miles is covered over one of the best developed lines of trackage in America? Would he divorce the component parts of the first of the transcontinentals that were wedded by the Golden Spike at Promontory in 1869?

The writer has been buying transportation for from ten to 100 persons at a clip over a period of 25 years and feels in some measure competent to speak from the customers' standpoint.

What the railroads really need is a St. Bartholomew's day for 49 state and federal rate commissions, repeal of all rail legislation passed since 1885, and the freedom to run their business the same as a grocer or automobile manufacturer.

NED ALVORD.

ON THE WAY UP.

Lake Forest, Ill., Sept. 13.—This note will express the gratitude of one of your readers for the editorial in today's issue, "On the Way Up." It is timely indeed, that we be warned to consider the factors of "strength and recovery" and that we give ourselves to appreciation of what the "leading minds" are accomplishing. The democratic character of American leadership to which you refer is more appreciated abroad than here.

With your splendid admonitions to renew our faith in America, and Mr. McCutcheon's masterful cartoons also bent on showing us the error of our psychology, I believe THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE will go far in setting us in the right direction. I am rejoicing, too, in your recognition of Iowa's recent measure concerning recreation. Our own state needs to follow their example. We have already made splendid strides, but we aren't going at it in the concerted fashion of Iowa. We are working in patches, not as an entity.

MAY E. MCADAMS.

FOR THE UNEMPLOYED.

Chicago, Sept. 16.—There are several hundreds of thousands of idle people in the city whom the state and the city have to feed. There are also in the city thousands of vacant lots overgrown with weeds of all kinds, only producing hay fever.

It costs to feed and house each of the idle, I should think, about 75 cents per day, including the profit to the feeding agencies. Why not set these hundreds of thousands of idle people to work pulling up the weeds, make the vacant lots level, and seed them into alfalfa and clover? The weeds and roots can be used to feed hogs and goats, which prefer this to tin cans, and the alfalfa and clover can be used next summer by the boys to feed thousands of rabbits. The idle men would rather do this healthy work with a pay of 75 cents per day than sit on the curb of the sidewalk all day long. The owners of the lots would be glad to see their lots cleaned and planted to clover or alfalfa and the city would gain, getting hundreds of small parks, which it badly needs, instead of the ugly lots filled with rubbish and weeds it now has. The city also ought to begin to clean up for the World's Fair.

This work should be done at once. There are several months before the frost sets in and the work could be done in that time. It would cost practically nothing. S.

BRITAIN SETS THE PACE.

Riverside, Ill., Sept. 14.—Britain has just cleaned up her financial house with a vengeance and set an example to other nations. There should be no further talk of revising reparations, moratoriums, etc., until Germany, France, Italy, and the rest are following the heroic methods of Britain to balance their budgets. When the others can prove that they, too, are taxing their people 25 per cent, with surtaxes up to 70 per cent and inheritance taxes of 50 per cent, as Britain is doing, then they may reasonably talk of revision, etc. Until then let them whine about their poor people being ground under. Germany does not, so far as the public can find out, tax the kaiser 70 per cent on the 90 millions of loot he got away with when he left his duped people in the lurch. Why not? Does the "All Highest" imbecility still obtain in Germany?

No loans should be permitted until disarmament is settled. To lend to nations draining their resources to build huge armaments in these days is the height of folly, helping and encouraging new outbreaks of insane wars.

If every ruler, legislator, and person responsible for starting wars was put out in the front line trenches first, and the innocent, average, helpless citizens only came in as reserves, talk of war would stop so suddenly that one would be deafened, so to speak, by the sudden silence. COMMON SENSE.

FARM LEADERS PLAN TO REVIVE McNARY THEORY

Discuss 'Equalization' at Session Today.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Efforts to revive the "equalization fee" plan, which was the basis of the corn and wheat belt battle over a farm plank in 1928 at the national convention of the Republicans at Kansas City and of the Democrats at Houston, are to be considered today by the directors of the American Farm Bureau federation. They open a two days' session in the Hotel Sherman.

E. A. O'NEAL.

A proposal to renew the fight for the old McNary-Haugen theory of surplus crop control in congress when it meets in December was advanced today in preliminary conferences yesterday by Edward A. O'Neal, president of the federation. The contemplated plan is to seek an amendment of the present federal marketing act which would embody the "equalization fee" principle.

Tell Benefits of Plan.

The principle's sponsors argue it would be a move towards getting government out of business, and that take the fee system, instead of the farm board dipping into the national treasury to finance its operations on its surplus, the cost would be borne by a tax on the commodity itself.

Sentiment in the farm bureaus of most of the states, it was reported, favors retaining the present marketing act, with a change providing for a fee instead of a federal subsidy. The plan as discussed yesterday would call for a governmental agency, one of whose duties would be to determine how much of the crop in a season may be greater than domestic requirements.

This surplus would then be purchased either through the governmental agency or by the "co-ops" and dumped outside the United States at bargain rates. The difference between this sale price of the surplus and the price paid the producer, under the plan, would be spread over the entire crop in the form of a tax collected on each unit of the commodity sold in domestic trade. This would be the "equalization fee." Under the old McNary-Haugen bill it would be collected at the elevator or mill. The original McNary-Haugen plan is also to fit the marketing act.

Surplus Still Big Problem.

"Control of the surplus," said President O'Neal, "is the biggest problem of agriculture. The marketing act does not take care of it, and the act must be strengthened by the next congress.

"The federation has always stood for the equalization fee principle as expressed in the old McNary-Haugen bill, which provided that each unit of the commodity produced shall bear its fair share of the cost of distribution, including the cost of disposing of the surplus.

"Desiring to see the marketing act fully tried out, for the past two years we have not insisted upon enactment of the equalization fee principle. But it now appears all too plain that the present act does not adequately provide for control of surpluses. Consequently we must renew our demand for the enactment of this type of legislation in order to strengthen and preserve the farmer owned and farmer controlled marketing associations that have been established.

Every Chinese Merchant Driven from Mexican State

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 21.—(AP)—As a result of the recent anti-Chinese movement, not a single Chinese merchant remains in Sonora, Deputy Waldo Pesqueira said today upon his return from a tour of inspection. He said all the Chinese had migrated to other states, and Mexican business men had sprung up to take the place of the oriental establishments.

FIRST FLIGHT OF NAVY ZEPPELIN IS POSTPONED

Akron, O., Sept. 21.—(AP)—Unfavorable weather forecasts caused the postponement today of the maiden flight of the navy Zeppelin Akron.

The craft was held within its dock on orders of the naval board of inspection and survey, which supplemented its order with the announcement that the first flight may be conducted Wednesday, granted proper weather.

The first test flight, Commander Charles E. Rosendahl said, will be merely to determine the ship's general airworthiness and will last only a few hours. Seventy-five hours of test flying will be climaxed by a 48 hour cruise before the ship is accepted by the navy.

Yesterday a party of newspaper reporters became the first outsiders to be treated to an inspection of what fills the 785 foot hulk.

'Basque People' Stories About Strange Race

Dorothy Canfield Views Them Closely.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

["Basque People," by Dorothy Canfield. Houghton Mifflin Company, Boston, Brace & Co.]

"BASQUE PEOPLE" is a group of eight stories about the strange, fascinating people who caused Henry of Navarre, later Henry IV. of France, to say when he was king of France, "I know these Basques. There's no use trying to do anything with a Basque. Once they have settled that something ought to be done, they go ahead and do it. What keeps the rest of us from going ahead and doing what ought to be done? A thousand barriers we call law and public opinion and convention. Basque treat such barriers as if they were cobwebs."

DOROTHY CANFIELD.

The stories are all tales told to Dorothy Canfield by a native, in most of which the village school teacher who had been born and brought up in a remote Basque-speaking valley in the Pyrenees, had had a few years' training in a normal school of the region, and after that for twenty-five years had taught school in this little settlement of fishermen and small farmers perched in between the Bay of Biscay and the Pyrenees." She was, in some of the stories which she told, the goddess of the machine, a woman of 55 who knew every young person in the village and was beloved by them all.

The first story is told because a native there, which the Basques had been for a foreign country, explained characteristically that the Basques were no art. They have no need of written or painted art, the school master informed, since they are masters in the most difficult of all the arts, the art of living. To illustrate, she told of a small foundling who was one her pupil who had been boarded out by the government with a bitterly poor family. The child was weak in body and she was given the care of to keep as the only task which her health allowed her. Like all sheep-tenders, the school teacher said, she became a victim of the silence and of loneliness and she seemed literally to be without thoughts or the means of expressing them.

Then she was taken ill one day and the schoolmistress had her removed for the sake of the family with whom she lived—to a hospital in Bayonne. There a mysterious woman visited her who proved to be her mother, who, according to the laws of France, was notified of any change in the child's residence. The mother had been forced to give up her name-less child when the child was a mere baby, and meanwhile had married happily and had a small child of her own. She was torn with anguish about her first child, but terrified to confess to her husband. What finally happened when she did confess, the author offered as a masterpiece of the art of human adjustment.

The second is a sketch of the part that the Guignol—the puppet show—plays in the part of the Basque village. It is a charming bit of writing and one of the most subtly understanding views of a strange people that Dorothy Canfield has done—and she is as understanding of the French as if she were one of them.

"The Saint of the Old Seminary" is a slightly ironic story of a beautiful girl who became a saint of such advertised piety [and efficaciousness] that the world came to her shrine.

"An Ancestral Home" tells of a middle aged school teacher's discovery that she was, through her grandfather, of Basque blood, and what happened when she visited the soil of her ancestors. That quality of a piece of land's power over the ephemeral human beings who have inhabited it through the centuries is in the story.

"Not a Pennyworth to Choose" is another ironic story told by the school teacher of a time when she played goddess of the machine and rescued a young girl from the clutches of her father to find that the father could by law refuse his permission to his daughter's marriage. And how, still goddessing, she took the young lovers over into Spain and had them married in full style by a relative of hers, a priest. And of the life of the young people . . . it's an amusing tale with a whiplash ending—a surprise ending, that is.

In "The Course of True Love" the school teacher again takes a hand in a romance and the story of it also has a whiplash ending.

"Gold from Argentina" is the shortest tale in the book—the story of a worthless family which received word that an emigré to Argentina had died and left them four million dollars. The village showered them with attention, then suddenly began to suspect that perhaps the story wasn't true, and for a while was now hot, now cold about them, and finally each villager, to protect his own interest, took the bewildered members of the family aside and warned them against all of the other villagers until, like rats when a ship is about to flounder, they scuttled out of the town to the safety of their fortune, which, to the chagrin of the villagers, proved incredibly real.

And, finally, "The Majesty of the Law" is a record of the folklore tale of the trial of the witches in the 18th century.

DES MOINES GIRLS LEARN TRAVELING MAN IS PRINCE OF BELGIUM

Des Moines, Ia., Sept. 21.—(AP)—Charles Dawson, posing as a traveling salesman, visited in Des Moines last week. He danced with several girls at an exclusive club. He played golf, but did not defeat his opponents too badly. In general, however, he was feted no more than is the average visiting young man.

Handsome, 28 years old and fluent of speech, with an Oxford accent, Charles Dawson was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Bohen and Robert De Buisseret, employé of a publishing firm. He left Saturday night for Washington.

Today, much as in a fairy story, Charles Dawson was revealed as Charles, prince of Belgium, count of Flanders, and second son of King Albert.

The prince arrived in America in April, and, incognito, has been touring the country with Count François De Buisseret, brother of Robert and a secretary in the Belgian embassy in Washington.

The prince's identity was known only to Robert De Buisseret here, but Mrs. Bohen, recalling a newspaper photograph, ascertained his identity under a promise of secrecy.

Good Morning!

Straightforward and undeviating in its purpose of authentic delineation is this screen story of the famous case of Capt. Alfred Dreyfus, a Jew, who in 1894 was found guilty of high treason by a French military court and, though innocent, sentenced to life imprisonment on Devil's island.

To Dreyfus' support came the great writer, Emile Zola. When everything else failed, Zola's editorial "J'Accuse!" eventually—though Zola was himself arrested and put on trial—brought results. Dreyfus was restored to rank and given a new hearing. But again military tactics prevailed and, in spite of proof of forged evidence, the defendant was again sentenced to living hell, this time for ten more years. At last he agreed to sign a petition for pardon. He was promoted to the rank of major with full military honors—while the populace cheered. The populace that had hooted him down.

"The Dreyfus Case" is great drama. If you can remain unmoved through the trial scenes of Dreyfus and Zola, can refrain from tears and passionate, inward protest as the former is stripped of his regimentals and drummed out of the army, can listen, untouched and unthrilled by Laborl's and Clemenceau's—especially Laborl's—speeches in defense of Zola, why you're beyond comprehension.

This English production at no time attempts to go Hollywood. There's never the slightest striving for extraneous melodramatics. The directors [there were two of them] kept steady fingers on the pulse of their subject and have turned out a fine, well-rounded production. The cast was exceptionally well chosen. Especially will your interest be caught by Cedric Hardwicke as Dreyfus, Sam Livesey as Labori, George Merritt as Zola and Charles Carson as Col. Piquart. Photography and sound are not perfect, but neither are they poor.

"The Dreyfus Case" should be seen from beginning to end rather than from middle around to middle again. So, consult your film time table—on this page—for the hours that the feature starts.

FRANCE MAY PORTRAY PROVINCIAL LIFE AT CHICAGO '33 FAIR

PARIS, Sept. 21.—(AP)—The participation of France in the Chicago World's Fair of 1933 may in part follow the example set by the American exhibit at the Colonial exposition here.

Marshal Lyautey, director of the latter, was so impressed by a section of the American Mount Vernon facsimile that he recommended to the French government that the idea be carried out in Chicago.

The part of Mount Vernon which he found worthy of imitating was the Louisiana exhibit which showed three girls of French Acadian descent, and of old New Orleans families, engaged in carding, spinning, and weaving.

Marshal Lyautey said he would like to send to Chicago groups of people from different provinces of France. They would be placed in reproductions of their native surroundings and be seen engaged in their homely occupations.

Seeks Church Rebuke for U. S. Supreme Court

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Denver, Colo., Sept. 21.—[Special.]—The house of deputies of the general convention of the Episcopal church was thrown into uproar this morning when a resolution to repudiate the decision of the Supreme court of the United States for its decision in the famous MacIntosh naturalization case was presented.

The resolution was presented by Attorney C. L. Dibble of Kalamazoo, Mich. It declared the decision rendered "the will of God subservient to the will of the state. The Supreme court's decision resulted from successive appeals of Prof. Douglas MacIntosh of Yale. He was refused citizenship for declaring he would not bear arms in a future war unless the war were waged for causes not in conflict with his conscience.

The Dibble resolution was tabled, 205 to 106, after a half hour of parliamentary skirmishing. The house, however, was asked to reconsider. That was refused by 252 to 193. Shortly after the morning session Mr. Dibble, encouraged by the gain in strength indicated by the latter vote, declared the resolution would appear at the house of bishops. That, he stated, would assure its return to the house of deputies.

The resolution stated that "We deny that congress intended to require or that it has the power, under our system of government, to require, as a condition of admission to citizenship or holding public office, that the applicant shall agree in advance to engage in any war, or to obey any enacted law, which may be against his conscience and deemed by him to be contrary to the will of God."

As Mr. Dibble spoke in favor of his resolution he declared President Hoover himself would be ineligible to public office if the decision of the Supreme court is enforced as national policy. He pointed out that the President is a Quaker.

Roswell Page, a lawyer from Virginia, spoke against the resolution. He said the house of deputies of the Episcopal church is not the place to decide whether the Supreme court has decided rightly or wrongly in any case. He asserted the resolution is "a reflection on every soldier who gave his life in France." This was received with shouts of "No!" from the house.

The Virginian, however, continued: "This resolution would mean that every slacker could determine whether he is to go to war. It puts every applicant for citizenship—in fact, every citizen—in the position of being the sole judge of his own spunk!"

It is generally accepted as a certainty that the resolution will annoy the general convention later by coming through the house of bishops. There, without doubt, it will be introduced by Bishop G. Ashton Oldham of Albany, N. Y. Among other things the resolution said:

"Resolved, further, that we call upon congress to take every means in its power to protect the rights of citizens from the consequences of this decision and to insure the continuance of freedom of conscience. In particular we call upon it to enact that the covenant in the oath of allegiance and in the oaths of public officers, to support and defend the constitution and laws of the United States, is not to be construed to involve a promise to bear arms in a war to which the citizen shall be conscientiously opposed, nor to obey a law which he shall deem to be contrary to the will of God."

The general convention was asked late today to petition congress for a national referendum on prohibition. A committee report on the proposal, coming from New York, will be made to this convention.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

A BLUNT, matter of fact outline of the play with which the Adelphi theater began its new season last night could easily make this frolic sound like one of the things that the sex merchants of the drama manufacture for sale to the low minded. For example, the man and the girl in the case meet in a roadhouse hideaway, plunge into an abyss of old fashioned cocktails, and spend the last two acts in a hotel bedroom, minus the garments that are supposed to be virtue's shield.

But no matter how rowdy "Unexpected Husband" may seem on the surface, future historians of the stage will never cite it as one of the plays that contributed to the moral downfall of the American theater. It is a bit of honest Rabelaisian mirth, illustrating the careless habits of the prohibition era; its mirth is clean hearted and its purpose is innocent. It is a low jinks with a healthy mind, and not a line of it was written or is acted with a lascivious leer.

If any one wishes to discover the invisible line between plays that are divertingly "risky" and plays that are offensively "dirty," he may take "Unexpected Husband" as an example of the former type. The latter group requires no illustration; it appears to be with us in abundance.

This comedy is not an affair of high originality. It was patterned according to a formula. It is one of the many derivatives and variations of "Strictly Dishonorable," and its heroine is the reckless ingénue with a southern accent and a taste for alcohol whom that play popularized. But I prefer "Unexpected Husband" to its much touted and amazingly prosperous parent. It contains far more laughter and no salacity. It is, incidentally, a much more expert job of play making.

The reprehensible but engaging young people of the wild eyed yarn get drunk together in a disarming manner. Stupefaction comes upon them almost by accident, when they think that they are merely taking a friendly nip or two for the sake of sociability. They are lugged away from the roadhouse by a pair of soused Samaritans; are put to bed together as man and wife; and wake up in the morning in profound bewilderment, with a Texas father on their trail, eager to wipe out the stain on his family honor. But the facts in the case are one thing and the manner of their telling is another. That manner is merry and free from grievous lapses of taste.

"Unexpected Husband" is unusual in one detail: its producing manager is a member of its cast and reveals himself as a decidedly effective comedian in an important rôle. The Richard G. Herndon who "presents" this theatrical spree is the same Mr. Herndon who drags the comatose principals to their bedroom and their fate. Maybe he started this new career on a bet, but I believe that he should ask himself for an increase in salary next season.

Arthur Aylsworth is crisp, dry and plausible as the man about town who drinks his way into a shotgun honeymoon. Neville Westman—sister of the well known Nydia of "Lisistrata"—is a neat little charmer as the girl; and Alan Bunce does journalism no wrong as a reporter in pursuit of a scandal. Altogether, "Unexpected Husband" is correctly cast and expertly performed.

Science Finds Public Bows to New Fetishes

U. of C. Cites Psychology as Charlatans' Prey.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

Biology, the science of life, displays a strong analytical activity in the introductory course organized by thirteen members of the University of Chicago faculty for the ground work of the new experiment in education which is being started at the Midway schools this week. It cuts across eleven of the old subdivisions of science to reach its goal, a well rounded view of dynamic human progress.

When it comes to its consideration of consciousness and behavior, the syllabus states:

"We shall regard man as a natural object in a natural world—a tremendously complicated organic machine, the remarkably complex structure naturally giving rise to equally complex and remarkable functions.

"As we go up the biological scale from the unicellular animals, such as the Amoeba, to man, we note, along with an increasingly complex nervous system and general structure, a corresponding development in intelligent activity.

"We are primarily interested in intelligent behavior—in learned reactions, on both the animal and the human levels. The ultimate goal of psychology is adequate description and explanation, and hence prediction and some measure of control, of human behavior. In this ambitious program only a beginning has been made. The solution to the riddle of human nature gives promise of being found, ultimately, in the study of mind in terms of behavior."

Psychology, it is found, at last has been definitely established upon a scientific basis, as contrasted with the speculations of such "natural philosophers" as Rene Descartes. He held that man is a machine with a soul, sitting up in the pineal gland, as chief engineer, pulling the wires and pushing the buttons to make the body do the bidding of the spirit.

"The very word 'psychology' spells mystery and superstition to many people," the syllabus continues. "They believe that psychology is tied up with crystal gazing, mental telepathy, clairvoyance, phrenology, and spiritualism. Or they believe that it is the 'golden key' that overnight will unlock the hidden treasure chests of the minds, release unsuspected and dormant powers, and secure for them undreamed of happinnes and success. And what easy prey they have fallen to unscrupulous quacks who have cashed in and grown rich on their credulity.

"All the superstition cannot be relegated to ages past. Only a little while ago we were burning our 'witches' in Boston and chaining and torturing the insane, who were said to be 'possessed of devils.' Three-on-a-match, walking under a ladder, breaking a mirror, a black cat crossing our path—they all spell bad luck!

"It is a strange commentary on our twentieth century sophistication that there are no No. 13 staterooms in ships at sea. Belief in spooks, witches, devils, evil spells, and other kindred phenomena is still widespread in this and other countries.

"It is amazing the number of otherwise intelligent and successful business and professional men who daily seek advice and help from that long discredited pseudo-science, astrology. It has been estimated that over $150,000,000 a year are spent on fortune tellers in this country alone."

The methods of the various schools of psychology are outlined and some popular misconceptions are attacked as follows:

"We are continually building up concepts and then—forgetting that they are concepts, mere constructions or abstractions—we regard them as phenomenal objects. We speak of life, the mind, consciousness, ideas, intelligence, instincts, the self, human nature, will-power, and a hot of others as if they were things, entities, forces, existing in their own right. But they are all abstractions and have no more independent, existential reality than the grin, as William James puts it, of a Cheshire cat.

. . . "Life is only a label—a name for a way of reacting. Mind is another concept which is often reified. Individuals exhibit certain mental activities such as remembering, perceiving, reasoning and 'feeling.' The totality of these mental activities is referred to as 'the mind.' But such a collective term has no independent existence. 'Mental energy' is likewise a misleading term. When one thinks he is using up bodily energy. We think with our bodies, particularly our brains, and not with some mysterious 'mind' which utilized mysterious 'mental energy.' Man is not a mind plus body, but mind body. He is a machine that thinks."

* * * "The self or ego—the I—in such statements as 'I think' or 'I feel'—has been regarded by some thinkers as an entity, something distinct from the organism and apart from the ideas, the emotions and the feelings that themself some way 'has.' There is little or no evidence for such a psychic entity. By 'the self' we mean the living organism with all its traits, abilities, and capacities, both innate and acquired."

* * * "Ideas, then, are not independently existing entities—not like marbles rolling about in a jar. They are not stored up, like old letters, waiting to be re-read. They are not immaterial spiritual things, hiding in the depths of the unconscious as the symbolic Freudian terminology seems to imply. Our nervous system retains the effects of previous sensory experience. It is these effects which persist, not ideas as such. And when the neural pathways, modified by past experience, are again partially and indirectly aroused, the resulting experienced events is an 'idea.' One may as well assert that the actual music is in a phonograph needle and is released by the needle as to assume that ideas exist as entities in some hypothetical, immaterial mind or soul."

The Marriage Racket

By VINA DELMAR

SYNOPSIS.

Irma Corbin arrives in Thrace for a week's vaudeville engagement, with her dancing partner, Don Philippe de Rodriques, and their pianist, Tom Libby. A convention is being held in the town and the hotels are overflowing. Philippe grabs the first vacancy.

INSTALLMENT II.

"ANY ROOMS?"

"What are we going to do, Irma? Go around and ring every doorbell in the damn town?"

"I don't know. I was thinking, Tommy, we ought to try the Bartrum."

"Aw, but gee, Irma, that'll be at least five bucks a day. I only get fifty a week."

"While, of course, I get sixty-five. Well, I'm not going to sleep in some dirty, lousy room even if I eat chocolate bars all week. I'm going to try the Bartrum. Are you coming?"

"Well, I'll go with you."

"What do you think, Tommy? Shall we take a cab?" What mattered another few cents when one was contemplating the Bartrum?

They rode across Thrace's main street. Tommy lay back in the cab with his eyes closed. He was figuring how much he could allow for meals if the Bartrum charged five dollars a day. Now, if Irma would share a room with him that would cut their expenses down. But she wouldn't do it. He had asked her once, but she said no. Rotten little prude. All he wanted was to save a little money for them both. Her charms didn't look like anything to him. He shot a malignant glance at her.

She was gazing out the window. Thrace seemed like a good town. She noted the locality of a department store. She needed some stockings. Hm, a good looking drug store. They probably carried that cosmetic that she hadn't been able to get in the last town. That had been a heck of a burg. Well, what did it matter? Good towns or bad towns, you were only in them a week.

The taxi stopped and a uniformed doorman helped Irma to alight.

A burst of music greeted them. Irma pictured young things in fluttering tulle dancing just beyond her vision and felt suddenly very sorry for herself. After all she was only nineteen. Why wasn't she somebody's sheltered daughter just stepping down to the Bartrum for a few dances with a charming escort whose character had been well investigated by her doting family?

"Any rooms?" Tommy had evidently decided to let her do the talking.

The clerk here had a white mustache and a pearl gray waistcoat.

"Rooms?" He smiled nicely at the pretty, worried face before him. "Don't be hoggish, young lady. Beds are at a premium. People are past demanding rooms."

"O, Lord!" Irma searched his cheerful countenance. Was he fooling?

"Yes."

"Well, I can fix the gentleman up. One of the salesman's sample rooms

"I'm Bill Fitzroy. Don't you remember me?"

has fourteen cots in it. I can let him have one of those. But you're a problem, young lady. I can't see where I'll fit you in."

"It's an outrage," Tommy declared. He was beastly tired, but lacked the nerve to take the available cot until Irma was accommodated.

"I really don't see, young lady, what I can do for you." The clerk was sorry, but firm.

A tall, square chinned man in a tuxedo emerged from a telephone booth and eyed Tommy thoughtfully. Irma said, "Who's your friend?"

"I don't know. I guess he's mistaken me for somebody else."

The man drew nearer and spoke. "Isn't your name Tom Libby?"

"Yes."

"I'm Bill Fitzroy. Don't you remember me? I knew you right away. Don't you remember when you were in the Al Markey orchestra?"

"O, of course. For God's sake, what are you doing here?"

"I live here. I'm in business here. I own the Crystal Moon Palais de Danse. Are you up at the theater?"

"Yeh, I'm with Don Philippe de Rodriques."

"O, are you? Gee, I'm glad to see you. We must get together and talk over old times." Mr. Fitzroy glanced at the clerk and at the register. "Get fixed up?"

"Yeh, I'm on a cot."

"And you're lucky to get it."

Irma had stood by waiting to be introduced. It was no treat to her to meet a new male, but this male had a commanding presence and a rich odor of success. Certainly he would be able to find her a bed. But Tommy was not going to introduce her. That was evident. Well, once again she'd have to take care of herself.

"My name's Irma Corbin," she said. "I'm in the act with Tommy. Do you know of any place in town I could get a room?"

"No, they haven't a thing."

"That's too bad. I suppose you tried the Bedford."

"Yes, the clerk there tried all the other places, too."

"Geo, that's awful." Mr. Fitzroy seemed to be reflecting. Actually he was surveying Irma. Probably Tommy's sweetheart, he thought. No doubt they had recently quarreled and that accounted for her having to introduce herself. What did she see in Tommy? God, he looked washed out and caved in. But maybe he was wrong. Maybe she was a free lance. He brightened at the second thought.

"I'll tell you what," he said. "You take my room."

"O, I couldn't."

"Why not? I'll just run up and put a few things in a bag and turn the room over to you."

"Where will you go?"

"O, I have a load of friends here." He was warmed by the sudden smile which she turned upon him, fascinated by the perfection and evenness of her teeth. "I'll tell you what. You go get yourself set and then join us. I have a bunch of people in the Marble room. Er—you, too, Tommy." Mr. Fitzroy turned to the clerk. "Say, Howard, I'm turning my room over to Miss Corbin for as long as she needs it. I'll be at 321 Maxwell road till I move in here again."

Tommy and Irma found themselves in the elevator. Mr. Fitzroy had withdrawn for the time being. Tommy was grouchy.

"You bit off more than you can chew this time," he said. "Bill Fitzroy rather fancies the ladies and don't take no for an answer."

"Yes? Well, if he gets too bold I can depend on you to save me, can't I? You're always so helpful."

The room into which the bellhop ushered Irma had not the atmosphere of other hotel rooms. This one had been occupied for over a year by the same person. His books were on the table, his pipes lay carelessly upon an onyx tray. A framed photograph upon the wall, a small Victrola, a silver coffee service made Irma feel like a housebreaker. She was glad to have a comfortable room, but was not impressed by the stranger's generosity. She knew without Tommy's croaking that the next hardest thing to getting the room would be to keep from sharing it with Bill Fitzroy.

The dress which she pulled from under cans of makeup, two pairs of shoes and a clock was painfully wrinkled. It wasn't an evening dress anyway. She might better enter the Marble room in what she was wearing.

In the end she just cleaned her face with cold cream, put on a new makeup and went downstairs. Tommy was not there.

The group to which Irma was introduced was merely a blob of red, yellow and blue evening dresses with stiff white shirts between colors to keep them from clashing. Within an hour certain personalities emerged. Wallace Graham, fortyish and distinguished looking, who said, "And to think I didn't want to come tonight." Miss Atchison, blonde and bubbly, who had had an offer from Ziegfeld, but her mother had interfered and had broken Ziegfeld's heart. Mr. Quentin, who made her drink illicit champagne, and Mr. Gardner, who danced with her and whose skill made her feel as though she were dancing with Philippe. He was, she discovered later, the head instructor at the Crystal Moon Palais de Danse.

Irma felt sleepy but awfully happy. That was the champagne, of course. She felt that she was being a huge success at the party. Some one gave her a tip on a horse, some one else told her to drop in at the Milady shop for a dress at wholesale price and Mr. Wallace Graham booked her for dinner next evening.

"Lay off, Wallie, I saw her first." Bill Fitzroy pretended to be angry. He pretended awfully well, Miss Atchison thought.

"Well, you have breakfast with her," Graham suggested.

"Okay," Bill said. "All right, Irma?"

"Sure."

"Shall I phone you or nudge you?"

The gag was new then. Those who didn't think it frightfully shocking howled.

Irma said, "You'll phone me," and everybody howled again, though most of them didn't believe her.

Overcome Self-Pity, Says Doris, If You Want Boy Friends

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"I am invisible so far as the male sex is concerned. If any young man would pay attention to me I would feel that there is something wrong with him. Months at a stretch go by and there isn't an appointment in sight.

"I am 26. My friends are all married. When I go to see them they ask about my suitors. I can't face that any longer. What encouragement can you give me? MISERABLE."

This encouragement I can give you, "Miserable." Any girl who says or is willing to admit to herself that there must be something wrong with a man who would date her must have something wrong with her. And that's the thing to get down to work and find out about. What is wrong? What makes you feel that you are inferior to any man who would ask you out? What has convinced you that you are not a desirable companion?

Is it your appearance? Your way of dressing? Your manner with men? Your inability to dance? Your failure to make a new found friend feel comfortable in your presence? Or what? There is something, and you must find out what that something is. Then hold it up to the light and see what can be done about it.

In another part of your letter I note you drag out the inferiority alibi. That's one complex nobody in this enlightened age ever should admit harboring. You can have it, understand. But you can get over it just as surely as you can get over the measles or the whooping cough or the flu or any other ailment.

You have to treat it with intelligence. You have to give yourself medicine for it. Good, strong medicine, too. Maybe with a tang of bitterness to it. This is coming for the days lost in self-pity, which I think is what the alibi complex invariably turns out to be. It's just a form of self-indulgence that the weak encourage. It's more than a bit cowardly, by nature.

People with the so-called inferiority complex just haven't the courage to face facts and pattern their lives along new lines. They haven't the courage to help themselves. They haven't the grit to go after what they want. And so they become tiresome and the least companionable of people.

Fine Qualities Make Up for Many Little Childish Annoyances

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

If you're having trouble with your growing up son or daughter, if you're going through phases that seem puzzling and trying, if you're not getting results that you think you ought to get, sit down and see what you can take heart from. Of course, surfaces are things which are always before us—little things make up the life of every day—and perhaps those are the things that have been worrying you.

But look beneath all this. Perhaps you can find that the sound, sweet kernel of character is untouched. As one woman wrote me not long ago: ". . . Something came up in connection with a friend's child and I said to my child, 'I hope you will never do such a thing,' and she said, 'Well, you can know this much—anything that I would have to hide or be sneaky about wouldn't be worth doing.' Don't believe I have a perfect child. I am disappointed about some traits in her makeup, but feel that with honesty as the corner stone of her character the other things will work out all right—in time."

Through the mist or confusion of adolescent vagaries, if you find undimmed in your son or daughter frankness and honesty and independence of thought, the ability to keep a promise or to honor a given word, try then to feel encouraged. You have the corner stone, the enduring things.

Often we get so concerned over our children's behavior that we aim at perfection and see only the things we would wish changed. A mother was brought up short the other day on this respect by a visiting relative. "Jim has faults, but since I've been here I haven't seen him show one sign of stubbornness—when you correct him he's never impudent or resentful; he's always so ready to do what you ask; he's as honest as the day; he's generous, and his word is his bond, and he's warm and loving. You expect him to be perfect."

Parents of boys and girls in their teens need special practice in faith and forbearance. We have several brief reading suggestions that are pertinent to the adolescent age. These will be sent on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

Unnecessary Protection.

The height of embarrassment came to me one rainy morning after I had walked the whole length of a marble corridor wondering why the starter and the cigar man turned their faces away instead of greeting me as usual. Not until I tried to enter the elevator and saw the startled eyes of the elevator man did I realize that I had forgotten to lower and close my umbrella before entering the building. Just picture it! BEAUTY ANSWERS

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

L. G.: DRY SHAMPOOS MAY BE indulged in several times a week if the hair is inclined to be oily. Corn meal or powdered orris root is used. Apply it and allow it to remain on the hair a half hour. The meal absorbs grease. Brush out thoroughly. Regular shampooing suggestions may be had for a stamped, addressed envelope.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

Not Ready for Marriage.

"Dear Miss Blake: Would you advise a fellow of 21 to get married when he doesn't make a living? The girl is willing to help him. A. M."

I should strongly advise him to wait until he is earning a living before he assumes the responsibilities of a home.

Elegant Beige Ensemble Graces Cocktail Hour

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Beige, that priceless boon to womankind, is back in style again after a banishment of several long seasons from Paris. The new beige has both a pink and a golden reflection in it, and is as flattering as a rosy lampshade after dark. Chic ladies over here are wearing beige coats, trimmed with fur, with dresses to match the fur, and some of the smartest fall ensembles have a beige dress and coat.

The all beige ensemble, shown in our sketch, is just as it steps into the chic rendezvous of Paris around cocktail time in the evening. This ensemble has a coat that is molded to the figure, with a small flare below the hips, and it can be buttoned in front, or worn open as shown. The collar, which makes it decorative and personal, is made of the material of the coat, tucked in sunray tucks, stiffened on the inside, and banded around the edges with sable fur.

Under this the dress is also in the same shade of beige, and is made of crêpe georgette. It has short, simple sleeves, and the dress body is princess in line, shirred at the waistline in the side seams and flared in circular movement below the hips. A cowl of georgette is placed over the front of the waist to give it a soft, flattering line, and a wide bias band of the georgette begins at the waist on the left side and descends to the hipline on the right, where it flares in a circular movement.

This is an ensemble that is supremely elegant, and simple enough to wear a lot, thanks to its neutral beige shade.

A Friend in Need

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

"Do you think one of your readers would have a wheel chair to give a poor widow who is an invalid? She wants to get out in the sun and cannot do so unless a chair is donated. "MRS. G. P."

Keep Up Personal Appearance, Says Middle Aged Woman

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Did you ever stop to ask, "Who buys all this cosmetic stuff you see laid out on the counter and advertised widely?"

Does one woman give them all a trial? How many of the products spread before her notice does the average woman experiment with?

I haven't any answer. But I did meet a woman who has surely done her duty by the cosmetic trade. Not a new line of anything comes out, but she hotfoots out after it, brings it home, hides herself away for a half or whole hour and tries it. She can well afford her "amusement," as she calls it.

And to tell the honest truth, she discards most of them for a brand she has been partial to for years and years. An inexpensive brand, too, one of the cheapest on the market, but a very good product.

But this woman is an amusing person. She pursues her beauty experiments out of a sense of duty to herself, her husband and her family. She's reared her youngsters, seen them married, and now she's indulging in something she's always wanted to have time for. That she's found time in spite of her manifold and successful duties as wife and mother is evidenced in her unusually well groomed skin, hands, hair, figure, everything.

Having married her husband on $12 a week and put in her early married years at every sort of hard labor about the house, she is authority on the business of being a woman, first, last and all the time. Her observations on contemporaries who have let themselves get buried under an over-subscribed sense of obligation to family needs, as she calls it, would make a good sermon for the young matron starting out in life.

Do your duty by your family, is her motto, but not at the sacrifice of your appearance. Count on that devotion in middle life that only an attractively groomed woman can inspire, even in her family midst.

EXCESS acid is the common cause of indigestion. It results in pain and sourness about two hours after eating. It is responsible for most of the everyday ailments that people suffer: sick headache, sluggishness, nausea, biliousness, gas on the stomach, etc. The quick corrective is an alkali which will neutralize the acid. The best corrective known to medical science is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained standard with physicians in the 50 years since its invention.

One spoonful of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia neutralizes instantly many times its volume in acid. It is harmless and tasteless and its action is quick. You will never rely on crude methods, never continue to suffer when you learn how quickly, how pleasantly this premier method acts. Please let it show you—now.

Go to the drug store and get a bottle to try. Take it tonight, and follow the simple directions you find in the package. Learn what a means to have a well-alkalinized system. See how much better your general health will be. How seldom you will catch cold.

Be sure that you get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia that physicians prescribe. It is sold a 25c and 50c bottles at drug stores everywhere.

Fort Sheridan Offers Polo and Mimic War

BY THALIA.

There are a lot of thrills planned for the military program and polo match to be held at Fort Sheridan on Saturday afternoon. Mimic sky attack on the Fort, war games, and some spectacular air display features are to be staged, as well as the polo game between the army players in the 6th corps area and the best civilian players available.

Brig. Gen. Frank Parker has arranged for Maj. Gerald Brower to bring his army daredevils of the air from Selfridge Field, Michigan, to put on the demonstration. Maj. Frederic Gilchrist is chairman of the committee arranging the polo match.

Reservations for parking space have been made by Earle H. Reynolds, Walter F. Glore, I. Newton Perry, Edward Butler, Chauncey McCormick, Edward Birmingham, John D. Hertz, Brig. Gen. Roy D. Keehn, Maj. Gen. Frank C. Bolles, commandant of the 6th corps area, and Rear Admiral Walter Cross, commandant at Great Lakes station.

Alexander Lawrence Will Talk on Britain.

The program planners for the Englewood Union certainly hit the nail on the head as far as current interest is concerned when they arranged for a talk on "British Affairs" to be given by Sir Alexander Lawrence, an English financial expert (he formerly was chief assistant minister to the treasury, according to the British "Who's Who"). The talk is to be given at an Englewood Union luncheon at the latter house on Oct. 6. Sir Alexander is to be the house guest of Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell D. Follansbee, who was instrumental in inducing him to come to Chicago, while he is in the city.

The William A. Nitzes, just back from a summer in California, are having a gay and busy week before their departure the end of the week for Princeton. Prof. Nitze is going to work at Princeton university on what is called a visiting professorship, and they'll be in Princeton, living at the Nassau Inn, for the next 7 months. Mr. Douglas Fairbanks designated only weekend house party this last weekend as especially for the Nitzes, as they are having other farewell parties given for them before they leave Chicago.

The Junior League committee that is in charge of selling subscription cards for the children's plays met in the League's new offices yesterday afternoon to plan their fall campaign. Mrs. Richard Gambrill Jr. is chairman of the group. The first two plays this season are to be "The Strange Adventure of Doctor Doolittle" and "The Blessing Papoose." The former will be presented for the first time on Saturday morning, Nov. 7. Each play is to continue for 6 weeks. All this information is from Mrs. Kenneth Carpenter, who, having just returned from a summer on Cape Cod, is resuming her duties as publicity chairman for the plays.

Douglas Fairbanks Decide Quiet Trip to Chicago.

The Livingston Fairbanks evidently decided quite recently to call off their trip to Chicago this winter for the purpose of presenting Mrs. Fairbank's mother, Miss Jean Boyce. Miss Boyce was to have had a joint debut with Mrs. Samuel Rinaker's daughter, Marjorie Horton, and the Rinakers were busy shopping around for an apartment in town for the winter. Mrs. Fairbank sent Mrs. Rinaker definite word that they weren't coming, though, and now the Rinakers are going to occupy the Fairbank apartment at 999 Lake Shore drive.

Homeward bound—The J. Andrews Kings, who have been in Paris and at the Dexter Cummings' hunting lodge in Austria, are expected back in Lake Forest not later than Friday . . . Dr. and and Mrs. J. Food Talk.

Two weeks ago we published a letter which was concerned with the crystallization of sugar in grape jelly. Shortly afterward we received a charming helpful letter from Mrs. P. M. W., who writes:

"I have been reading with much interest that one of your correspondents wishes to know how to make grape jelly without crystallization. If the fruit is left on the stems, and cooked and strained in this way, there will be clear jelly. Though you keep it for two or three years there will never be any sugar on the top of the glasses.

"I learned this quite by accident, and have used it successfully for ten years. I am glad to pass on the information."

Many women like to make grape jellies and jams the way our mothers and grandmothers did, while others like to use the new methods which employ fruit pectin. The following recipes are for the former. I'll supply you with pectin recipes tomorrow. If you enjoy experimenting, why not compare the two?

GRAPE JELLY.

Wash and pick over Concord grapes. Place in a kettle over a low fire and bring to the boiling point. Stir frequently in the beginning. After the boiling point has been reached, mash the grapes, and boil for thirty minutes. Remove from the fire. Strain the grapes through a jelly bag.

Measure the juice; place on the stove and bring to the boiling point; boil five minutes. Add three-fourths of a cup of heated sugar for each cup of juice. Boil five minutes longer. Skim and pour into sterile glasses. Cover with paraffin when jelly is cold.

The grape jam suggested below has been made by one family for three generations. The recipe is over 125 years old. Wonder if you have the patience to make it. It's mighty good.

GRAPE JAM.

Cut the seeds out of grapes with a sharp knife. To every pound of fruit add one-half pound of sugar. Cook over a slow fire half an hour. Remove and pour into a colander. Save the pulp as well as the juice. Boil the juice for half an hour; add the pulp, and cook slowly for half an hour longer. Stir frequently in order not to burn it. Pour into sterile glasses or a stone crock.

Help! Nearly forgot to tell you about a grand way to prepare tomorrow's veal birds.

VEAL BIRDS.

Use veal steak about ¼ inch thick. Cut into pieces four or five inches square. Take one square for each veal bird. Pound the pieces flat and rub over the surface of each with a slice of lemon. Make a dressing with cracker or bread crumbs. Mix and lay on top of the veal. With toothpicks pin up each piece to look, as much as is possible, like a bird. Roll individually in flour, and brown in butter.

When the birds are brown, add one-quarter of a cup of water to the pan. Cook, closely covered, either in the oven, or on top of the stove, using slow heat, for about three-quarters of an hour.

DRESSING FOR VEAL BIRDS.
For each cup of crumbs, add:
1 tablespoon of melted butter.
1 teaspoon grated onion.
½ teaspoon of sage.
¼ teaspoon of salt.

Bakers Learn About Bread at Their Show

An object lesson is provided for 2,000 delegates to the annual convention of the American Bakers association, which opened at Hotel Sherman yesterday morning. Nearly a thousand loaves of bread, the products of the various bakeries represented, are on display and are compared in price and weight, with the implication that all bakers aren't on a par as to the quantity and quality of their product.

These loaves were not submitted by the various bakeries but were purchased by consumers in ninety-four cities at all types of stores—even from home delivery services—and as a result the range in price and weight between the loaves is quite large. Also noticeable is the large percentage of loaves that are pre-sliced.

The idea of the silent object lesson is that of Henry Stude of Houston, Tex., president of the organization. The identities of the bakeries from which the loaves were purchased is not disclosed but many of the delegates have recognized their own brands of bread and some have been strident in their objections to the price and weight comparisons.

Bread as the "staff of life" will never be supplanted, even by freakish foods advocated by fadists and diet cultists, Dr. R. Adams Dutcher, head of the department of agriculture and biological chemistry of Pennsylvania State college, and chairman of the international committee on vitamin terminology, told the baker delegates.

Consumption of bread, Dr. Dutcher pointed out, has shrunk from an average of 5.4 bushels of wheat per capita per year, in prewar days, to 4.2 bushels last year, due to wartime "save wheat" propaganda, a shrinkage that has been partly responsible for the accumulated wheat surplus.

Among the delegates was Mrs. Yuki Misutani, wife of the leading baker of Japan, who is in Chicago visiting her son, a student at the American Institute School of Baking. She remarked upon the low retail cost of bread, which in Japan is much higher because all wheat is imported.

Baptist Preachers Hear 200 Women Are Homeless

The Baptist ministers' conference of Chicago yesterday instructed its civic committee to investigate a report that 200 homeless women are sleeping on the streets of the city. Prof. A. G. Baker of the University of Chicago divinity school was elected president of the conference at the semi-annual election, held in the Stevens building. Other officers are the Rev. A. C. Hodgson, Chicago Heights, reelected secretary; the Rev. G. M., Hadarba, vice president, and the Rev. J. G. Grace, treasurer.

DAY OF ATONEMENT OBSERVED BY JEWS WITH SOLEMN RITES

All day yesterday Jewish temples and synagogues were thronged with penitents celebrating Yom Kippur, or the Day of Atonement, which is one of the most solemn of the Jewish year.

Marking the completion of the ten day period which began with New Year of the Hebrew calendar, Yom Kippur extends from sunset of one day until sunset of the next. It is inaugurated with the chanting of "Kol Nidrai," a melody which reaches back into the earliest history of the race, and ends with the breaking of the fast at sunset.

Prayers and devotional meditations in the various places of worship attracted thousands of workers and their families, and many places of business were closed for the occasion.

Evening Classes Open with Over 52,000 in the Chicago Schools

Evening classes in twenty-two public schools in various parts of the city began last night with an attendance in excess of 52,000. Although the exact enrollment has not been computed yet, it likely will exceed last year's figure by many hundred, according to Dr. Charles J. Lunak, assistant superintendent in charge of night school instruction.

Work leading to a diploma is offered at six accredited high schools, twice as many as have been operated in any previous year. Additional accommodations have been prepared, too, for opportunity high school and grade school divisions.

The courses fall into seven general divisions: English for foreign language speaking persons; elementary subjects for those who failed to complete the grades; lip reading classes; regular high school subjects; home economics, trade millinery, and dress making; commercial subjects, and technical subjects related to trades and industries.

Expect 50,000 for Negro Song Festival for Unemployed

Ticket sales and reservations yesterday led the sponsors to believe that there will be 50,000 persons in attendance tonight at the Negro jubilee and festival to be held at Soldiers' field in celebration of the anniversary of Lincoln's emancipation of the slaves. The musical program will begin promptly at 8 o'clock and will continue for about three hours.

This will be the first benefit planned by the joint emergency relief fund which is soon to begin a campaign to raise $8,800,000 for the governor's unemployment commission. All proceeds will be turned over to the fund.

For weeks Negro church choirs have been rehearsing at the Ebenezer Baptist church and their efforts will culminate in the performance of a massed chorus of 1,000 voices. Spirituals are given considerable attention in the program and there will be numerous solos, dances, and instrumental selections. Congressman Oscar De Priest is chairman of the arrangements committee.

Bright Sayings of the Children

During one of our recent thunderstorms, Donald, 3½ years old, asked what made the thunder. I told him nature.

The little fellow sat awed and scared, and after a few loud peals of thunder, said appealingly, "Please call nature to stop the thunder."

How Do Women in the Movies Manage?

Filming a picture means weeks of work without a pause. The star can't stop because she is "indisposed!" Monthly sickness does not excuse her. If you know some woman who is in pictures, she will tell you how Hollywood women manage on days they menstruate. Try to find even an "extra" girl who doesn't carry Midol with her!

Midol is a marvelous discovery. It isn't harmful. It isn't a narcotic. But it acts in seven minutes—ends all menstrual pain or discomfort for hours at a stretch! Just ask for Midol at any drug store.

KLEENEX
DISPOSABLE TISSUES

SCHOOL days are here—start now to guard against colds and other epidemics.

One protection you can give your child is Kleenex disposable tissues instead of handkerchiefs.

Kleenex tissues are soft, dainty squares to use once and destroy. Compare the cleanly Kleenex way with the old-time handkerchief, which tests show may contain literally millions of germs!

Children particularly need Kleenex, because they are so careless, and because they contract nose and throat infections so readily. Supply your child today with Kleenex . . . teach him to use it once and then destroy.

Children prefer Kleenex

Children prefer Kleenex, once they try it. Made of cellulose, it's softer than any handkerchief. And nearly twice as absorbent—thus preventing irritation. And with Kleenex there's never any trouble over lost or stained handkerchiefs. It costs even less than laundering alone.

Many uses

There's nothing like Kleenex for saving your time and temper a dozen times a day. For wiping spectacles; for applying medicines; for minor bandages; for wiping razor blades . . . these are but a few of the many uses for Kleenex. And don't forget that Kleenex is declared the safest, most efficient way of removing face creams by those experienced in skin care. Its superior absorbency is needed to remove all impurities from the pores. All drug, dry goods and department stores sell Kleenex.

DISEASE GERMS that thrive in handkerchiefs used during colds include the Pneumococcus, Streptococcus (pus germ), Staphylococcus, and Catarrhalis, bacteriological tests show.

Lord & Taylor believes in NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING! and has used it continuously for 105 years

Lord & Taylor, Fifth Avenue, New York City

To know the latest offerings in merchandise, everyone turns to his or her newspaper.

That is the quickest, surest way of knowing and seeing the latest styles and values.

It is your newspaper that gives you price fluctuations. It is your newspaper that flashes the mandates of Paris fashions as soon as they are made. It is your newspaper that shows the last minute originations by domestic producers.

What a market place, therefore, for the latest news on your product!

For over a century, Lord & Taylor has used newspaper advertising as a permanent part of their business-building program. Note one of their earliest advertisements dated October 30, 1826, reproduced on this page.

No one in America speaks with any more authority of the result-producing power of newspaper advertising than Lord & Taylor.

And, you have seen Lord & Taylor advertising consistently appearing in the New York Herald Tribune. For here is a newspaper conceived, edited and distributed primarily to interest the family in the better-than-average home.

Real New York—which is neither "high life" or low life,—contains a greater number of prosperous citizens than any other city in the world. The total potential buying power of the New York Herald Tribune suburban circulation alone amounts to over $11,300,000 every week,

Read the New York Herald Tribune and instantly you know why it has such a definite place with the substantial New Yorker.

It was inevitable that such a newspaper would become a New York institution. It goes into homes where incomes are high and where they are more modest, but its concentration is on the families of substantial income in all sections of the market. It is truly New York's HOME newspaper.

If your product is entitled to a greater sale in this vital New York market, now is the time when the Herald Tribune facts should be on your desk. Write or wire for them.

CUBS LOSE, 15-7; GIANTS POUND FIVE HURLERS

T'S LIKE OLD TIMES; HESTON RUNS 63 YARDS

Willie's Son, Jack, Stars at Michigan.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Sept. 21.—[Special.]—The Michigan football squad played a regulation game this afternoon and at the conclusion Coach Harry Kipke was still puzzled regarding the comparative strength of his backfield candidates. The men who saw last spring and last fall showed class, but the ball carriers and lineman also demonstrated they can play football in the Yost style.

Jack Heston, second son of Willie Heston, old time Michigan star, furnished the thrill of the day when he returned a kick of 63 yards. He was brought down from behind. Herman Hickman tossed some acceptable passes and did some long distance punting.

It resulted for Harry Stinespring of Chicago, 148 pound quarter back, as the most consistent gainer. Stinespring also handled punts well. Bob Schmidt, of Grand Rapids did the best plunging and Louis Westover, Bay City, rivaled Stinespring in going around end.

The White team, manned by the men generally considered regulars, was upset by the Blues, or reserves, 15. A long pass, Jack Heston to Westover, put the Whites in scoring position after which Heston slashed through to a touchdown. The Blues scored first when McGrath, a big tackle from Grand Rapids blocked a kick by Jack Heston. The Whites recovered the ball behind their own goal.

BARONS SLOW DOWN

Minor casualties and the absence of several players who must take examinations to complete courses slowed the Barons practice yesterday to a mild workout.

Amos Stagg has no information and either of his Saturday opponents, Illinois and Cornell, and does not know which one will require his first real energy.

It seems likely that the first string line will be played as a unit, but the backs may be mixed up to produce two groups of approximately the same strength. Harian O. Page Jr. will not be available for the opener, because he has not completed a course, but all the others will be ready. Joe Pangle is back, and Ken Mackenzie reported yesterday, but he will not be used. With Paul Stagg, Gene Buzzell, Thom Sublin, Pete Zimmer, Bob Wallace, Don Birney, George Mahoney, Allen Summers, and Temple, the Barons have all the backs that will be needed, even for a double header.

Saturday's scrimmage indicated that nine of the reserve linemen can play creditable football, and while there will be no overstuffy of forwards, the position looks better than it did a week ago.

None of the players who missed practice yesterday was seriously injured and all of them are expected out today.

ILLINI SEEK CENTER

Champaign, Ill., Sept. 21.—[Special.]—Still dissatisfied with the results of his search for a center for the University of Illinois football team, Bob Zuppke today tried out Art O'Keefe of Evanston. O'Keefe, a member of the reserve team last year, was held back by his light weight, but this season he is somewhat heavier.

Lind Murray of Cairo, one of the best tackles on the freshmen team two years ago, returned today after a year's absence. Zuppke may try him at center also.

The line remains a big question. Zuppke seems to approve of Schustek and Frisk at end, but is far from decided about the other positions. Frank Parma, track captain, is being used considerably at tackle, and Jackson, a substitute last year, has improved enough to contend against the leading performers.

The Illini encounter St. Louis here in the opener Oct. 3. St. Louis, coached by Charles Walsh of Notre Dame, plays Friday night against Kansas.

Football, a Game or a Spectacle?

Few of the thousands who fill the stadia of the country each week appreciate football as a game. To the majority football is a brilliant pageant. The average spectator has not been trained to watch the coordination of the attacking team nor does he see the strategy of the defenders.

Football is a body contact sport. The rule makers have surrounded it with limitations, permissions and penalties designed in many instances to protect the players.

Wilfrid Smith, football reporter for THE TRIBUNE, will begin a series of articles tomorrow morning in which he will explain the fundamentals of the game. These articles, many of them illustrated, have been written for the average spectator. They are nontechnical and concise.

DEMPSEY GIVEN DIVORCE; WIFE HAS OTHER PLANS

Estelle, in Chicago, Calls Jack "Poor Sport."

Reno, Nev., Sept. 21.—(AP)—Jack Dempsey won a Reno divorce from Estelle Taylor, his actress wife, without a contest today.

A default decree was granted the former heavyweight boxing champion by Judge Thomas F. Morgan at the conclusion of a private hearing, at which Dempsey took the witness stand for about 20 minutes and related that his wife's motion picture and stage career had broken up their marriage.

The actress, who is appearing on the stage in Chicago, was not represented, having announced she will push her own divorce suit, which was filed in Los Angeles after her husband instituted action here.

"We are absolutely satisfied that the decree will be valid and binding in every state in the Union," Dempsey's counsel said today. A property settlement made in 1929 was approved by the court, but its terms were not made public.

"Not Right Away."

Dempsey told interviewers he does not intend to remarry—"anyway not right away." He smiled after the hearing and remarked "it wasn't as bad as I thought it would be." When he entered the courthouse he seemed to be as nervous as a fighter appearing on his first preliminary card.

He was reported to have testified that before their marriage six and a half years ago, she agreed to settle down to home life after a short time, but failed to carry out the agreement, even to the extent of refusing to live with him when he was engaged in fight promotion work in Chicago.

Dempsey interrupted a barnstorming tour of western states to come here for the trial.

He plans to go to Midas, in eastern Nevada, to work as a laborer in a mine, of which he is part owner, to condition himself further for a comeback campaign which he hopes may lead again to the heavyweight title.

WIFE WON'T RECOGNIZE IT.

Estelle Taylor accused Jack Dempsey of poor sportsmanship last night at a loop theater where she is appearing, and said she would not recognize the divorce he obtained from her yesterday in Reno.

"I'm sorry that at this crucial time of Jack's career he should do anything so unsportsmanlike," said the former heavyweight champion's actress wife.

"Jack may feel very free at this moment, but until the California courts, where we both maintain our residences, declare me free I shall still declare myself Mrs. Jack Dempsey."

She said action will be taken to have the Reno divorce invalidated when her own divorce complaint is heard in Los Angeles.

VINES WINS FIRST MATCH IN COAST TOURNEY, 6-0, 6-0

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 21.—(AP)—Ellsworth Vines, Pasadena, Cal., national singles champion, overwhelmed Jack Beckman of Los Angeles in the first round of the Pacific southwest tournament today. The scores were 6-0, 6-0.

George Lott of Philadelphia, seeded No. 2, eliminated Hyde Braley, 6-2, 6-2. John Van Ryn, another favorite, won the first set from Dick Hinckley 6-2, 6-4, and managed to stave off Hinckley's rally in the second set to win, 8-6.

Campolo's Back; Knocks Out a Mr. Torriani in 2d

Mrs. Vare Shoots 82, Ties 3 Others for Golf Medal

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 21.—[Special.]—Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare, the defending champion, and three others tied for the medal today in the qualifying round of the 35th women's national golf tournament. Mrs. Vare weakened with sixes on the last two holes and had to share the day's honors with Miss Maureen Orcutt, one of the metropolitan district's leading players; Mrs. O. S. Hill of Kansas City, the western champion, and Mrs. Harley Higbie of Detroit. Each had 82, one over women's par.

It was a day in which interest was scattered between the young and old guard, among the American players and the visitor from England, Miss Enid Wilson. There were occasions when Miss Wilson seemed almost on the brink of approaching the qualifying limit of 92, but there was both good and mediocre golf in her round and she survived the ordeal with an 88.

All Four Get Medals.

It was decided to award medals to each of the leading four and thus the necessity of playing off the tie was eliminated.

The Chicago girl, Miss Virginia Van Wie, who met defeat against Mrs. Vare in the finals of 1928 and 1930, and Mrs. L. C. Nelson of Dayton, O., the former Miss Ariel Gantt of Chicago, were three strokes back of the leaders at 85. Miss Marion Hollins of Santa Cruz, Cal., and a newcomer, Mrs. Leon Solomon of Memphis, Tenn., forged close to the top with 86 each.

The failure of Mrs. H. B. Stetson of Philadelphia, titleholder in 1926, was the outstanding surprise, while Miss Margaret Curtis, who won the crown in 1907 and again in 1911, was the recipient of considerable applause as she holed out. A 9 at the last hole, however, gave her a 96, which prevented her from competing in the match play which begins tomorrow.

Chicagoans Lose in Playoff.

Mrs. Elaine Rosenthal Reinhardt of Chicago, runner-up in 1914, went down at the fourth extra hole in the qualifying playoff. Miss Peggy Wattles of Buffalo and Miss Jane Weiller of Chicago met the same fate, while Miss Jane Broadwell of Long Meadow, Mass., was the winner of the single place at stake.

Among the other qualifiers were Miss Helen Hicks, the Metropolitan champion, who encountered difficulties caused chiefly by her wooden club play; Miss Francis Williams of Allentown, Pa., winner of the eastern title a year ago, and Miss Marjorie Kerr, the English player who turned in 87s. Miss Wilson was in the group at 88 along with Miss Martha Parker, former district title holder, and Mrs. Leona Pressler of San Gabriel, Cal., one of the best of the west's delegates.

Miss Bernice Wall of Oshkosh turned in an 89, Mrs. Leo Federman of Glen Oaks a 90, as did Miss Ada MacKenzie, and Mrs. Marion Turpie Lake, Long Island champion.

Miss Orcutt Cards 38.

Miss Orcutt's 38 over the second half was the best incoming score of the 85 competitors, and it included an eagle 3, based on woman's par, at the eleventh when she rolled in a 12 foot putt and a birdie four at the 14th.

Mrs. Vare was out in 40. The five time national champion hooked her

Talking it Over

BY ARCH WARD.

As long as there is nothing much at stake this department does not particularly care whether Tuffy Griffith beats up Ernie Schaaf at Chicago Stadium tomorrow night or vice versa. But at the risk of exposing a barbaric nature we hope there is enough boisterous action to make a night on West Madison street worth while.

Joe Foley, the new public relations man at the Stadium, guarantees that the rowdyism will be sufficient to satisfy the most dyed in the claret ringsider. He writes in one of his literary contributions that the program "is fairly alive with hard punchers."

If tomorrow night's entertainers disappoint Mr. Foley he will suggest to Nate Lewis and Sydney Strotz that hereafter they revert to bare knuckles or the cestus to revive the art of the knockout. He is so confident, however, in the punching power of Schaaf and Griffith that he fears the commissioners will insist upon an investigation after the bout to determine whether or not their gloves were loaded with cement and iron bolts.

Judged solely by his only other appearance in Chicago, Schaaf stands a good chance to make a mug out of Mr. Foley. His showing against Paul Pantaleo, an eight round draw last March, added nothing to his pulling power. But something seems to have happened to Schaaf since that match. He switched from a somewhat timid style to a two fisted, hammer and tong offensive that has skyrocketed him to the top ranks of the heavyweights.

Since being held to a draw by Pantaleo the former Tilden High school football player, Schaaf, has had 14 fights. He has won them all except a decision lost to Tommy Loughran. Nine of his victories have been by knockouts, seven of them in succession. His victims have included Jimmy Maloney, twice; Jack Gagnon, Angus Snyder, Leo Williams, Vittorio Campolo, and Roberto Roberti. That's not a list to dazzle you, but neither was Jack Dempsey's before he won the title from Willard.

If the card the Stadium presents for its fall opening doesn't attract the fans, there isn't much use of trying to popularize professional boxing. It will be evidence that the interest is gone.

Reelection of Gen. John V. Clinnin of Chicago as chairman of the National Boxing association is a boost for the game. He probably has done more to bring about better understanding among the various state commissions than any individual.

Gen. Clinnin has impressed upon the boxing leaders of the country the idea that the National Boxing association is a balance wheel for all the governing boards, much like the Amateur Athletic union in its sphere. It is his opinion that the only way the game can prosper is for all the organizations to work together. That is why he hopes that New York, California, Pennsylvania and Massachusetts, the only states not members of the N. B. A., soon will be in the fold.

They say that fame is fleeting and Willie Heston of Michigan, one of football's immortals, is beginning to believe it.

A Detroit photographer asked Mr. Heston on the opening day of practice at Ann Arbor to pose with his sons, Willie and Jack, who are candidates for the Michigan eleven.

He suggested that Willie Sr., hold the ball, if he knew how. Heston, thinking the camera man was kidding, took the ball but said he didn't know much about holding it as he had been only a sub on his high school second team.

"Sorry," said the photographer, "but we won't need the ball in the picture anyhow."

Realizing now that the photographer was serious, Heston pulled out a watch and said:

"See here, young man. I won that playing football. I played here three years and made the All American every season. I——"

The photographer interrupted with: "Well, I guess you can hold the ball."

Willie Sr. is a daily spectator at Michigan's football practice. He has moved from Detroit to Ann Arbor to be closer to the boys.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 21.—The Senators today dealt the White Sox their ninth consecutive licking, 5 to 3, and the Chicago club, with five more games to play, can clinch eighth place with one more defeat. After the mathematical cinch has been achieved the boys can ease up and win a few, but, theoretically, the Tigers, who are five games ahead of them, still have a chance to tie.

Ted Lyons pitched for the Sox, allowing eight hits, but bases on balls were very important in the defeat. Bump Hadley held the Sox to five hits in six innings and Firpo Marberry, who came in when Hadley yielded to a pinch hitter, allowed only three, two of them in the ninth.

Sox Score First.

The Sox scored with the least possible delay when Lu Blue began the game with a double to right, went to third on Sullivan's helpful hit to right and came in at a nonchalant lope on Jolley's fly. Fothergill then put a stop to this sort of thing when he hit into a double play, forcing Sullivan at second.

The first four Washington runs originated on bases on balls. In the first, Rice walked with one man out and scored on Gill's triple to the extreme angle where the left field meets the foul line. Fothergill had a long gallop and his throw went to third on the bounce.

At the age of 41, Sam Rice, who began his trade as a pitcher, remains a great athlete, and his legs ask no gentle consideration. He spun around the lot on this hit with his long shanks kicking the yards behind him in big strides. Appling lost a triple in the fourth when Sam bounded 50 yards to pluck down his long drive with a backhanded grab close to the center field wall. Appling had one triple in the second, but Kerr and Garrity couldn't do anything for him, so his hit, like so many hits, was a total waste.

Another Walk Means a Run.

Again in the third a Washington hitter walked and scored. This time, as Hadley took his stroll, Lyons bent a sad, patient gaze on Red Ormsby, who didn't see the pitch in the same light with him. Myer then walked on four that were not subject to argument, and both advanced on Rice's sacrifice bunt. Hadley scored on Manush's sacrifice fly.

In the fourth Spencer walked, advanced on Hadley's sacrifice bunt, and came home from second as Rice's grounder hopped wrong, hit Appling on the knee, and bounced into left field for a hit.

Lyons, who walked, was the only member of the Sox to reach first in the third, fourth, and fifth innings, but Sullivan doubled off the right field wall in the sixth and scored the second run for his troupe when Jolley

Johnson's Series Chance Depends on Poison Ivy

[This is the seventh of a series of sketches on the St. Louis Cardinals.]

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 21.—Syl Johnson, who has been scheduled for certain pitching duty in the world series, seems right now to be in a deuce of a fix, to express it mildly. He can't pitch and he can't sit on the bench, having been attacked by poison ivy at a picnic several days ago.

If Syl doesn't heal properly, it will be the first time in history that a right handed pitcher has been kept out of a world series on account of mistaking a poison ivy patch for a bed of roses. It is said that several left handers have made the mistake, but even this does not appear in the record books.

Although Johnson broke into organized baseball in 1920 in his native city of Portland, Ore., and is just completing his tenth major league season, he still takes his baseball seriously and, 'tis said, can't eat his supper after losing a tough ball game.

He's One of Those Pitchers Who Think They're Hitters.

Though pitching always has been his work, he is like Guy Bush of the Cubs and several other successful pitchers in that he feels he is a born hitter and that baseball has been deprived of much batting power because he hasn't been in the lineup every day. He also says he slides well and never goes out socially without carrying a picture which shows him saving a game against New York through an elaborate slide into second base.

The Cardinals are mostly hotel dwellers in the summer time and Johnson is the only one who lives in a house. He does this so his four year old daughter, Beverly, can have a yard in which to play.

Johnson rooms on the road with Hallahan and shares Bill's interest in prizefights. However, he will pass up most any attraction to view a display of Chinese rugs. And he owns more Chinese rugs than he has floor space to spread 'em on.

He's Pitched 7 Innings in 4 World Series Games.

Johnson has appeared in four world series games, two in 1928 and two in 1930, without ever drawing a won or lost verdict and in four appearances he pitched a total of seven relief innings. He will be first relief man this year if Haines' ailing arm gets well, but if Jesse doesn't recover Sylvester probably will get a start. In his seven world series innings he struck out five, walked four, and allowed eight hits. He allowed four hits in two innings in 1928 but it took the A's five innings to get their four.

Johnson hasn't always been a successful pitcher. He lost 26 while winning 12 at Portland in 1921 but this did not prevent him from being sold to Detroit for a reported $40,000 and players. With Vernon in 1925 he lost 17 games while winning 3 but was with the Cardinals the following year. With the Cardinals he hasn't been under the .500 mark since he returned from Syracuse in 1927.

When he was beset with poison ivy Johnson was in the midst of a strike out run. On Sept. 12 he raised the string to 22 scoreless innings, but after the game was told not to don his uniform until the poison had disappeared.

PRO FOOTBALL.

WILLING to concede its good points and unable to find fault with collegians for "prostituting" their campus gridiron experience, The Wake originally was not entirely enthusiastic about pro football. We are experiencing a change of heart. Probably the game itself, with its influx of ex-college stars, is changing. Certainly the caliber of performance is improved from three or four years ago.

At any rate, we expect to see more pro football games this fall than ever before. We do not anticipate the thrills experienced when two traditional college rivals meet, but we do anticipate keen contests along the same general tactics employed by the campus boys. There will be more deliberation, perhaps less of the do or die for Old Siwash spirit, probably fewer mistakes of judgment, hardly as machinelike teamwork as our best amateurs display. It will be, in a sense, post-graduate college football.

Pro elevens now are recruited almost entirely from graduated collegians. While salary for services induces the effort there is now, we believe, the lure of combat and goodfellowship among the players. In short, many of them have retained a love for the gridiron sport at least secondary to the pay envelope. The training grind is not as severe as on the campus. The joy or sorrow of victory, no doubt, is less keen, but it is a good spectacle for those who cannot secure tickets for college games. That is how we accept it—as an exhibition by some of the game's greatest players.

At Loyola field last Friday night the Bears and Cleveland put up a remarkable exhibition for so early in the season. Although the score was one sided, it was more interesting than many college games with similar inequality because Cleveland had formations and a forward pass attack which gained at some stages of the fray, although the visitors, as an eleven, were outclassed.

Wisely sponsored, pro football has a future in the sport calendar.

"Old Hack."

[Apologies to Oliver Wendell Holmes.]

Aye, tear our tattered hero down!
Long has he been on high,
And many an eye has danced to see
His homers split the sky.

Around him rang the grand stand's shouts
And burst the bleachers' roar—
The pudgy one's terrific drives
Shall sweep the clouds no more.

He had a splendid record
Which topped his every foe,
But "Freedom's" price was very high,
So now our Hack must go.

But whether he knocked a homer
Or whether he weakly fanned,
He always showed us what he had,
So give the boy a hand!

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The Cubs and Giants completed their season's arguments yesterday in a picnic game atmosphere. Just about everything thrown by a corporal's guard of Brulin pitchers was converted into a base hit, but with nothing at stake it all was accepted as harmless fun and no complaints were voiced over a final count of New York, 15; Chicago, 7. It gave the Polo Ground inhabitants ten wins out the year's 22 tussles with their ancient enemies.

In the course of the merry making five Cub pitchers took a hand in the battle, and one was about as bad as the other. First there was Bob Smith, whose opening inning became a nightmare because of a glaring blunder by Cuyler. Possibly this discouraging start was the cause of Smith getting into a jam that Les Sweetland and Johnny Welch couldn't check until seven more New Yorkers had scored in the third.

Although beaten yesterday, the Cubs clinched third place because of the defeat of Brooklyn by St. Louis.

Rookie Hurler Beats Cubs.

With a hopeless lead against them before they even warmed up to their task, the Cubs probably can be forgiven for not conducting themselves in a more boisterous fashion against a youth named Harold Schumacher, who was making his first start since being recalled from the Giants' Bridgeport, Conn., farm. The choicest of the ten hits off his delivery was Vin Barton's twelfth homer in the second.

Smith's affairs were so complicated in the first inning that for a time it looked as if he'd never get a man out. Allen tripled to right and Leach walked. Allen strolled home on Terry's single to center, Fullis also singled to center, but Cuyler let the ball go through his hands. While Cuyler was chasing it almost to the fence, Fullis dashed around to the plate behind Leach and Terry. Then Jackson singled, but Vergez fanned and Marshall bounced to Herman for a double play.

Fullis Knocks Out Smith.

As soon as it became obvious that the Giants were going to stage another rebellion against Smith in the third he was excused. Terry singled to center and Fullis' drive to left bounced past Dan Taylor for a homer. Sweetland stepped in and Jackson greeted him with a two bagger through short. Jackson was too weary to run any farther than third on Vergezs single. A double by Mar-

GRIFFITH HOLDS KEY TO SCHAAF'S BOXING FUTURE

Tuffy Can Wreck Title Campaign Tomorrow.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Ernie Schaaf, who this year has waged a successful campaign for recognition as candidate for the heavyweight championship, may see all that he has built pushed over by Tuffy Griffith tomorrow night at the Stadium. Of course, Johnny Buckley, Ernie's manager, and Jack Sharkey, his teacher, don't think this result possible. If they had they would not have permitted Schaaf to fight Griffith.

This fight is all important to Griffith. If he can't whip Schaaf there is no future in continuing against Risko [whom he has beaten three times], or the Levinskys, O'Kellys and Paulinos. Fighting for Tuffy then will become an occupation without hope of title.

The bout is just as important to Schaaf. He has whipped his rivals one by one. He sent young Max Baer back to the coast when Baer made a premature invasion of the east. He has proved at the expense of Maloney, Campolo, and Roberti, that he can knock 'em dead.

Knockout Is Schaaf Goal.

But Schaaf must continue his winning pace. A ten round victory over Griffith might suffice. But if the 200 pound easterner rips into Griffith, carries the fight to him and connects for a knockout, he will advance within sighting distance of a title chance. In this ambition, Jack Sharkey is cooperating. Sharkey and Carnera are holding their elimination meet Oct. 1 and the winner alone will stand between Schaaf and Champion Max Schmeling. That is, if Schaaf whips Griffith.

So much for possibilities. Those who have watched Schaaf in his drills at the Chicago loop gymnasium believe he is in condition. His frequent battles [Campolo Aug. 31 and Roberti Sept. 10] have kept him fit. He can punch. His boxing is better than at any time in his career.

Schaaf must be considered the favorite. Only those who are prejudiced in Tuffy's favor refuse to concede Schaaf's potential power and ability. And they would shout for Tuffy no matter the opponent. This group is counter-balanced, however, by other Chicago fans who underestimate Griffith. To them Griffith always has been a second rater. For them, Griffith must knock out Schaaf.

Other Bouts Promise Action.

The show tomorrow night may be one of the best heavyweight fights ever held in Chicago. Griffith cannot be accused of timidity. And Schaaf likewise has proved his valor. If each man fights from the first tap to the end there will be action and more action.

But each has been labeled overcautious at one time or other. And if either Schaaf or Griffith holds back, the bout will be just another exhibition.

Fortunately for the Stadium patrons the other matches offer excellant entertainment. Lou Scozza and Larry Johnson are passable. If Johnson can be pried out of frequent clinches it will be a fight.

Dave Maier and Tiger Thomas in the other eight round bout, it is predicted, will draw the cheers. Each is far enough down the list of his division that he has no prized reputation which he must protect while the fans yawn.

They'll Come Out Swinging.

John Schwako, a husky farmer lad, and the elongated Salvatore Ruggirello, having no cleverness, must rely on force. The man who hits first probably will be the winner.

Matchmaker Nate Lewis has added speed to the card in the two preliminary five round bouts. Phil Ross and Pep Justo, both Chicagoans, can be depended upon for a satisfactory performance. Solly Schuman and Hymie Wiseman, featherweights, are worthy of a feature position on any other program. Wiseman is the candidate of a syndicate of Des Moines citizens who have underwritten the costs of his training. Schuman is more experienced, perhaps, but that advantage is offset by Wiseman's cleverness. The late comers tomorrow night will miss one of the best fights.

OLSON WORRIES HANLEY; HE'S SO GOOD AT PUNTING

Oliver Olson, sophomore full back candidate at Northwestern, has created one of the major problems facing Coach Dick Hanley as he goes about the task of organizing his football squad for the season.

Olson hails from Wheaton, Ill., the town that produced such former football stars as Red Grange, and Vic Gustafson. He started the season as the third string full back with Reb Russell, last year's regular, and Ken Mennan, Oak Park husky, conceded an edge.

He Is a Great Punter.

There is one department, however, in which Olson so far outshines his mates that it appears he cannot be kept out of the lineup. Olson's chief bid for recognition is punting. He is one of the greatest kickers to enroll at Northwestern in recent years.

Olson's ability as a ball carrier is above the ordinary, judging from the performance he turned in against the freshmen last Saturday when he reeled off several long runs, one of them for a touchdown. However, his blocking is below par.

With Olson out of the lineup the kicking assignment falls to either Pug Rentner or Will Lewis, neither of whom has been able to get the distance out of their kicks that Olson does.

Good Break for Wildcats.

All three of last year's kickers, Woodworth, Hanley, and Bruder, having completed their competition, the advent of such a kicker as Olson is a fortunate break for the Wildcats this fall. However, until the newcomer improves his blocking Coach Hanley is undecided about using him regularly.

The Wildcats went on a new practice routine yesterday with one drill a day instead of two. The opening of classes stopped the morning drills. A long forward passing drill was part of the program, Hanley being eager to develop receivers who can hang on to Pug Rentner's passes.

NEW NOTRE DAME FULLBACK

Both Lukats and Steve Banas, who were fighting it out for the full back post up until Saturday's scrimmage, were made over left half backs. Lukats is expected to report in uniform this week and may be able to play against Indiana Oct. 3 at Bloomington.

Meanwhile Anderson and Coach Jack Chevigny were on the lookout for any other promising back field or line material which might be converted to full back in case Lukats' injury fails to respond to treatment. Anderson will give several candidates a chance at the position in the varsity-reserves game Saturday for the benefit of the Rockne Memorial Fieldhouse fund.

team was put through light scrimmage this afternoon in preparation for the Ohio university game next Saturday.

The sophomores were outstanding. Jones, 200 pound full back, waded through the opposition with the skill of a veteran. Lyons and Dickey played well at end. Lyons is a 200 pound colored boy from Fort Wayne who is making his football debut this year as a sophomore. Otto Kuss, 215 pound tackle; Anglemeyer, 190 pound tackle, and Ray Dauer outclassed their rivals.

BURDICK RETURNS

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 21.—[Special.]—Quentin Burdick, veteran half back who was stricken with appendicitis last week, was back in a Minnesota uniform today as the football squad began its second week of drills on the rain-soaked field. He only participated in light work, but outside of loss of weight he was none the worse for his stay in the hospital.

IOWA DRILLS IN RAIN

Iowa City, Ia., Sept. 21.—[Special.]—Handicapped by a steady rain, University of Iowa football candidates practiced today with a temporary first team scrimmaging the reserves. Hickman, half back, and Sansen, full back, gained through holes opened by the varsity forwards.

Joe Laws, left handed quarter back, replaced Graham at quarter, and Kritz was at the other half. Samuelson, 200 pound tackle, continued to supplant Rogers at tackle, and Fisher, end, was moved to the first team.

BADGERS ON DEFENSIVE

Madison, Wis., Sept. 21.—[Special.]—Candidates for the Wisconsin football team today were given the first defensive work of the year—a long session against forward passes.

The year's first bit of real scrimmage featured the afternoon session. Four teams were given the ball for about 15 minutes each. Many long gains were registered. Linfor, Ellicker, Rebholz and Schiller reeling off flashy runs while Schmeller, Strain and Beize did some effective plunging.

TACKLES WORRY KIZER

Lafayette, Ind., Sept. 21.—[Special.]—Tackle prospects came in for overtime work this afternoon as Coach Noble Kizer endeavored to strengthen the weakest spot in the Purdue lineup.

Helmer, Ungers, Chubb, Boswell and Husar are listed as the outstanding tackle prospects, but so far no individual has displayed any unusual talent.

SOX'S FIGHT FOR 8TH PLACE NEARS END; BEATEN, 5-3

sacrificed and Fothergill singled to left.

Senators Add Two in Sixth.

Cronin walked and scored for Washington in the sixth, reaching second on a wild pitch that got away from Garrity and third on Kuhel's single to Kerr. He scored on Bluege's infield hit to Sullivan. Spencer singled to center, scoring Kuhel, but Watwood threw to third, nailing Bluege.

A fat utility catcher named Phelps tried to hit for Hadley in this inning, but contributed the third out, and Firpo Marberry took over the work in the seventh to strike out Appling and Garrity and throw out Kerr himself.

Lyons beat out a single to Myer in the eighth, but three infield outs nullified that modest sally.

Wild Rally in Ninth.

Only Lyons had reached first against Marberry until Watwood walked in the ninth. Thereupon, with two out, Kerr and Fonseca, who hit for Garrity, both singled. Watwood came in on Fonseca's hit and Kerr took third, but Lyons couldn't sustain the rally and the Sox lost as he grounded out to Bluege.

Al Schacht, the coaching clown or clowning coach of the Washington club, was not at work today, but spent the afternoon peering through the wire screen in the press coop. There are those who have seen Mr. Schacht's clowning unkind enough to say he ought to work behind a screen always. He was not at work because the day was Yom Kippur, a holiday in his religion, and when he explained this to Ted Lyons of the Sox, Mr. Lyons said, "Hell, when we have a holiday, we play a double header."

Incidentally, it may not be generally known that Mr. Schacht and his fellow artist, Nick Altrock, have broken up. Al states that temperament was in no way responsible for the split, explaining that Mr. Altrock, in a fit of mood, clouted him over the head with a 24 pint suitcase one evening as they were leaving Detroit.

"Something Extra" Hurts.

"Then he was always putting some thing extra into his work when we were wrestling or fighting in our act," says Mr. Schacht. "One day he would run his thumb in my eye clear up to the shoulder. The next day he would put his knee in my ribs. Another time during our act he belted me one on the nose and fractured it about four inches from the tip. So now we never speak socially, although, of course, we continue our artistic association and the customers never suspect that we are ignoring each other like a couple of strange Englishmen in a railroad compartment when we are all tangled up in a wrestling bout."

Frank Grube, the indis rubber catcher of the White Sox, started the trade today by withdrawing from the pleasure after a long spell of steady work. At one stage of this trip Grube caught 46 innings in two double headers in two days, including three extra inning games, and in the 46th inning of this stretch tried to beat out a bunt, explaining that he was too tired to swing.

Frank Garrity, an understudy with no previous league experience, major or minor, took his place. But this Garrity comes from Holy Cross college at Worcester, where a young man generally has to play class AA ball or a little better to make the grade.

ISO-VIS TEST CAR No. 14—STUDEBAKER—

on Exhibition Here Today

SEE this veteran of the Indianapolis Speedway at your Studebaker dealer. It stepped off a year's average mileage on the track in a little more than three weeks of high speed, day and night driving. But the important thing is the fine condition of its engine today.

Your engine can have the same protection this one enjoys. Use New Iso-Vis—the only motor oil that will not thin out from dilution.

This Studebaker was used in the lubrication study conducted by the Contest Board of the American Automobile Association with 13 makes of cars. Read the facts from its certified report.

Some of the parts in your engine are fitted to within one one-thousandth of an inch. They need the best possible lubrication. Change your oil this week and change to New Iso-Vis.

AAA REPORT

certifies to excellent lubrication by New Iso-Vis in Studebaker

1 Iso-Vis Motor Oil did not thin out from dilution.

2 During the entire test of 9,000 miles, all parts of engine and chassis were lubricated effectively.

3 Consumption: Iso-Vis Motor Oil in 1,000 mile test at 30 m. p. h.—less than 2 qts. At higher speeds, all oils showed greatly increased consumption.

4 Carbon: only 6.1 grams per cylinder at 30 miles per hour, using Iso-Vis 30 (Heavy).

6 Red Crown Ethyl Gasoline used—did not knock.

shall scored Jackson. O'Farrell walked and Schumacher singled to center, but lost the hit when Cuyler's throw forced O'Farrell at second. Verges counted on the play. When a hit by Allen sent Marshall home, Welch was summoned to clean up. He did so after hits by Leach and Terry had driven in two more men.

Barton Hits Homer.

The New Yorkers got down to a normal basis in the fourth by restricting themselves to one run. Successive hits by Marshall, O'Farrell and Schumacher did this, and there might have been some more if Herman hadn't engineered a double play. Not that it meant anything, but the Cubs grabbed back this run in the fifth on a double by Hartnett and Herman's single. This, along with Barton's homer in the second, gave the north siders a modest total of two.

Charley Grimm, who is nursing a lame back, was sent up to swing for Welch in the seventh and the Giants furnished him with bargain transportation for the entire trip around the bags. He walked and went to second on Jurges' bunt. A wild pitch put him on third and a passed ball moved him across the plate.

Teachout's appearance in the eighth stirred up the Giants again so they uncorked four hits for two more runs.

Schumacher lost his compass in the eighth and Bell, who led off with a single was forced to score because of three subsequent passes. Then the Giants kept their day's record intact by not letting Baecht get away without being damaged in the ninth. They pounded him for three hits and one run. This was followed by two for the Cubs in their final half. A double by Bell, and singles by D. Taylor and Hartnett were the factors in this happening.

CHICAGO JOCKEY MAKES VETERANS SWALLOW DUST

Roble, Prince Atheling Take Hammond Purse.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Sometimes champions grow up right in Chicago's back yard and Chicagoans know nothing about it.

The leading jockey in America this year is Harry Roble, a 17 year old kid from Cicero. Now, be honest, how many of you racing fans knew Harry Roble was the country's leading jockey and how many others of you knew he lived out in Cicero?

It was but a little more than a year ago that Harry Roble first donned silks at Hawthorne and rode in a race. It was just a few days later when he piloted his first winner home. This happened at Lincoln Fields on Aug. 31, 1930. Since then the kid has kicked and whipped 189 winners past the winning post, which has put him far out in front in the race for the American jockey championship.

Regulars Miss Guess.

A few days ago John Marsch of Chicago bought Roble's contract, but it didn't cause much of a stir. "Just another one of those lightweight punks," remarked most of the racing regulars, but Harry Roble made a crowd of 9,000 take notice of his riding skill in the Hammond Claiming purse, which was the topliner at Lincoln Fields yesterday. He was riding Prince Atheling, the favorite, and everybody watches a favorite.

Rounding the bend into the stretch Roble and Prince Atheling were back next to last in the field of seven. Then they began their drive toward the front. Roble rode like many of our famous jockeys of other years would have ridden. Slowly but surely he picked up horse after horse and went past them. All the time he was patting Prince Atheling with the leather in no gentle gestures.

Finally it developed into a two horse race between Prince Atheling and Culloden and a jockey duel between the kid, Roble, and the veteran C. E. Allen. Maybe Roble was on the best horse, but it looked like he outrode Allen to fly on past and get the decision by half a length in the final strides.

Reverberate Is Third.

He made Prince Atheling run the mile and a sixteenth in the good time of 1:45 3-5. Reverberate was third. In the mutuels Prince Atheling paid $5.74.

Mr. Tony Pelleteri, the lucky man from New Orleans, isn't one of those fellows who run their horses just to win bets. Those $1,800 purses look pretty good to Tony and it is possible he has the correct theory after all. At least every favorite player in the crowd at Lincoln Fields yesterday thought so.

Tony sent his fleet footed, well bred High Tom out in the Mount Greenwood purse at six furlongs. High Tom immediately became the shortest priced favorite of the season. The favorite players went all the way to the bottom of their hip pockets to drag out musty old money to wager on High Tom.

The price against him dropped and dropped. At post time he was at 34 cents to a dollar. He caused his backers no worry whatever. He romped home two and a half lengths in front of Phantasime, and those who backed him must have experienced a feeling much like they were taking candy from a baby.

Wins on Class.

High Tom was bought in New York recently by Pelleteri and this was just about the cheapest crowd he has ever faced. He didn't run fast, for the time for the six furlongs was 1:13 2-5. Must have been his class rather than his speed that brought the easy victory. Very Well from Alderman Coughlin's barn was third. In the mutuels High Tom paid $2.68 to win, $2.44 to place, and $2.26 to show. It will be a long time before he gets into such a soft spot.

Bill Fronk rode a brilliant race to win the Logan Square claiming purse with Silver Lake, which races for Fred Burton of Chicago, but after he had won the race handily Jockey Fronk discovered he was in bad with the stewards. He drew a 10 day suspension for interferring with Uncle Henry, knocking this heavily backed campaigner back so far at the head of the stretch he finished outside of the money. Sister Mary was second and Maid of Honor third.

Landis Fines Youngstown and Newark Ball Clubs

Baseball Commissioner Landis yesterday levied fines on the Newark, N. J., and Youngstown, O., clubs for failure to file transfer agreements with his office. He fined Newark $150 and Youngstown $100.

New York, Sept. 21.—[Special.]—Joseph E. Widener's Mr. Sponge made it four stake victories in a row as the Aqueduct course opened its fall meeting today. Mr. Sponge captured the Bay Shore handicap, worth $2,490 to the winner, in the easiest sort of fashion from a single rival, the Flying Horse farm's Commuter.

He has won in succession the Delaware handicap at Saratoga, the fall high weight handicap, and the Manhattan handicap at Belmont Park, and the Bay Shore. He is at the top of his form as a 4 year old and never looked better than today, when he scampered seven furlongs under 123 pounds in 1:25 3-5.

When Battleship was scratched from the Bay Shore, Commuter was the only one left to oppose Mr. Sponge. Commuter was in with 102 pounds, and received surprising support, considering the record of his opponent.

Commuter was held at 3 to 1 with Mr. Sponge at 2 to 7, a price which many considered surprisingly long. The odds had opened at 1 to 4 against Mr. Sponge, but had lenghtened under support for Commuter. Mack Garner was in the saddle.

The Grenada steeplechase served as the secondary feature and the Rolling Plains stable's Sun Eclipse got home first. The same stable scored a double in the course of the afternoon as Rash Moment, bearing the same colors, won the fifth race, for maiden 2 year olds. Rash Moment was making his debut.

Twenty Grand to Race Sun Beau, Mate in Gold Cup

The big three of the American turf—Twenty Grand, Sun Beau and Mate—are to fight it out in the $25,000 added Hawthorne gold cup on Oct. 3.

Sun Beau was the last to be nominated, his entry arriving at the Hawthorne offices yesterday along with further information that Sun Beau and five other Kilmer color bearers will be shipped here early next week. Twenty Grand and Mate had been nominated several days ago.

Secretary Joe McLennan also was advised that Misstep was going along soundly in his workouts and that if he answered the final question in his preparation he would be a certain starter for the gold cup.

It has been definitely announced that Mate will move to Hawthorne from Woodbine for the gold cup, and Hawthorne officials are confident the Whitney board of strategy will accept the issue with Twenty Grand.

There was a heavy advance sale of tickets yesterday for the Charity day racing program which is to be staged at Lincoln Fields on Thursday afternoon. All gate receipts and a $5,000 donation by the Lincoln Fields Jockey club will go to the Will county committee for the unemployed.

"Persons who hold passes to the Lincoln Fields grounds may use them, but we hope they will bring along a couple or three friends and buy tickets for them," C. Bruce Head, general manager of the Lincoln Fields track, said.

All employés at the track will buy admission tickets and several of the higher paid officials purchased big blocks of

...shland Editor Writes of Wisconsin System.

...shland, Wis., Sept. 21.—[Special.] ..."La Follette Socialism," a book discussing economic and political issues confronting the people of the nation and particularly the citizens of Wisconsin, was published today. The author is John B. Chapple, Ashland, editor, author and public speaker.

The book traces the activities of those both within and without Wisconsin who would supplant the American economic system by ...Socialist order. It warns Wisconsin that the amalgamation of Socialist and Progressive forces should be clearly comprehended by every one, because of the effect which this movement has upon the homes, jobs, savings, personal liberties, individual initiative, morals, and religion of every one. Half truths, the author says, have been used to put various ...ssures through the state ...slature.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: One Chance in a Million

WCFL GRANTED FULL TIME ON 970 KILOCYCLES

The federal radio commission yesterday granted WCFL, the station operated by the Chicago Federation of Labor, unlimited time on 970 kilocycles to broadcast experimentally. It will have simultaneous use of the band with Station KJR of Seattle, recently acquired by the National Broadcasting company.

Although the federal grant to WCFL is provisional, it appeared that the labor station, long wishing full time, has at last achieved that status. If, however, it "runs over," or interferes, the radio commission will order a resumption of the limited time schedule WCFL now operates.

WCFL is a user of the National Broadcasting company programs and this is believed to be one of the reasons why the corporation made no objection to its being allowed simultaneous time with the chain station, KJR. Another reason given was the fact that it obviates any conflict over time with respect to two other recent purchases made by NBC—the operation of WENR and the taking over of an interest in WMAQ. Thus, all difficulties seem to be solved, labor was given full time and NBC helped clear this zone.

FIND CHICAGO GIVES A LUCKY START IN PRESIDENTIAL RACE

Presidential candidates picked at conventions in Chicago have about a 2 to 1 chance of winning, in the light of history as reviewed yesterday by Edward N. Hurley, chairman of the citizens' committee which is seeking to bring both Republican and Democratic conventions here next year.

"Since 1860," said Mr. Hurley, "of the fourteen major party candidates nominated in Chicago, nine have been victorious. Headed by Abraham Lincoln, the list of Presidents whose path to the White House started in Chicago has included Grant, Garfield, Cleveland, who was elected twice, Harrison, Roosevelt, Taft and Harding.

"The only unsuccessful candidates nominated in Chicago were McClellan, Blaine, Taft, Hughes, and Bryan. Blaine was beaten by Cleveland, another Chicago nominee, however, both party conventions being held here in 1884. Since 1860, there have been only six presidential years when Chicago has not played host to one or both of the big party gatherings."

Ambitious clerk finds way to beat the game

"EASY," HE SAYS

"I WORK in an office. That means that I've got a raft of details on my mind. And I've got to be right up to scratch every moment. You know how hard-boiled the chief can be if I can't dig up the right data at just the right moment. Hard work—long hours—a good deal on my feet.

"And yet I manage to be full of pep. What's more, I've got a real interest in my job—looking ahead, you know, to a little niche at the top for yours truly. I've just got to keep fit.

"How do I do it? I can't take time for golf. But I do take Nujol. And Nujol takes care of me."

Nujol is just a natural substance containing no drugs or medicine. Nujol was perfected by the famous Nujol Laboratories, 2 Park Avenue, New York City. It keeps the body functioning as nature meant it to, even under abnormal sedentary conditions. It not only prevents the excess of body poisons (we all have them) from forming, but aids in their removal.

Follow this advice and take Nujol regularly. You'll be amazed to find how much more energetic and efficient you will feel—and be. Take it steadily for three months and watch your improvement. It can't do you any harm, certainly, and might do you a lot of good.

Be sure you get the genuine.

NORTHWEST PARK DISTRICT BUYS PLAYGROUND SITE

Purchases Wabansia and Kildare Corner.

BY AL CHASE.

The Northwest Park district yesterday purchased the northeast corner of Wabansia and Kildare avenues, 575x125, from William J. Snyder for a reported $33,000. This gives the park board the entire frontage on the east side of Kildare avenue, extending from Wabansia avenue to Bloomingdale avenue. The trustees also purchased one lot adjoining on Tripp avenue, and it is understood are negotiating for additional parcels in the same block.

It is stated that the purchase price was considerably below the market figure for land in the vicinity. President Joseph F. Gubbins announced that the property is to be converted into a playground next spring. William J. Mannion, attorney for the park district, and Paul B. Fischer attended to the legal details in yesterday's purchase.

Trio Buys 115 Acre Tract.

Louis, N. George and Herman Fry have purchased 115 acres on Central road, west of Beverly road, in Dundee and Barrington townships, from Bernard DeVry for an undisclosed consideration. The property formerly was known as the Nohl farm.

Charles D. Clark, of Wheaton, has purchased a parcel in East 95th street, between South Chicago avenue and the Calumet river, from William J. Haab and wife and Mr. and Mrs. William H. Plunkett, for an undisclosed consideration. The property was bought subject to a lease on part of the property, improved with a filling station, to S. and R. Chapman.

Bosley Bros. have sold the vacant property on Snow street, 400 feet southwest of Elston avenue, 310x334, to Edwin and Amanda Lister for an indicated $59,298. The land is under lease to the Garden City Sand company.

Lincoln Avenue Sale.

John Lind has sold to Bernard Given the building at 4305-07 Lincoln avenue, containing twelve apartments and two stores, for an undisclosed consideration, subject to $55,000. N. Shlensky & Sons were brokers.

BY O. A. MATHER.

Suspension of the gold standard by Great Britain is not a catastrophe, according to views expressed yesterday by Chicago leaders in finance and industry. While there may be an adverse effect for a time, at least, on the foreign trade of the United States and those of the world, it was said that this is partly offset by the clarifying of another situation in world finance.

It was emphasized on all sides that the British crisis should have no serious effect on American finance and probably not much effect on world finance. Practically all credits extended to England by American banks and the federal reserve banks are "dollar bills" which means they are repayable in gold, and England has retained enough gold to meet such foreign obligations.

"It was a courageous move on the part of the English," George M. Reynolds, chairman of the executive committee of the Continental-Illinois Bank and Trust company, Chicago's largest bank, said. "The Bank of England also before its gold reserve was entirely depleted. It couldn't maintain the pound sterling if the whole world continued to raid British finance.

Affects England Chiefly.

"But the suspension of the gold standard will affect chiefly the country's internal finances. England still has enough gold to repay foreign credits if called on to do so. There should be no serious effect on finance in the United States, as all credits are dollar loans and repayable in gold. It is practically the same with credits of other countries.

"It is probable that the only real loser on the United States and the world may be to make trade with England more difficult, at least temporarily. This is a disadvantage, but there is an offsetting advantage. Suspension of the gold standard will give England a breathing spell in which to bring about internal financial reforms and balance the national budget.

"When England begins to reap the benefit of these reforms it may return to the gold standard either by restoration of the pound sterling at the old rate or its stabilization on some lower basis, but on the rest of Europe has also with its currencies. In the event of the latter action, it means a capital loss for the English people, but the effect on the rest of the world would be beneficial as the result of stability."

Others Express Opinions.

Frederick H. Rawson, chairman of the First National bank, also expressed the belief that the English action would eventually have a salutary effect on both English and world finance. Philip R. Clarke, president of the Central Republic Bank and Trust company, forecast that the action would clarify the English situation.

"This has been hanging over the stock markets of the world for a week or two days," he said. "It is a good thing that the matter has been cleared up. Suspension of the gold standard by England should not have any serious effect on this country, as all of England's obligations to this country are payable in American dollars."

F. A. SEIBERLING REPORTS SALES UP 46 PER CENT

New York, Sept. 21.—(AP)—F. A. Seiberling, president of the rubber company bearing his name, said today that its sales of tires increased 46 per cent in the first seven months of 1931, compared with the like period last year. He said the company's Akron plant is working around the clock, with three 8 hour shifts.

The Parker Rust-Proof company has enjoyed a 40 per cent increase in the sale of chemicals during the first eight months of 1931 compared with the same period a year ago, W. N. Carothers, president, said today.

Pullman Fights Competition with New Improvements

BY SCRUTATOR.

If all railway passengers were in the same state of health and if all had the same build, possessed the same amount of wealth and had like preferences, then, perhaps, a standard sleeping car accommodation that would fit all demands could be devised.

The Pullman company has never, of course, entirely ignored differences of health, taste or pocketbook; but it has gone on the assumption that two or three types of accommodation could be provided that would strike a mean and satisfy everybody.

Current developments indicate that the company has changed its opinion. According to recent articles published in its house organ the Pullman News, the train traveler of the future may expect to find many variations in the types of accommodations offered.

Interiors of some of the newer cars are being arranged in altogether different fashion and the verdict of the traveling public will determine whether the new ideas will be retained.

Will Add Comfort.

The standard upper and lower will, of course, be retained, but will be made more comfortable. The new cars now coming out of the shops have four position seats adjustable on the order of grandfather's Morris chair.

The single bedroom containing one bed and a similar room with accommodation for two have passed through the experimental stage and are now accepted as standard along with the drawing room and compartment.

Two novelties now being tried provide further variations. One is the "private section," a standard upper and lower with the seats made narrower to permit standing room inside the curtain separating them from the aisle. Each has a private toilet room. The curtain may be drawn during the day as well as at night, insuring privacy.

Another new type, the "enclosed section," is similar to the private section except that it occupies less space, the toilet room being omitted.

Some Surprising Results.

Introduction of the "single occupancy section" in May, 1930, has produced some surprising results in view of generally reduced passenger traffic. In May, 1930, the company began offering a full standard section, upper and lower, for the price of a lower, plus half the price of an upper. A bonus was offered conductors selling the complete section to passengers who had bought only one berth.

It is interesting to note that in June, 1931, 41,409 travelers boarding trains with tickets entitling them to single berths were persuaded by conductors to take full sections. Total sales of single occupancy sections by conductors and ticket offices for the month were 67,042, compared with 56,827 in May, the previous high record. In the year ended April 30, 1931, the company sold 496,546 such sections.

Another attempt to stimulate income is an innovation dubbed "Hale Holden's dime store," consisting of a metal and glass sales case containing such items as tooth paste, shaving cream, shoe laces and collar buttons to ease the worries of the traveler who packs in haste. The first experimental cases were highly successful and more have been ordered installed.

Must Meet Competition.

Pullman's attempts to better its earnings are interesting because they constitute an admission that even though the company's operations are so broad as to approach a monopoly it has a distinct competitive problem to solve. To retain the business it has and to attract more the company must make its service even more attractive to the traveling public. The success of recent experiments in the artificial conditioning of air in sleeping cars indicates that much can be done in that direction. Passengers must be encouraged to ride in Pullmans because such travel is comfortable, cheap and speedy.

The company is out to do what it can. In the matters of economy and speed it must have the cooperation of the railroads over which it operates.

Pullman has not one competitor but millions. Each private automobile and bus and every day coach is a potential competitor. The company's intention seems to be to give the public what it wants. It appears to be ready to accept the challenge of the motor car rather than admit defeat.

MORE TALK HEARD IN CANADA ON MERGER OF TWO BIG RAILWAYS

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 20.—Canada is talking of merging her two great railways, the Canadian Pacific and the Canadian National.

A few years ago when the Canadian National revenues were bounding upward and the road was commencing to take care of most of its huge indebtedness to the government and public such talk would not have been countenanced. However, the Nationals have slipped badly in the matter of revenues during the last two years.

In line with the reorganization of Canadian railway affairs, believed to be impending, Premier Bennett is planning the most important railway inquiry in all Canadian history. A royal commission will be named within the next month, whose duty will be to delve into every angle of Canadian railway operation, debt and probable future revenues.

It is expected that the commission will consist of five or seven members and that two of its personnel will be the heads of the two principal railways, E. W. Beatty, president of the Canadian Pacific, and Sir Henry Thornton, president of the Canadian National railways.

One outstanding old country man will be named in recognition of the indebtedness to British investors, and a prominent American railway man is also certain to be included.

May Not Meet Interest.

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 21.—(AP)—R. J. Manion, minister of railways and canals, said today the financial condition of the Canadian National railways was such, due to decreased earnings, that it looked as if little, if any, of the $57,000,000 of interest due the public in 1931 could be met from earnings. This would necessitate the government meeting most or all of this interest, he added.

SHIPPING BOARD PLANS NEW DEAL FOR U. S. LINES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 21.—Dissatisfied with the Dollar-Dawson-Chapman interests with which it has been negotiating for weeks, the shipping board proposed today that the International Mercantile Marine company and Joseph E. Sheedy, minority stockholder in the United States Lines, join with the Dollar combination in reorganizing the line.

The board's proposal calls for a pooling of the financial strength of all interested parties to build up a powerful organization to take over and operate the vessels of the United States Lines. The suggestion was advanced at an executive session of the board today, to which the members of the Dollar combination, officials of the I. M. M., and Sheedy were invited. Strict secrecy was enjoined upon those attending the conference.

In effect, the board's proposal was an acknowledgement that its negotiations with the Dollar combination had virtually broken down and that the field was wide open for those intent on buying the ships. After his noon meeting with the Dollar combination, P. A. S. Franklin, president of the I. M. M., said there had been no concrete developments. The board continued to hold its meeting until late afternoon, then adjourning until tomorrow.

N. Y. Stock Exchange Seat Purchased for $168,000

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 21.—The price of stock exchange memberships today dropped $17,000 to the lowest level since 1926, with the announcement that arrangements had been completed for the sale of a seat at $168,000. This compares with the previous low for the year of $185,000, established on Sept. 11. The high this year for direct sale of a membership other than through accumulation of rights was $310,000 on March 17. In 1927 seats sold down to a low of $170,000, while in 1926 a low of $132,000 was reached.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 21.—Approval of the agreement entered into by directors of Phelps Dodge corporation for acquisition of the assets and properties of Calumet and Arizona Mining company was voted by stockholders of Phelps Dodge at a special meeting today. Phelps Dodge will exchange three and one-fourth shares of its stock for each share of Calumet and Arizona after the declaration of a cash dividend of $2.50 a share by Calumet and Arizona.

The Phelps Dodge stockholders also approved an increase in capital stock of the company to 6,000,000 shares from 3,000,000 shares of $25 par value and the repeal of a bylaw pertaining to ownership of stock. These steps are to expedite the merger of Phelps Dodge and Calumet and Arizona.

By action of the stockholders the board of directors of Phelps Dodge in the future will consist of not less than nine and not more than twenty-one members.

A total of 2,583,400 shares was represented at the meeting out of a total outstanding of 2,822,726 shares.

Shares on Chicago Board Recover After Early Selling

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

After the first wave of liquidation had spent its course stocks on the Chicago exchange recovered rapidly yesterday, and at the final gong shares were selling only slightly below last week's closing prices. The orderly character of the trading, in the face of the crisis in English finance, was attributable to the action of the exchanges in declaring a moratorium on short selling and the fact that the pivotal shares were given good support.

Trading began at the usual hour, after the governors of the exchange had met in extraordinary session at 8:15 in the morning and decreed that business should be carried on as usual. Selling predominated during the first hour, and all classes of stocks were carried down under the weight of liquidation, but the recovery proved almost as sharp as the decline and by noon prices were well above the lows for the day. Some irregularity marked the later trading, but stocks did not again touch the lows set during the initial selling movement.

Meeting of Governors.

Following the early meeting of the governing committee Paul H. Davis, president of the exchange, issued the following brief statement:

"We found it neither necessary nor advisable to close the exchange."

Notice of the prohibition on short selling was sent out over the ticker to members of the exchange throughout the country. "In view of the suspension of gold payments in England," the statement said, "the governing committee of the Chicago Stock exchange has determined that short selling during the present emergency would create a condition which would not fairly reflect the market or true values. Hence any such short selling will be looked upon as an act detrimental to the interests of the exchange and the public."

The visitors' gallery was crowded with spectators and an atmosphere of excitement pervaded the trading room when the gong sounded for the start of business. Floor traders rushed to execute the selling orders which they had received over night and prices began to sink.

For more than an hour trading was carried at unusually active pace, but at no time did the scene become disorderly. The activity did not approach the pitch which was attained during the 1929 collapse and but for the feeling of tenseness inspired by the momentous events in international finance the day might have passed off as an ordinary trading day.

Certainly the market displayed more steadiness than it has on several occasions in the last twelve months. Typical of the market's action was the performance of the Insull securities, which all last week were under heavy selling pressure. This group broke rather sharply on the early selling and then rallied with the rest of the market to end up the day with moderate net declines, which in most cases were not as severe as the losses sustained in last week's drop.

Middle West Active.

Middle West Utilities was the most active issue on the board, turning over in large blocks until transactions reached a total of 66,000 shares. After receding to 9½ in the morning the stocked recovered to 10¼, which represented only a fractional decline for the day. Insull Utility dropped to a record low quotation of 11½, then snapped back to 13, which compared with last week's final price of 13¾.

Sharper declines developed in the higher priced shares, notably Commonwealth Edison and Public Service no par. The former issue broke to 155, then rallied to 158½, which was 8½ below its previous close. Public Service was off 14 to 165. North American Light and Power rallied from 30 to 35, closing with a net gain of 3.

In other sections of the list final quotations ranged from a fraction to a point or more under previous closing prices. Borg Warner was down 1½. Bendix was off a fraction, and U. S. Radio dropped 3.

Total stock traded in amounted to 320,000 shares, a figure which has been reached on few occasions in recent months.

Best & Co.

A friend of mine advises me to buy Best & Co. common stock as a long pull investment. Will you please give me your opinion of this stock?—C. W. G.

Best & Co., Inc., specializes in the retail sale of general wearing apparel. It has a large retail store on Fifth avenue, New York City, and branch shops at Atlantic City, Boston, Hyannis, Mass.; Asbury Park, N. J.; Miami Beach, Fla.; Southampton, L. I., and three New York City suburbs.

Annual sales have shown a steady increase. For the fiscal year ended Jan. 31, 1931, they were $15,097,736, against $14,614,181 for the preceding twelve months.

Net income was $1,265,437, or $4.15 per common share, against net of $1,279,261, or $4.20 per common share, for the twelve months ended Jan. 31, 1930. For the fiscal year ended Jan. 31, 1929, net income was $1,003,925 against $978,818 the year before.

Net profit per dollar of sales for the latest fiscal year was 8.38 cents, compared with 8.75 cents for the 1929 year and 7.52 cents for the 1928 year.

For the six months to July 31, 1931, sales were $7,159,679. Net income was $525,464, or $1.72 per common share. For the like period of 1930 sales were $7,418,069 and net income was $605,287, or $2 per common share.

Accounts receivable of $2,062,431 constituted 57 per cent of total current assets. The item of $400,000 notes payable on Jan. 31, 1931, statement did not appear on the statement of the year before. Working capital was $2,545,314 against $2,858,806 on Jan. 31, 1930. In the latest fiscal year $1,245,485 was spent for expansion purposes.

Mortgages payable were $950,000. There were outstanding 2,394 shares of preferred (par $100) and 300,000 no par common shares.

The common is on an annual $2 dividend basis. It deserves a fairly good rating.

Quotations.

Will you kindly advise me if I am correct in believing that the quotations of stocks and bonds on the New York exchange are based on $100 par value?—J. N.

A quotation is the price at which commodities or securities are bid, asked, or sold.

The quotation of a stock gives no clue as to whether it has a par value of $100 or some other figure or no stated par value.

Bonds are usually quoted on the basis of $100. That does not necessarily indicate that such bonds are available in denominations of $100.

GRAIN MARKETS IN RALLY AFTER EARLY DECLINE

British Gold Action Upsets Trade.

News of the New York stock market and the effect of the English situation will be found on page 3.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Suspension of the gold standard by England came as a shock to the grain trade, and a wave of liquidation swept over the markets shortly after the opening yesterday. The decline was not checked until wheat had dropped 2¾@3½c and corn 1¼@2¼c from Saturday's finish.

Eastern and local operators who were aggressive buyers of wheat last week went out of their lines yesterday, and this class of selling was largely responsible for the break in prices. The market, however, quickly recovered its equilibrium as commission houses, shorts and local professionals took the buying side, and net losses on wheat for the day were only ¾@⅞c, with September finishing at 47½c; December, 47¾c, and May, 52¾@52c.

Await Further Developments.

Violent fluctuations were in evidence in wheat during the first hour of trading, with prices in the pit at times materially out of line with the quotations on the blackboards, but the trade quieted down later and the bulk of business later was within a range of around 1c per bu. Winnipeg was affected by the adverse exchange rate with the United States, and prices there closed 1⅜c higher in consequence, with October finishing at 53½c. The Canadian dollar in U. S. currency was quoted around 95c yesterday.

Liverpool, in an effort to readjust its prices due to the debacle in sterling exchange, closed 3@4¼d higher, but the finish showed a decline of 3@3¾c per bu based on exchange at $4.25, the break of 60 points in the latter more than offsetting the advance in the English market. October

Talk or Performance?

ORATORY never bettered a product or lowered a price. For fifty years the electric light and power industry of the United States has been doing both. Each year it continues to give more power for less money; each year it increases the lead of the United States over all nations in the use and enjoyment of electric service.

GRAIN MARKETS IN RALLY AFTER EARLY DECLINE

Wheat Trading Reacts to British Action.

Snow Discusses Situation.

The gossip of the grain trade yesterday was centered entirely in the foreign situation and the prospects for the future. Opinions as to the trend of the market were regarded as valueless under present conditions, although many operators were hopeful that the worst had been witnessed and that within a few days the readjustment would be completed.

In commenting on the upturn in wheat prices in England, B. W. Snow, economist and statistician for Bartlett, Frazier & Co., said the abandonment of the gold standard will of course advance the price of wheat in their market when measured in terms of their own money, but it will in fact represent mainly the difference in exchange, the quotations being in depreciated currency as compared with the dollar. If the record of past experience holds good, he says, the near time result should be some advance in grain prices to be followed by a gradual settlement to a permanent supply and demand basis.

The deferred deliveries of wheat at Chicago sold at a new low for the season yesterday, the December touching 45c on the decline, and routine news had no effect. A decrease of 1,372,000 bu in the visible supply brought the total down to 233,132,000 bu, and compared with 307,620,000 bu last year.

September Corn Week.

Free selling of September corn, which the trade regarded as for a leading local professional, carried that future off sharply and it sold down to 39¾c, equaling the inside figure of the season, while the new crop months dropped to a new low since trading started this year. The liquidation in September was absorbed by an eastern short and a strong rally came later in sympathy with wheat and the stock market, with the finish at net losses of ¼@¾c on the new crop months and 1¼c on September. The latter closed at 40¾@40c, December at 36⅝@36¾c, and May, 40⅝@40¾c.

A decrease of 3,121,000 bu was shown in the visible supply of corn, making the total 6,254,000 bu, against 6,963,000 bu last year. Wet weather prevailed over a large part of the corn belt. There is a considerable percentage of the crops already in shock and comparatively little damage would be done by frost at the present time, according to private and official reports.

Oats Unchanged.

The oats market was affected by the action of other grains, breaking ⅝@1¼c early, with local longs liquidating, but later an effort to refinstate sold out lines found little for sale and the close was unchanged to ⅜c higher, with September, 21¼c; December, 22⅝c, and May, 25½c. Charters were made for 325,000 bu for winter storage at Buffalo.

Rye showed surprising strength and while off as much as 1½c early with wheat the market rallied sharply and was ¼c lower to ½c higher at the close, with September, 37¼c; December, 38c, and May, 40¾c.

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—(AP)—SUGAR—Raw was unchanged today with a sale reported at 10,000 bags of Porto Rican for prompt shipment at 3.40 delivered.

Sugar futures shared the decline of other commodities, reflecting the unsettlement in the foreign financial situation. Approximate sales 18,400 tons. Prices follow: Sept. 1.29, Dec. 1.29, Jan. 1.29, March 1.32, May 1.37, July 1.43, Sept. 1.47.

In refined there was a fair inquiry reported but it was still limited to nearby requirements. There was no change in prices from 4.85 for fine granulated, but it was reported that domestic beet sugar was being offered in eastern territory at 4.42½.

Stockholders Agree to Assist in Eaton Probe

Cleveland, O., Sept. 21.—(AP)—Minority stockholders of Continental Shares, Inc., today decided to cooperate with the new management and to investigate the former management headed by Cyrus S. Eaton, who resigned as chairman of the board several months ago. The minority stockholders were led by George L. Gugle, Columbus, attorney, who said they were in complete accord with the new management headed by George L. Bishop of Cleveland, except for its refusal to bring charges against some of the former officers.
